

If Your Highness will cause publicity to be given to this fact, it will, I hope, save many of Your Highness' subjects from considerable inconvenience. Meanwhile, any parties of intending pilgrims, who may reach India, will be stopped as near the frontier as possible, and induced to return to their homes, so that they may not gather in large bodies and increase the chances of their being attacked by the plague. Your Highness may rest assured that any of Your Highness' subjects whom it may be necessary to prohibit from continuing their journey will be treated with the utmost consideration by my officers.

Translation of a letter from His Highness the Amir of Afghanistan and its Dependencies, to the address of His Excellency the Viceroy, dated the 4th Shawal 1314 H., corresponding to the 9th March 1897.

After compliments.—I have received Your Excellency's friendly letter, dated the 24th February 1897, and have understood the contents, which were to the following effect:

(His Highness quotes the whole letter.)

Previous to this, I also directed my attention to the matter of prohibiting the pilgrimage, and issued orders to my officials to inform pilgrims, who were intending to proceed to the Hedjaz, of the occurrence of plague in Karachi and Bombay, and to stop them and prevent them from going.

Your Excellency has now, in communication with the Secretary of State for India, thought it advisable to issue public notice in India, intimating that pilgrims are absolutely prohibited from proceeding to Mecca this year, so that they may be saved from suffering any harm from this terrible calamity. I also have issued fresh orders to communicate the notice to the Hujjehs (directors of pilgrims) in Afghanistan that they may in their turn inform the pilgrims of it. Your Excellency may rest assured that, so long as the prohibition continues, no one shall proceed from the frontiers of Afghanistan on a journey to the Hedjaz.

After the exalted and glorious God has dispelled this life-destroying calamity from His creatures, persons who may be fortunate enough can undertake the journey to Mecca.

Thursday, March 18th.—The barometer had risen slightly to rapidly over North-West India and had fallen slightly to briskly elsewhere. A high pressure area had appeared over the Punjab, while a broad band of low pressure stretched from Bengal south-westward to the Bombay Deccan. The winds were northerly (between north-west and north-east) over Western, and southerly (south-westerly to south-easterly) over Eastern, India. The force was strong at the head of the Bay. The mean temperature was lower than usual over the west and south of the Peninsula, deltaic Burma and the north of the Punjab, but in all other places the heat was excessive. Very light showers had been received at one or two stations, but in general the weather remained dry.

Friday, March 19th.—The barometer had fallen almost everywhere. The fall had been brisk over Northern and North-Western India and had been rapid over Baluchistan and the north Punjab. Readings were high over the Bay area and over North-West India, while the intervening region was occupied with a broad band of low pressure. The winds were generally unchanged, but a rising southerly wind was reported over Baluchistan. The mean temperature had been excessive, except over the Bombay and Madras coast districts and along the foot of the Punjab Himalayas. Showers of rain had occurred over Assam, but this was the only reported rainfall.

Saturday, March 20th.—Pressure had again given way almost everywhere. The fall had been brisk to rapid in the north-west, and a fresh depression had appeared over the western desert. The winds were irregularly cyclonic in the neighbourhood of this depression and were becoming strong and squally in places. The southerly wind at the head of the Bay was also blowing strongly. The heat was excessive, except over the Bombay and Madras coast districts and Lower Burma. Light rain had again fallen in Assam, and rain had commenced in Baluchistan and Kashmir.

Temperature.—At the commencement of the week the whole of the more central parts of the country were occupied by a large area of low temperature, the greatest abnormal depression being reported from the Central Provinces, while in surrounding regions there were small areas of excessive heat. These areas of excessive heat gradually encroached on the large central area of low temperature, so that by the 17th the low temperatures had wholly disappeared, and by the end of the week conditions were reversed, the highest temperatures relatively to the normal being reported from the central and the lowest temperatures from the outlying regions of India. The change of temperature was hence very large over the Central Provinces—at one time the seat of the highest and at another of the lowest (relatively to the normal) temperatures—during the week, and amounted to as much as 10° .

• Rainfall.—The rainfall of the week under review has been of the normal character, but has been lighter than usual in amount. The rainfall of the month of March is small in amount over by far the greater part of India, but frequent showers, accompanying thunderstorms of greater or less intensity, occur ordinarily over two districts, vis., Bengal, Orissa and Assam and the hill and submontane districts of the Punjab and of the North-West Provinces. This general characteristic of the rainfall has not been departed from during the present week, when all the rain which was received fell during short thunderstorms and when by far the greater part of the country received no rain whatever. The average actual rainfall of the week exceeded one-tenth of an inch only in five divisions, vis., Assam (Surma), with an average fall of 1·35 inches; Assam (Brahmaputra), with a fall of 0·18 inch; Orissa, with a fall of 0·11 inch; the Central Provinces (East), with a fall of 0·69 inch; and the Baluchistan Hills, with a fall of 0·36 inch. In all other parts of the country the rainfall was actually or practically nil.

The whole of the early part of the week was fine and dry, with a high barometer, but as early as the morning of the 15th it was noticed that a change seemed probable, that the wind was going round to south-west at the head of the Bay, and that the storms which ordinarily occur at this season in Bengal and Assam were becoming more probable. On the 19th and 20th this change occurred, and nearly the whole of the rainfall noticed in the rainfall statement fell during these two days.

The total fall of the week was nearly everywhere below the average, but there was a moderate excess over the east of the Central Provinces and a trifling excess in the case of North Bengal and of the Central Provinces (West). In the case of the Punjab and North-West Provinces hill districts the abnormal deficiency was over half an inch and in Bengal and Assam between quarter of an inch and one inch, but in the remainder of India the anticipated rainfall is, as stated above, very small, and the deficiency was hence unimportant.

From the beginning of the month to date the weather has been less disturbed and less stormy than usual, and the rain has either been altogether absent or much lighter than the normal.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, March 27th, 1897.

During the present week the weather has been quiet, fine and warm over the greater part of the Peninsula, fine but cool over the central parts of the country and very unsettled over Northern India—more particularly so in the north-west and north-east. Over Northern India the barometric changes from day to day have been large, and in North-West India two very considerable and important depressions have appeared. The first of these depressions was shown on Sunday the 21st, when general showers of rain and snow and strong cyclonic winds were reported from the north-west; the second appeared on the 25th and continued till the close of the week, during which period further showers of rain occurred over the Punjab and of rain and snow over the North-West Himalayas. In North-East India rain commenced on the 22nd and continued till the 26th, the rainfall area gradually advancing eastward from West Bengal through Central Bengal into Burma. A very marked effect has been produced on temperature by this rainfall on the plains and snowfall on the hills. On the 21st, when the rainfall and snowfall from the first depression was only commencing to affect the weather, it was only in the Punjab that the temperature was markedly below the normal, and the mean temperature of the whole Indian region was $1\cdot7^{\circ}$ above the normal average. On the following day the depression of temperature had become more marked and more extensive, and from this day onward cooler weather than usual was experienced throughout nearly the whole of India. The greatest deficiency was on the 24th, when the rainfall over Bengal, etc., was heavy and extensive and when the full effect of the snowfall in the Himalayas was being felt over North-Western and Central India.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, March 21st.—Pressure was changing rapidly and irregularly. The principal features in the distribution were a deepish barometric depression over the Punjab and a shallow depression over the Gangetic Plain. The winds were very irregular, but in North-West India were strong and squally and at Murree were very strong. The mean temperature was lower than usual over Bombay, Baluchistan and the greater part of the Punjab, but was excessive in nearly all other places, the excess being greatest over the Gangetic Plain. General rain had fallen over the North-West Himalayas and the North Punjab, while scattered showers had occurred over the east of the Punjab and of Rajputana as well as in parts of the North-West and Central Provinces. The heaviest amounts were received on and near the hills, and ranged between half and three-fourths of an inch.

Monday, March 22nd.—Pressure had increased briskly to rapidly over the Punjab and generally decreased elsewhere. Hence, while the depression over the Punjab had disappeared and been succeeded by a high pressure area, the depression over the Gangetic Plain had intensified. Readings were high in the North Punjab, in Assam and in Lower Burma. The winds were northerly over North-West India, north-westerly in the west and south-easterly in the east of the Peninsula, and exhibited an indraught towards the depression area over Northern India. The mean temperature was excessive over the central parts of Northern India, the centre and south of the Peninsula and over Burma, but was below the average elsewhere. The abnormal deficiency was very large over Baluchistan and the Indus Valley. General showers of rain had occurred over Northern India and the North-West Himalayas. The largest amount reported was $1\cdot16$ inches at Ranikhet.

Tuesday, March 23rd.—Pressure had increased almost everywhere. The change had been rapid to very rapid over the Gangetic Plain, and the depression noticed there on the 21st and 22nd had almost disappeared. Readings were generally very uniform, but over the central parts of the country the barometer read slightly lower than in surrounding regions. The winds were practically unaltered. Temperature was higher than usual over Madras and the Central Provinces, but was low elsewhere—most so over Central Bengal and Bihar. Fairly general rain had fallen over Bengal and Assam, and a few showers in the North-West Provinces and North-West and Central India. At Balasore, Dhubri, Darjeeling and Sambalpur the rainfall equalled or exceeded one inch.

Wednesday, March 24th.—The barometer had again risen over the greater part of the country. A shallow low pressure area existed over Madras and a second over Central Bengal, but in general readings remained very uniform. The winds were influenced slightly by these depressions, but, on the whole, the wind directions were very variable. The mean temperature was higher than usual over Madras and Burma, but was below the average elsewhere. In Northern India generally, but particularly in West Bengal, the abnormal deficiency was large. Rain had been general over Bengal, Assam and the neighbouring districts of Burma, Madras, the Central Provinces and the North-West Provinces, while showers had occurred over the North-West Himalayas. The heaviest falls reported were 3.59 inches at False Point, 2.77 inches at Balasore, 2.06 inches at Coconada and 2.05 inches at Dinajpur.

Thursday, March 25th.—The barometer had fallen, except at some central stations. The changes were slight, except in parts of North-West India, where the fall had been brisk. The general distribution of pressure had not altered much, the only important change being the appearance of a low pressure area over the western desert. The winds were variable. The mean temperature was excessive over Sind, Madras and deltaic Burma, but was below the normal in all other places. The abnormal deficiency was greatest and exceeded 10° along the foot of the central Himalayas. Rain had ceased over west Bengal and the adjoining districts, while, on the contrary, it had extended eastward into Upper Burma. The heaviest falls were 2.09 inches at Akyab and 1.03 inches at Toungoo. Except in the north-east, there was no rain of importance.

Friday, March 26th.—The barometer had risen slightly over the Bay area and had fallen elsewhere. The change had been brisk to rapid in the north-west, and the depression noticed in that region on the 25th had increased in definiteness. Pressure was highest over Assam and Upper Burma. The winds were cyclonic over North-West India, but were unchanged in direction elsewhere. The force was fresh and strengthening over North-West India. The mean temperature was high over Sind and Kathiawar and a large part of Madras, but was below the normal average generally. The abnormal deficiency was between 8° and 10° over Central Bengal and Arakan. Showers of snow and rain had fallen on the north-west hills, and light rain over the submontane districts of the Punjab, while general rain had fallen over Burma, and scattered showers over part of Bengal.

Saturday, March 27th.—The barometer had been steady or risen somewhat over Burma, Assam and part of the Peninsula, but had continued to fall elsewhere. The depression in the north-west had grown still deeper, with well marked surrounding gradients and a well defined cyclonic circulation of the wind around the centre. The wind had shifted to east up the Gangetic Plain. The mean temperature was excessive over the centre and south of the Peninsula as well as in Central India and Rajputana, but was still lower than usual in other places. Rain had practically ceased over North-East India and Burma, but over North-West India and the North-West Himalayas the showers continued, snow falling at the higher elevations.

Temperature.—The temperature conditions of the past week have been strongly marked. On the 21st, when rain and snow commenced in the extreme north-west, temperature fell rapidly to below the normal average over Baluchistan, the North-West Himalayas and the Punjab plains. As the rainfall and snowfall continued and extended so did the depression of temperature and the extent of the deficiency extend, till, on the 24th and 25th, only a few stations in Burma, Madras and the Indus Valley reported any excess of temperature.

while, within the large area within which the mean temperature was low, the abnormal deficiency in some places was as much as 15° . After the 24th the amount and also the extent of the abnormal temperature deficiency decreased, but right up to the close of the week the weather over by far the greater part of the country was cooler than usual.

The following gives comparative temperature data for the week :

It will be remembered that last week there occurred a sudden extension of temperatures exceeding 100° into Northern and Central India. During the present week an equally sudden retreat took place, and at the close of the week temperatures of 100° and above were only reported from Burma, the Deccan and Berar. The following are the highest daily temperatures :

March 21st	104'3° Amraoti.
„ 22nd	105'1° Mandalay.
„ 23rd	104'2° Cuddapah.
„ 24th	104'1° Thyetmyo.
„ 25th	106'7° Cuddapah.

Rain.—During the past week the rainfall has been more general and heavier than for several weeks past. The west of the Peninsula, the west and centre of the Central Provinces, Central India, North Bombay and parts of Madras were actually or practically without rain during the week, but elsewhere more or less rain was received. The rainfall in North-West India was more or less directly connected with the two disturbances which are noticed above. Rain commenced in Baluchistan, the west of Rajputana and the North Punjab on the 21st. It continued and spread to the centre and east of the Punjab on the 22nd, but practically ceased on the 23rd, from which date the weather was fine until the 26th, when rain again commenced and continued during the 27th. In North-East India the rainfall was apparently connected with a disturbance which appeared over the central parts of the North-West Provinces on the 21st. This disturbance intensified on the 22nd and drawing the wind into south-east over Bengal gave showers to that Province and to a large part of the Gangetic Plain. The disturbance apparently drifted slowly eastward, and rain became heavier and more general over Bengal during the 23rd and 24th. By the 25th the disturbed area had passed on to Burma, which Province received general heavyish rain during the 25th and 26th, the fall at the same time decreasing over Bengal. By the 27th rain had practically ceased over the whole of the north-east of the Indian region, the area of disturbance having moved away eastward. The rainfall over

Northern India and Burma was hence attributable to well defined disturbances which drifted eastward across that area. On the contrary, the rainfall which has occurred over the central parts of the country and the Peninsula has fallen during scattered thunderstorms, and was only indirectly due to the disturbed conditions of the atmosphere over Northern India.

The rainfall table at the close of the summary shows that no rain whatever was received in the following divisions:—Mysore, the Konkan, the Bombay Deccan, Khandesh, Gujarat, Kathiawar, Sind, Rajputana (East), Central India (West) and Hyderabad (South), while less than one-tenth of an inch was measured in the North-West Provinces (Central), the Punjab (South), Coorg, Berar, the Central Provinces (West and Central), Central India (East), Madras (Central) and the East Coast (South). In all other divisions effective rain was received during the week, the amount ranging from 3·51 inches in Assam (Surma), 3·29 inches in Orissa and 3·11 inches in Assam (Brahmaputra) to 0·11 inch in deltaic Burma and to 0·12 inch in Oudh (South). The average actual rainfall of the week exceeded one inch in no less than ten divisions, two inches in three divisions and three inches in three divisions. The actual fall exceeded the normal average over Burma, Assam, Bengal, Bihar, the North-West Provinces (except the central division) and the Punjab (except the south division). It was also in excess in the east of the Central Provinces, most of the east coast of the Peninsula and in Western Rajputana. In all other parts of India the rainfall was normal or in trifling defect. The greatest excess was reported from the north-east of the Indian region, where North Madras, the east of the Central Provinces, Bengal, Assam and Burma all had much more than the average amount.

This heavy fall of rain in the north-east has occasioned a great change in the seasonal rainfall condition in that area, the total fall for the four weeks, February 28th to March 27th, being now in considerable excess of the normal. In the North-West Provinces and the Punjab, notwithstanding the relatively heavy rainfall of the past week, the seasonal fall is still generally short of the normal, while over the central parts of the country and the Peninsula, with some exceptions, the rainfall is still very short.

The following are the principal large totals recorded during the week under review in the different Provinces:

to have caused any general injury to the spring crops, whether in the field or on the threshing floors, but the mahua (Bassia latifolia) crop in the Bhagalpore and Chota Nagpur divisions has suffered some damage. There was a slight rise in the price of rice in some districts during the week in the distressed districts. There has been a slight drizzle in Umballa and Ferozepore. Rain has also fallen all over the Shahpur district. Reaping of barley, etc., has commenced in Gurgaon, Delhi, and Lahore, and sowings of extra spring crops are in progress. Ploughing for the next autumn crops is going on. Sugarcane and cotton are being sown in some districts. Irrigated crops are generally in fair condition, except the late canal crops and those sown near brackish wells in Rohtak. Crops, except those sown on canal and well lands, are generally in poor condition. Prospects are said to be below the average in Delhi and Umballa, and average in Mooltan. Standing crops have been benefited to some extent by the recent rain in Sialkot, Peshawar, and Dera Ismail Khan. The outturn of the spring crops is expected to be about half the average in Rohtak. No more rain is needed in Shahpur. Stocks of food-grains have been exhausted in Hissar, Delhi, and Shahpur, where requirements are met by importation; they are getting low in Rohtak and Gujranwala and are reduced in Jullundur and Ferozepore: stocks are also insufficient with the cultivators of Lahore and Amritsar. Crops have been slightly damaged by strong westerly winds in Rohtak, Lahore, and Gujranwala: they have also suffered from insufficiency of canal water in Rohtak. Barley and gram are still reported to be damaged by caterpillars in Ferozepore. Hail fell in parts of Gurgaon, Delhi, Jullundur, Lahore and Dera Ismail Khan and has damaged the crops to some extent: hail also fell in Peshawar, but did no damage to crops. Cattle are generally in poor condition from want of sufficient fodder and are dying of starvation in Hissar. Cattle are reported to be in good to fair condition in only three or four districts. Fodder is scarce in all districts, except Peshawar; green fodder is procurable in Sialkot, but dry fodder cannot be got in Gujranwala. Wheat is selling from $7\frac{1}{4}$ to 9 seers, great millet $9\frac{1}{4}$ to 11, gram 9 to $10\frac{3}{4}$, bulrush millet $8\frac{3}{4}$ to 10, and maize $9\frac{1}{4}$ to 11 seers per rupee. THE YEARLY EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR 4th GRADE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

The yearly examination of candidates for fourth grade of Accountants, Public Works Department, will be held at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on Monday and Tuesday, the 7th and 8th June, 1897, at 10-30 A. M. :—

Subjects.	Full marks.	Minimum pass marks.
Writing (neatness, clearness, and rapidity).	100	50
Dictation (spelling, punctuation, etc.)	100	50
Arithmetic (the whole)	240	160
Mensuration (a) the whole.	60	30
Book-keeping (b) mercantile	100	50
TOTAL	600	400

Minimum required in all papers collectively.

(a) Todhunter's Mensuration for Beginners.

(b) "Book-keeping" by Ball and Hamilton.

"Book-keeping" by double and single entry, by W. Inglis (Chambers' Educational Course).

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the 1st Monday in June. The examination will be conducted either at the College or by an Examiner, Public Works Accounts (including Railway and Telegraph), in Bengal, Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements in regard to the place and hour of examination with the candidates.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Government employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

2. The candidate should apply to an Examiner of Public Works Accounts not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates, and must be forwarded by him, not direct to the Principal, but through the Examiner.

* This term includes employment under Local Boards and foreign bodies if such is pensionable by the British Government.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned :—

- (1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)
- (2) Certificate of age (baptismal or of birth not required if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).
- (3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's handwriting.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application through his immediate official superior to an Examiner of Accounts qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Examiner of Accounts concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Examiner of Accounts, to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination or whether his application should be rejected. The Examiner of Accounts will then forward to the Principals for registration the names of the accepted candidates. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Examiner of Accounts. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principals not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, but direct to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment, and that in making appointments preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

N. B.—The attention of candidates is drawn to the alteration in rule 2 (3). In future no candidate is to apply direct to the Principal for permission to attend the examination, but must send his application through an Examiner of Public Works Accounts, who will decide whether the candidate is to be admitted.

The Principal will attend to no application received direct.

Principal, Civil Engineering College.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATF, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III, & IV of the Dictionary are ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European name; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross-references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal 8vo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L; and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which consists of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI), but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

J. E. O'CONOR,
Director-General of Statistics.
J. F. FINLAY,

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.
LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following paper, which is referred to in the Proceedings of the Council of the Governor-General of India for making Laws and Regulations held on the 26th March, 1897, is published for general information :—

" No. 3534 Gl., dated 17th August 1896.

" From—J. F. FINLAY, Esq., Secretary to the Government of India, FINANCE AND COMMERCE DEPARTMENT,

" To—The Comptroller and Auditor General.

" The Government of India have lately had under consideration the question of the method of recruitment of the Civil Account Department. They have reason to believe that appointments to the better paid clerical offices are made too exclusively by promotions from subordinate appointments, a system which, in their opinion, results in the exclusion of the better educated candidates and those most likely to prove efficient officers,

" 2. I am directed, therefore, to invite your special attention to the letter from this Department, No. 800, dated 9th January 1882, sanctioning the formation of the Subordinate Account Service, and to say that it is necessary that the principles of selection laid down in that letter, which have been embodied in Articles 1663 to 1673 of the Civil Account Code, should be borne in mind, in view of the necessity of providing for the higher appointments in the Account offices a staff of men superior in standing and in educational and other attainments to those who enter the offices in the lower grades. It can hardly be expected that the higher paid appointments in the Account offices will be adequately filled by men still possessing energy and the other necessary qualifications, if they are largely recruited from clerks who have entered the service in subordinate posts and risen slowly through the several grades in the office. All the greater importance is attached to the principles of selection for appointments in the Subordinate Account Service, now that from it are selected Chief Superintendents and in part also officers for the Enrolled List.

" 3. The system of probationary appointment in the higher grades of the Account offices gives Accountants General ample opportunity of making selections either from University graduates or of candidates, likely to prove suitable, from educational institutions or from other branches of the service, and Accountants General should always bear in mind that the future efficiency of their offices largely depends on the care with which they select men for the Subordinate Account Service. Selections from lower grades to higher appointments are not by any means forbidden, but it is obvious that by confining the higher appointments too narrowly to persons who have entered the service in the lower grades, the very classes of Native (including Statutory Native) among whom the best and most competent officers are likely to be found are excluded.

" 4. I am to request that you will impress upon Accountants General the importance of their making careful selections for the Subordinate Account Service, and following the principles of recruitment laid down by the Government. The effect of careless selection may prejudice the efficiency of the office for a long time after the officer responsible for the selection has ceased to be connected with it. The Subordinate Account Service falls, in some respects at least, not far short of the Provincial Services, as regards emoluments and prospects, and it is certain that no Local Government could expect adequately to fill the posts in its Provincial Service, if it confined itself, or even gave preference to the class of officer who had entered service on, and risen from, a salary of say Rs 30 or Rs 40 a month. It depends upon the action of the Accountants General that the men obtained for the Account Service are men whose value is equal to the prospects offered."

J. M. MACPHERSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

SANITARY.

The 9th April, 1897.

No. 1241.—The following documents regarding quarantine and trade restrictions imposed in consequence of the existence of bubonic plague in India are published for general information :

Letter from SIR LLOYD MATHEWS, 1st Minister to the Zanzibar Government, to CAPTAIN AGNEW, dated Zanzibar, the 16th January 1897.

In view of the bubonic plague now raging in India, all dhows and native craft from India, Arabia, the Persian Gulf, and north of the Zanzibar dominions, before entering the harbour, are to be boarded by the Merganser's boats for the purpose of being examined by an Indian medical practitioner.

2. The Merganser with two intelligent Port Office officials and extra men sufficient to form two boats' crews, to be anchored in the most suitable position for stopping all native craft, viz., at the buoys in the English Channel or at Mangapawni.

3. If such craft be found perfectly free from all disease, a letter of clearance will be given by the medical officer to the dhow captain, which will be handed to you on arrival at this port by the water police, who will board the dhow before she anchors in the harbour.

Should any disease be found on board any native craft, she will be immediately ordered to proceed to the anchorage off Prison Island, and you will be informed of the fact without delay by one of the Merganser's officials, and a yellow flag will be hoisted on board that ship.

4. It is to be understood that no dhows are to be boarded without inquiries being first made as to the health of the passengers and crews.

5. In case of necessity the gaol at Prison Island will be used as a quarantine station. Fifty Magomwi mats and fifty native beds will be supplied to the prison at once, ready for any emergency.

6. I have already given orders to the police at Kokotoni (the northern part of Zanzibar), Mangapawni, and Chuini not to allow any passengers or crews to land from Indian dhows, also dhows from Arabia, the Persian Gulf, and the north.

7. All steamers from India to be boarded as heretofore by yourself and the Health Officer. Should no medical officer be on board, the Health Officer must inspect all the Indian passengers and native crew. As steamers under the German flag are running between India and Zanzibar, I will call on the German Consul and ask for his assistance in carrying out a careful inspection of all German steamers.

8. You are in every possible way to keep yourself acquainted with the movements of ships and to ask for information from their last port of call, such as Lamu, Mombasa, and Tanga, on the main land, and to report to me whether they can receive pratique, and the time they have been at sea between India, or the northern ports, and the coast.

9. I have also requested Mr. Crauford, the Acting Commissioner at Mombasa, to send a medical officer to Lamu, as that place, as a rule, is the first port of call for all steamers from India, and have offered to pay one-third the salary of the medical officer employed on this duty.

10. I would desire that you will at once visit Prison Island and examine the tanks as to the amount of water now in them and make arrangements with Hamis Cheriko for a prompt supply of provision to be ready if required.

11. I am sending the steam ship Barawa to Pemba with instructions to all the officials of the Zanzibar Government not to allow any northern or Indian dhows to land their passengers or crews there.

12. The orders and instructions contained above to be carried out from this date.

No. 928 G., dated Simla, the 6th April, 1897.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Eligibility of officers in foreign service to pari passu promotion to the Superintending and Chief Engineer classes and to the special pensions admissible to officers in those classes.

Read—

Finance and Commerce Department resolution No. 3597 P., dated 21st August 1896.

Public Works Department resolution No. 2952 G., dated 2nd December 1896.

Read also—

Letter No. 84 P., dated 1st January 1897, from the Finance and Commerce Department, and its enclosure, a letter from the Government of Bombay. No. 459 E.—1509, dated 31st October 1896.

RESOLUTION—Under the note to para. 1 of Resolution, dated 21st August 1896, quoted in the preamble, all officers graded as Chief Engineers and seconded from the Public Works Department, holding appointments of corresponding rank and responsibility in foreign service, are eligible for an additional pension of Rs. 1,000 a year; and, under the resolution of 2nd December 1896, officers lent to Municipalities, Port Trusts and Local Boards are eligible for pari passu promotion with their contemporaries in Government service through the Assistant and Executive Engineer grades, and also to the Superintending and Chief Engineer classes subject to the conditions therein stated. They are also eligible after such promotion to the special pensions admissible under the provisions of Article 714, Civil Service Regulations, or Finance and Commerce Department resolution No. 3597 P., dated 21st August 1896.

2. Hitherto it has been the practice for officers in foreign service other than that referred to in the resolution of 2nd December 1896, that is, those lent to Native States and Railway Companies, to receive pari passu promotion from grade to grade, in their turn, when recommended for such promotion.

Their promotion to the Superintending and Chief Engineer classes and corresponding classes in the Superior Accounts Establishment and Superior Revenue Establishment of State Railways has been subject to the two conditions laid down for similar promotion in para. 2 of the resolution of 2nd December 1896 quoted above, namely:

that the appointments they hold under the foreign employer are of equal rank and responsibility with those of the classes and grades named above to which it is proposed to promote them;

and that their qualifications are such as would have entitled them to promotion to the same classes and grades under the Government rules.

This practice will continue, and the conditions are now published for general information.

3. Such promotion may be either substantive, substantively for a time or temporary and supernumerary, as the case may be, and should be properly notified, so that the service in the specified classes and grades may be recorded as at the officer's credit.

Effective service of officers in foreign employ, promoted in the manner above described to the classes named, qualifies for the special pensions admissible under the provisions of Article 714, Civil Service Regulations, or Finance and Commerce Department resolution No. 3597 P., dated 21st August 1896, as the case may be, on the same conditions as apply to officers in Government service.

Note.—A temporary and supernumerary promotion is the promotion of a seconded officer pari passu with his junior in a vacancy caused by furlough.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this resolution be communicated to the Local Governments of Madras and Bombay, Public Works Department, General and Railway Branches, Governments, Administrations and Officers, noted in the margin, for information, and that it be published in Part I of the Gazette of India.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 3rd, 1897.

• Pressure has remained very unsteady over India during the present week. After the disappearance of the deep depression which lay over North-West India at the end of the last and the commencement of the present week the extent of the pressure changes diminished, but the barometer rose and fell considerably from day to day, and the weather consequently remained feebly unsettled. The important depression which was lying over North-West India on the 28th occasioned, and was followed by, a fair amount of rain on the plains, and snow on the hills. This snowfall and rainfall had an important effect on the temperature, which, already below the normal, fell rapidly between the morning of the 28th and the morning of the 29th, and all over Northern and Central India marked between 5° and 11° lower than usual. After the 29th the weather improved somewhat, but it was at no time throughout the week settled, so that there was no opportunity for temperature to recover much, and abnormally cool weather prevailed during the whole of the period under review, except in the Peninsula and part of Burma. The rainfall of the week was light, except during the first two days, when it was both fairly heavy and fairly extensive.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, March 28th.—The barometer was falling along the foot of the North-West Himalayas, but was generally rising elsewhere—more particularly over Sind and Western Rajputana. A large low pressure area with its centre near Sirsa lay over the Punjab with moderate surrounding gradients. The winds were largely influenced by this disturbance, and a well marked easterly current prevailed up the Gangetic Plain. The force was strong over a considerable part of Northern India. The mean temperature exceeded the normal over Madras and the Central Provinces, but was largely below in most other places, the deficiency in the Punjab being between 6° and 7° . Snow, hail and rain had fallen over the North-West Himalayas, and rain over the submontane districts of the Punjab. Showers had also fallen over parts of the North-West Provinces, West Bengal, Assam and some central and southern districts.

Monday, March 29th.—The barometer exhibited a slight downward tendency over parts of Assam and of Burma, but in all other places pressure had increased. The rise had been very rapid in the north-west, whence the low pressure area had disappeared. Readings were now highest over the Punjab and relatively low over the Bay area and surrounding regions. Northerly winds had set in over North-Western and Western India. The easterly current was still shown up the Gangetic Plain. The mean temperature had fallen fast and was slightly to largely below the normal average, except over parts of Madras and of Burma. Snow and hail had again fallen over the North-West Himalayas, and showers over the submontane parts of the Punjab and over the Gangetic Plain, while general rain had been received over Bengal.

Tuesday, March 30th.—The recovery of pressure noticed on the preceding day had not been maintained, and the barometer was falling almost everywhere. Pressure was lowest over North Bengal, but the position of the area of highest pressure had not changed. The easterly current had disappeared, and a north-westerly wind was blowing down the Gangetic Plain. In other parts of the country the winds were little altered. Rain had ceased in the north-west, but continued to fall over Bengal and Assam. Temperature had risen over a large part of the country, but remained below the normal, except over Madras and Burma. The greatest deficiency was in Orissa and the North Punjab.

Wednesday, March 31st.—The barometer was rising over North-East India and the west of the Peninsula, but was still falling elsewhere. The change was greatest in the north-west, and a slight depression was shown over the western desert. Readings remained lowest in North Bihar. The winds had become feebly cyclonic in the north-west, but were little changed elsewhere. About an inch of rain had fallen in Assam, but there had been practically no rain elsewhere. Temperature had again risen, but was, as on the previous day, below the normal, except in parts of Burma and of Madras.

Thursday, April 1st.—The barometer had changed irregularly, but had on the whole risen. The depression noticed over the western desert had apparently advanced eastward to the west of the North-West Provinces. Northerly winds prevailed over the western and southerly winds over the eastern half of India, except in North Bengal and Bihar, where the direction was easterly. The only rainfall reported was a few trifling showers. Temperature had again risen, but the distribution relatively to the normal was unchanged, except that the amount of the deficiency in the north and centre had diminished, while the amount of the excess in the south had increased.

Friday, April 2nd.—The barometric changes were generally small and unimportant. Readings were fairly uniform, though they were somewhat lower over the east of the Peninsula than elsewhere. The wind directions were practically unaltered. The rainfall was again trifling and unimportant. Temperature had changed irregularly. The mean temperature was generally below the normal to the north of Lat. 20° and above the normal to the south of that line. The abnormal excess was between 5° and 6° over Madras.

Saturday, April 3rd.—Pressure had increased in the north-west and north-east and decreased in the intervening region. Readings were highest in the Punjab and lowest in the Deccan, but the pressure differences were not large. The wind directions were variable, except in North-Western and Western India, where fairly general northerly winds prevailed. Thundershowers had occurred in Lower Bengal and Orissa, but elsewhere the weather was fine. Temperature had changed irregularly and remained slightly to moderately excessive over the Peninsula and Lower Burma and deficient over Northern and Central India.

Temperature.—As mentioned above, the disturbed weather in Northern India, accompanied as it was with snow on the hills and rain on the plains, was followed by a rapid fall of temperature over a very large part of the country. As a result the mean temperature of the whole of India was nearly 5° lower than usual on the 29th, the abnormal deficiency being as much as 11° in the Punjab. With the disappearance of this disturbed weather and the cessation of rain and snow, a recovery of temperature occurred which continued fairly generally up to the 1st, when the changes became irregular and unimportant. Notwithstanding this rise, the mean temperature of Northern and Central India never recovered wholly from the fall noticed on the 29th, and was at no time during the week above the normal average. On the contrary, Madras was practically unaffected by the weather in Northern India, and the mean temperature, which was $0^{\circ}8$ above the normal on the 28th and 29th, rose to between $2\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ and 3° above during the last three days of the week.

The following gives comparative temperature data for the week :

As was the case at the close of last week, temperatures exceeding 100° have been almost wholly confined to the Deccan, the Central Provinces and Central Burma. The following are the highest temperatures recorded on each day :

March 28th	$103^{\circ}6$ at Nagpur.

Rainfall.—The returns for the week under review show that the present week, like last week, has been one of fairly heavy and general rainfall. The distribution of the rain in the two weeks has also been fairly similar. Thus, rain has again been general over Bengal and Assam, fairly general over the North-West Provinces and the Punjab, scattered and light over the east of the Peninsula and almost altogether absent from North Bombay, the west and centre of the Peninsula and nearly the whole of the central parts of the country. The rainfall over the plains of the Punjab and North-West Provinces, and the snowfall on the hills, were mainly due to the deep depression which lay over that area on the first day of the week, while the rainfall over Bengal and Assam was due to thunderstorms and nor'-westers which commenced on the 29th March and continued during the two succeeding days. During the 1st and 2nd of April only a few trifling showers occurred throughout India, but on the 3rd thunderstorms were again reported fairly generally from Orissa and Lower Bengal. In the east of the Peninsula a few light scattered showers occurred at different times during the week. Perhaps the most marked feature about the precipitation of the week under review was the heavy rain and snow which occurred on the outer ranges of the Himalayas as compared with the amount of rain received on the neighbouring plains. Thus, while the submontane districts of the North-West Provinces and the Punjab received an average actual fall of rain for the week of only about 0·10 inch, the Punjab hills received an average fall of 1·52 inches and the North-West Provinces hills of 1·37 inches.

The rainfall table at the close of the summary shows that thirty of the rainfall divisions received effective rain, while twenty-seven reported actually no rain, or else an average fall for the district of less than one-tenth of an inch for the week. The area of effective rainfall includes the Tenasserim and Arakan divisions of Burma, all the Assam and Bengal divisions, four of the North-West Provinces divisions, four of the Punjab divisions, the most southern divisions of the Peninsula, the east of the Central Provinces and the Baluchistan hills. In all other parts of the country the rainfall of the week has been actually or practically nil. Within the area of effective rainfall the average amount received varies from 2·57 inches in Assam (Surma) and 2·18 inches in Orissa to 0·10 inch in the East Coast (Central) and to 0·15 inch in Malabar. In Assam (Surma) and in Orissa the amount for the week, as noticed above, exceeds two inches, and in Assam (Hills and Brahmaputra), Deltaic Bengal and the hills of the North-West Provinces and of the Punjab it exceeds one inch. These are the largest amounts reported. The average actual rainfall exceeded the normal average of the week in twenty-three of the rainfall divisions, viz., Tenasserim, Arakan, Assam (Brahmaputra), Deltaic and Central Bengal, Orissa, Chota Nagpur, Bihar, the North-West Provinces (East), North Oudh, the North-West Provinces (Submontane West), the North-West Provinces (Hills), the Punjab (Central, Hills, North and West), Madras (South Central), the Central Provinces (East), Sind, Central India (East) and the East Coast (North and South). The only cases of large excess, however, were Orissa and the hill districts of Upper India, the amount of the excess elsewhere being small.

The columns giving the state of the seasonal rainfall show that between the end of February and date the rainfall has been more or less in excess over nearly the whole of North-East India, in the west and north of the Punjab, in the east of the Central Provinces and in Ganjam, while in all other parts of the Indian region it has been in defect. The most marked cases of excess are reported from parts of Burma and of West and South-West Bengal, while the most marked cases of deficiency are reported from North Bombay and the west and centre of the Peninsula.

The following are the principal large totals recorded during the week under review in the different provinces :

Spring rice and indigo are doing well wherever grown, but in parts of Champaran caterpillars have appeared and are doing some injury to the indigo. The mahua (Bassia latifolia) crop in parts of Chota

Nagpur is said to have been considerably damaged by the recent rain. The harvesting of the spring crops is still proceeding in some districts, and that of spring rice is going on in Orissa. Punjab.—For week ending 6th April.—Rain averaging about $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch has fallen in Mooltan and in parts of Sialkot, $\frac{4}{8}$ in Gujrat and Rawalpindi, $\frac{1}{2}$ in Gujranwala, $\frac{1}{2}$ in Peshawar, and $\frac{1}{2}$ in Dera Ismail Khan; there has also been a slight drizzle in Shahpur and in parts of Karnal and Ferozepore. Weather remains cloudy in Gurgaon. The rain following on the general fall last week has been very beneficial to the crops in the northern half of the Province which are later than usual this year. Sowings of extra spring crops as well as of cotton and sugarcane are in progress in certain districts; ploughings for other autumn crops have also commenced. Harvesting of spring crops such as barley and rapeseed has commenced in Gurgaon, Karnal, Delhi, Umballa, Lahore, Amritsar, and Ferozepur. Irrigated crops are generally in fair or good condition. Those sown on unirrigated lands are average and on dry lands fair or poor. Prospects are said to be below average in the Delhi Division and the southern districts generally, but are promising in the Central and Northern Punjab, where recent rains have much improved them. Imports meet requirements in Hissar and Delhi, where the stocks of food-grain have been totally exhausted; they have also been exhausted in Umballa and in parts of Ferozepore. Stocks are said to have been reduced in Rohtak, Jullundur, and Gujranwala, and are average in Peshawar; they are also insufficient with the cultivators of Lahore and Amritsar. Crops have suffered from strong westerly winds in Rohtak and Umballa and also from insufficiency of canal water in the former; crops have been damaged by hail in parts of Lahore and Peshawar; they have also been injured by duststorms in parts of Ferozepore. Smut has appeared on the wheat in some of the central districts, but its progress has been checked by recent rains. Cattle are generally in poor condition from want of fodder and are dying of starvation in Hissar and Rohtak, but dry fodder will soon be generally available. Fodder is said to be scarce in all districts except Peshawar; new fodder is available in Gurgaon; barley straw is now being brought in to Gujranwala. The average number of relief workers, dependants, etc., was as follows:—Relief workers—29,482 men, 26,692 women, 12,707 children; Dependants—889 men, 1,676 women, 15,351 children; Relieved in poor-houses—629 men, 651 women, 428 children; Otherwise relieved—3,035 men, 5,038 women, 5,533 children; Test workers—271 men, 125 women, 104 children. The total number of workers, etc., in the Punjab was 102,611 against 114,609 last week. The decrease has been spread over all districts and is due to improved prospects in the north of the Province and to the demand for labour for harvest purposes in the south. Prices are generally high; they are rising in Hissar, Delhi, Amritsar and Dera Ismail Khan; falling in Rohtak, Umballa, Jullundur, Lahore, Sialkot, Shahpur and Peshawar. The figures are unchanged in other districts. Wheat is selling from $7\frac{3}{8}$ to 10 seers, great millet $9\frac{1}{2}$ to $10\frac{1}{2}$, gram $9\frac{1}{2}$ to 11, bulrush millet $8\frac{1}{2}$ to 10, and maize $8\frac{1}{4}$ to 11 seers per rupee. The general tendency is to fall as prospects have been improved by the rains and new barley is coming into the market. Prices of staple food-grain on which the famine wage is reckoned are:—Rohtak, barley 11 and gram 10 seers; Delhi, bulrush millet $8\frac{1}{4}$; Umballa, maize 10; and Ludhiana 11; Ferozepore, gram and great millet $9\frac{3}{4}$; Lahore, wheat 9 and indian-corn 9 to $10\frac{1}{2}$; and Gujrat, maize flour 9 seers per rupee.

Rainfall—Bilaspur 3 inches, Chanda $1\frac{1}{2}$, Sambalpur 1, with lighter falls in 6 districts. Nights are singularly cool. Harvesting practically completed. Land being prepared for autumn sowings; operations facilitated by the showers. Mahua (Bassia latifolia) somewhat damaged by clouds and rain in Damoh, Seoni, Bhandara, Balaghat, and Raipur. Prospects of this crop is fair to good in Saugor, Nimar, Wardha, and Betul. Fodder insufficient in parts of Saugor, Hoshangabad, Seoni, Wardha, Chanda, and Sambalpur. Some difficulty as to water-supply in Saugor, Wardha, Chanda and Chhindwara. Prices are generally steady, but juar (Sorghum vulgare) shows a tendency to rise. There has been a total increase of 50,000 in relief workers which has occurred principally in Jubbulpore, Narsinghpore, Balaghat and the Chhattisgarh districts; the increase of 21,000 in numbers receiving gratuitous relief is due partly to more accurate enumeration in Damoh, but numbers have risen in Jubbulpore and Balaghat. Report of a Departmental Committee on the prevalence of Venereal Disease among the British Troops in India.

The Committee have examined the official returns of venereal disease among British Troops stationed in India, with a view to ascertaining what changes, if any, have taken place in recent years in the prevalence of such disease, and in its character and intensity.

2. Nature of the Returns.—The returns are contained in the Annual Reports of the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India, and of the Sanitary Commissioners, Madras and Bombay;¹ and in the tables appended thereto. They include, for the years 1852-53 to 1856-57, a record of the ratios of admission for venereal diseases in the Bengal Army only, unaccompanied, however, by any detailed figures; for the years 1858 and 1859, tables showing the average strength, total numbers of cases, and ratios of admission for venereal diseases, for each month and for the whole year, in the Bengal Army and each division of it; for the years 1860 to 1871, similar tables, besides others (the annual regimental returns and summaries of them) showing in detail the numbers of cases of each class of venereal disease for the whole year; from 1871 onwards, similar tables for the whole of India. For the Madras Army tolerably detailed figures are available from 1860, and for the Bombay Army from 1865. They show results not differing materially from those given by the Bengal returns for the corresponding years; but not being compiled on a uniform basis with the latter, they do not admit of exact comparison. The Committee will therefore base their observations on the Bengal returns down to 1871; after that year, on the figures for the whole of India.

3. Discrepancies in the Returns, their extent defined.—The total admissions, and ratios of admission, for venereal diseases, are somewhat variously stated in the official returns for the years prior to 1889. Any discrepancy shown in those returns is, however, almost entirely confined to the figures contained in Column V (Other Venereal Diseases) of the table² (II) printed on pages 18 and 19, and the totals in Column VI., so far as affected by those in Column V., which latter amount to a fraction averaging only about one-seventh of the totals. Hardly any discrepancy of statement is found for the whole period under review as to the amount of primary syphilis, secondary syphilis, and gonorrhœa; no discrepancy of any consequence is found after 1885, and none at all after 1888. The returns under the first and last of these three headings are affected, for purposes of comparison, by changes³ of classification and nomenclature; but the figures themselves, for all three, as shown in tables I. and II., may be considered as perfectly reliable for the whole period from 1860 onwards.

4. Greater accuracy in the Returns after 1887.—Some of the headings⁴ comprised under "Other Venereal Diseases" (Column V.), however, undoubtedly admitted of the inclusion of non-venereal cases. To remedy this, orders were issued in October 1887 that only those cases should be included which were stated by the returning

² The figures in that table are taken from the detailed annual returns for each year and the summaries.

medical officers to be of venereal origin. The amount of venereal disease under such headings, and consequently the total amount, may therefore be considered to have been more accurately given in the returns since 1887 than in previous ones; and this must be borne in mind in comparing the figures for the year since 1887 with those of previous years.

The facts disclosed by the official returns may now be stated as follows:—

5. Historical Survey.—A great increase in the prevalence of venereal disease was recorded in the years immediately following the outbreak of the Mutiny, 1858—1861.¹ This increase has been attributed to the large influx of new and inexperienced troops into India during those years, the extent of which may be gathered from the fact that between the outbreak of the Mutiny in 1857 and the summer of 1859 the strength of the British troops in Bengal was nearly trebled, i.e., it rose from 21,288 to 60,977.⁴ In April 1858, more than 16 per cent. of the troops were estimated to be under 20 years of age. By 1864 the percentage had fallen to 2·42.⁵ The subject was considered by the Royal Commission on the sanitary state of the Army in India⁶; and their recommendations led to the establishment of the lock hospital system. Lock hospitals began to be opened in 1865; the system was gradually extended down to 1872, remained in full force down to 1884, was partially suspended from 1st January 1885 to the spring of 1887, and totally abolished in the latter half of 1888; so that 1884 was the last year in which it was in full operation.

From 1861 there was a steady and marked decline in the admission rate for venereal diseases until 1867, when it reached the lowest figure (160·2 per 1,000) recorded in the period under review. From 1867 it moved irregularly, but with an upward tendency, until 1873 (181·7 per 1,000), afterwards more rapidly upwards until 1884 (293·5 per 1,000). Between 1867 and 1884, however, secondary syphilis, the worst form of venereal disease, showed practically no increase. The admission rate for this, which was 23·7 per 1,000 in 1857, and 24·4 in 1834, fluctuated in the interval between a maximum of 25·4 in 1868 and a minimum of 20·4 in 1873, with a mean of 23·5 for the whole period. In the years 1885 and 1886 there was a general and serious increase in all forms of venereal disease, followed by some diminution in 1887. From the year 1888 to 1890^{*} the rise was alarming, the admission rate in 1890 exceeding 50 per cent. of the strength. (See tables I. and II., and chart, pages 17 to 20.)

6. Influences of the Short Service System.—It was chiefly in the years 1873 to 1886, and especially after 1875, that the influences commonly associated with the short service system were making themselves felt. These were (1) an increase in the annual arrivals of new troops, fresh to the country and peculiarly exposed to the dangers of association with the native women; (2) greater youthfulness of the troops; (3) larger proportion of unmarried men. The change for the worse in all these respects really dated from the outbreak of the Mutiny. It has been shown in paragraph 5 how the enormous influx of new troops following that event influenced the composition of the Army of Bengal, as regards age and length of service, and

Returns for a series of years (1867-72) showed that the percentage of admissions for venereal disease among married soldiers was only one-fiftieth of the percentage among the unmarried. The effect of an increase in the proportion of unmarried to married men from 89 to 96 per cent., such as occurred between 1874 and 1878, what a marked increase of venereal disease followed these changes. The suppression of the Mutiny was followed by a return to a more normal state of things; but the conditions previously existing under the East India Company's rule, when service in the Queen's troops was exceedingly long, and in the Company's troops, forming $\frac{2}{3}$ ths of the whole garrison, was practically lifelong, with 30 per cent. married,¹ were never entirely restored; and the introduction of the short service system² completed the changes which the events of the Mutiny and the transfer of India to the Crown had partly initiated. The influences traceable to the short service system appear, however, to have almost reached their full development by the year 1887. (See table III on page 21).

7. Abolition of Lock Hospital System: Cantonment Acts of 1889 and 1895.—On the 5th June 1888, a Resolution was passed by the House of Commons "that, in the opinion of this House, any mere suspension of measures for the compulsory examination of women, and for licensing and regulating prostitution in India, is insufficient, and the legislation which enjoins, authorises, or permits such measures ought to be repealed," and on 26th July following explicit orders were issued by the Government of India, under instructions from the Secretary of State, with a view to putting an end to all such practices. With the same object a new Cantonment Act was passed in 1889, authorising the Governor General in Council to make rules to provide for the "prevention of the spread of infectious and contagious disorders within a cantonment, and the appointment and regulation of hospitals and other places within or without a cantonment for the reception and treatment of persons suffering from any disease." This Act took effect from 1st January 1890. Rules³ under it were published 4th July 1890, and cantonment hospitals, as authorised by those rules, were established in the latter part of the year. In the year 1892, instructions⁴ were issued by the Government of India with a view to securing the strict observance of these Cantonment Rules and of the Resolution of the House of Commons of 5th June 1888. The system maintained under these rules was, however, condemned by the majority report⁵ of a Committee presided over by Mr. G. Russell, M.P., and instructions were telegraphed⁶ to the Viceroy by the Secretary of State on 20th September 1893, resulting, after considerable correspondence, in the passing of an amending Act⁷ which prohibited the compulsory or periodical examination of women, and rules which excluded venereal disease from those diseases sufferers from which if refractory may be removed from cantonments. Powers are conferred on the Government of India by Section 26 (23) of the Cantonment Act, 1889, above referred to, to make rules providing for the "removal and exclusion from a cantonment of persons whom the commanding officer deems it expedient to exclude from the cantonment, with or without assigning any rise was rapid and continuous, reaching in 1895 the highest figure yet recorded, 522·3 per 1,000 strength, or 536·8 per 1,000 of troops in cantonments only, i.e., excluding troops on field service in Chitral and Waziristan. (See Military Despatch from Government of India, No. 184, of 4th November 1896, printed as Appendix I.) The prevalence of the disease varies greatly in different stations, and at different times; and it is found to decrease materially when, owing to outbreaks of smallpox or cholera, bazars or cities in the neighbourhood of cantonments are temporarily placed out of bounds.

recent years has been the disproportionately great increase in the amount of primary and secondary syphilis. The latter, as we have seen, showed no very serious increase from the years of its lowest prevalence† down to 1884. In the two following years it increased rapidly, but it diminished in 1887. The figures of primary syphilis cannot be given for the years prior to 1887, as it was not differentiated from the non-syphilitic sore until 1886, and only partially in that year (see note 3 on page 5). The figures of secondary syphilis may, however, be taken as a fair measure of the virulence of the disease generally. From 1887 onwards we are able to show clearly the changes which have taken place in the prevalence of syphilis both primary and secondary, with the following truly alarming results:— In the nine years 1887-95, while non-paragraph 4, and note 1 on page 6 as to the effect of a stricter method of classification on a portion of these figures), the admission rate for primary syphilis has risen 130 per cent. (i.e., from 75·5 to 174·1 cases per 1,000 men), and that for secondary syphilis no less than 188 per cent. (i.e., from 29·4 to 84·9 cases per 1,000 men).|| The rise was not indeed continuous, a temporary but marked improvement being shown in 1891 and 1892, but the latest figures are the worst yet recorded. Secondary syphilis was more than four times as prevalent in 1895 as it was in 1873.

10. Greater virulence of the disease.—Greater virulence of the disease is further attested by a longer average duration of treatment, and by an increase in the numbers of invalidings and deaths to venereal disease,

11. In 1895, an average of 45 men per 1,000, or 3,200¹ in a force of 71,031 British soldiers in India, were constantly in hospital for venereal disease. But these figures by no means represent the total amount of inefficiency due to this cause.² Many cases of secondary syphilis have in the last few years been treated by hypodermic injection of mercury, without admission to hospital, and do not, therefore, figure in the returns. A large number of men who are nominally cured are only fit for service under peace conditions, and would break down on field service. Among 5,822 men detailed for field service with the Chitral Relief Force, 462, or nearly 8 per cent., had to be rejected for venereal disease; 279 more, or an additional 4½ per cent., had to be transferred from the field hospitals to the base for the same cause. In the great majority of these cases the disease had been contracted before the men crossed the frontier. On a basis of 8 per cent. rejected before starting on field service, and 4½ per cent. more subsequently invalided for disease contracted before crossing the frontier, 8,880 men out of a total force of 71,031 would have to be put down as useless, from this one cause, for field operations.

12. Further, a great amount of sickness and inefficiency not coming under the head of venereal disease (e.g., many cases of rheumatism, dysentery, heart-disease, etc.), is well known³ to be attributable to, or aggravated by, the specific disease.

The increase of this latter is the more striking when contrasted with the improvement* in the general health of the troops in India which has been progressing ever since the mutiny, and which would assuredly have been greater in recent years but for the growing influence of venereal disease in predisposing to, and aggravating, so many other complaints. Improved sanitation has had the very greatest effect upon every disease other than venereal; this alone has not only been unchecked in recent years, but has increased to an extent which is appalling and disastrous.

13. The state of Netley Hospital.—The Committee paid a visit to the military hospital at Netley, where all cases invalided home from India are sent for treatment

¹ As will be clearly seen from the ratios in the marginal table to paragraph 12, the numbers of men admitted for any disease are not identical with the numbers of admissions. Some men are admitted more than once in the year. In the case of venereal disease, it appears from figures supplied by the Principal Medical Officer in India, that the number of men admitted in 1895 was rather more than three-fourths of the number of cases, i.e., admissions. (But see note 1 on page 385). The number constantly sick is correctly arrived at by multiplying the number of cases for the year by the average duration of a case in days, thus, 37,096 × 31'49 ÷ 365 = 3,200.

³ This is clearly shewn by the medical history sheets of many of the invalids at Netley (see Appendix III).

They visited the wards of the hospital and found 263 cases, of which not less than 196, or 74 per cent., had a history of syphilis. Ninety-four had been invalided home, mostly from India, for that disease; 108 were actually under treatment for it. The officers in charge of the hospital having the longest experience at Netley declared that never had so many cases of secondary syphilis, or of so virulent a type, been sent home as during the last five years. Of the total discharged during the past four months 148 were so discharged after suffering from this disease; of these 59 were unfit for further service; while in the case of the remaining 89, there was every probability that the disease, or its sequelæ, would re-appear.

It must not be forgotten that these are all young men¹, not much more than lads, who upon entering the service were medically examined, and would have been rejected had they then shown any symptoms of constitutional taint.

During their short term of military service a great part (in some cases more than half) of their time has been spent in hospital, either in India or at home. Before reaching the age of 25 years these young men have come home presenting a most shocking appearance; some lay there having obviously but a short time to live;² others were unrecognisable from disfigurement by reason of the destruction of their features, or had lost their palates, their eyesight or their sense of hearing; others again were in a state of extreme emaciation, their joints distorted and diseased. Not a few are time-expired, but cannot be discharged in their present condition, incapacitated as they are to earn their livelihood, and in a condition so repulsive that they could not mix with their fellow men. Their friends and relatives refuse to receive them, and it is inexpedient to discharge them only to seek the asylum of the poor-house; so they remain at Netley in increasing numbers, which, as matters now are, seem likely to continue to increase.

14. The Committee desire to call attention to the Medical Report,* dated 21st August 1896, by Surgeon-Major H. R. Whitehead, lately in charge of the Surgical Division at Netley, on the cases of syphilis arriving from India.

One of the professors, having a large experience of Continental hospitals, informed us that nowhere on the Continent could such sights be witnessed as are to be seen in the syphilis wards at Netley, now known among the officers there as the "Inferno."

An examination of the medical history of the cases which, for all causes, come to Netley, reveals the fact that the numbers entered as venereal do not by any means exhaust those which find their way to Netley in consequence of having contracted diseases of that class.³

Seventy-four per cent. of the whole have at some time during their short military career contracted syphilis; and there can be little doubt that most of them would never have been sent to Netley at all had it not been for the previous influence of venereal disease.

Deaths directly attributable to this cause bear but a small relation to the numbers in hospital, but that life is seriously shortened by it, as well as rendered miserable, in numbers of cases, is beyond a doubt.

15. Influence on the health of the population at home.—Some of its victims are completely crippled, while the danger exists, in the case of each of them who may afterwards marry, that he may transmit to his wife and children a loathsome and horrible complaint. This danger is not indeed confined to the Netley invalids, but extends to a far larger and increasing number of men who annually come home with the seeds of constitutional disease in their system.

More than 13,000⁴ British soldiers annually leave India, most of whom are eventually absorbed among the civil population at home. How large a proportion of these bring home the seeds of communicable and inheritable disease may to some extent be estimated from the following figures. It was ascertained⁵ that of 70,642 British soldiers serving in India on the 15th July 1894, 19,892,¹ or 28 per cent., had been admitted to hospital for syphilis since arrival in India. Only 26,247 men, or 37 per cent., had never suffered, in or out of India, from any form of venereal disease. And all the evidence we have points to the existence of a still worse state of things since that date. Less than 4 per cent. of these men are married. It is to be feared that a considerable number who have contracted disease marry afterwards, and are liable to transmit it to their wives and children. Nor is intercourse between the sexes the only means by which syphilis can be communicated. Doctors contract it in the performance of their duties. It may be caught through drinking out of a cup, or smoking a pipe, which has been touched by diseased lips; nurses can communicate it to infants, and infants to nurses. It is altogether a most easily communicable poison. The present condition of the Army in India, with the enormous prevalence of venereal disease which has been shown to exist, yearly sending home thousands of men infected with constitutional taint, is therefore a great and growing source of danger to the whole community. The influence which it is liable to exercise upon the health of the home population is one of the gravest aspects of the whole question.

² Two cases are thus described in a return furnished by the P. M. O. at Netley: "Dying from syphilitic ulceration of the bones." "Dying of syphilis: ulceration of bones."

16. Comparison of Foreign Armies.—The Committee have been supplied with a considerable amount of information, from official sources, as to the presence of venereal disease, its character and intensity, in foreign armies. This is shown in detail in Tables IV—VI.

The following table shows the ratio of admission per 1,000 strength, for all forms of venereal disease, in the principal European armies, besides those of Japan and the United States, for the years 1890, 1891, and 1892. The corresponding ratios for the British troops in the United Kingdom and in India are added for comparison:—

* In the case of Germany, the years are 1889-90, 1890-91, 1891-92.

Among European armies, Germany has far the lowest rate, Russia and France come next, then Austria-Hungary, then the Home Army of Holland, then Italy. No continental army included in the above comparison has so high a rate as that shown by the United States Army, and there, moreover, the actual prevalence of venereal disease is stated to be considerably greater than the returns indicate. The small amount of this disease in the army of Japan is noticeable.

17. In all the above armies, with the exception of that of the United States, some special regulations are in force for preventing the spread of venereal disease. These generally consist of (1) weekly or fortnightly examination of men for the detection of the disease, non-commissioned officers and married men being in some cases exempted; (2) registration and periodical examination of all women ascertained to be leading a life of prostitution.

In the Italian army regulations of this latter kind were relaxed in 1888, but re-established with modifications in 1891.²

² Decree published in the official Gazette, 29th October 1891.

18. In the case of most of the above armies, the comparison may be carried into further detail, as follows:—

	MEAN ANNUAL ADMISSION RATE PER 1,000, FOR 3 YEARS, 1890-92.
	Germany.	France.	Russia.	Italy.	DUTCH TROOPS.		BRITISH TROOPS.

TOTAL . . .	27.3	43.9	43	71.3	69.8	455.6	203.6	438

In these years, then, the German Army had scarcely more than $\frac{1}{3}$ nd, and no European army had as much as $\frac{1}{11}$ th, the amount of syphilis which devastated the British troops in India. The Dutch troops in the East Indies, with an exceedingly high rate of venereal disease generally, did not suffer from syphilis one-third as much as our Army in India. And there, as we have seen, the rate has risen rapidly* since the period included in the above comparison, while in the Dutch East Indies it has materially declined.

The comparative immunity from venereal disease enjoyed by the German troops is no doubt partly attributable to their being quartered entirely at home. It seems to be a universal rule that troops quartered among an alien but not entirely hostile population suffer worse¹ in this respect than troops stationed at home. Thus the French troops in Algiers suffer worse than those in France.² (See Table V.) In the Austro-Hungarian Army a large increase of venereal disease followed the occupation of Bosnia-Herzegovina in 1878.

19. The great prevalence of this evil among the Dutch troops in the East Indies has already been noticed. There, however, the difference between the admission rates for Europeans and for Asiatics is far less marked than in our Indian Army, as the following figures will show:—

² And in India, it is noticed that "Gurkhas being foreigners have higher ratios than other Native troops." (Enclosure to Military Letter from India, No. 19 of 1891.)

In the Dutch East Indies, Asiatic troops suffer from all venereal diseases more than one half as much, and from syphilis more than one-fourth as much, as Europeans. In our own Indian Army the Native troops do not suffer from venereal diseases one-twelfth as much, nor from syphilis one-eleventh as much, as the British troops. It seems that in India caste feeling helps to deter the native soldier from consorting with the lowest and most dangerous class of prostitutes. But there are many other reasons for his comparative immunity from disease.

20. Summary.—The present situation may be summed up as follows :—In 1895, venereal disease attacked the British troops in India to an unprecedented extent. The amount of syphilis was disproportionately great, and it was of an increasingly virulent type.¹ Of the enormous total of 522² venereal cases per 1,000 troops, syphilis contributed very nearly one-half, i.e., 259 cases per 1,000—a figure many times greater than the highest of which we can find any record in the statistics of continental armies for recent years, either at home or abroad. Venereal disease directly caused more than one-third of the total amount of sickness, 15 deaths in India, 348 invalidings, resulting in 130 cases in final discharge from the service; the constant and total disablement of 3,200 men out of a force of 71,000 men, and a vast amount of partial disablement³ and unfitness for any but routine duties. Indirectly, it increased the amount of sickness and invaliding under the head of many other complaints.⁴ The military efficiency of the army was most seriously impaired, and the increasing prevalence and intensity of contagious and inheritable disease among a body of 71,000 men, of whom many thousands are annually coming home to mingle with the civil population, was a growing danger⁵ to the health of the community.

This deplorable state of things does not appear to be attributable to increased immorality in the Army. Drunkenness and crime have greatly diminished.⁷ The attention of successive Commanders-in-Chief in India, and of none more than Lord Roberts, has been given to the provision and improvement of recreation rooms, libraries, regimental workshops, etc., to the encouragement of cleanliness and, so far as the climate admits, of active exercise and sports.⁸ Much also has been done by societies, such as the Army Temperance Association (which is aided by a Government grant of Rs. 8,000 per annum) and the Army Health Association, towards encouraging self-control among the soldiers. In a Despatch dated 4th November 1896, which is printed as Appendix I to this Report, the Government of India state that they ² See extracts from Medical Officers' reports, quoted in Army Medical Department Report for 1895, page 125 :—"The syphilitic cases were of a most virulent type, and in most instances the health of those attacked was markedly impaired." "The course of many acute diseases was materially directed by syphilis." "The type of the disease appears to have increased in severity." "The type of syphilitic affections appears to be getting worse." See also paragraphs 10 above.

³ See paragraph 8.

⁵ See the last note, also paragraphs 12 and 14 above.

have been careful to adopt such means as lie in their power to protect the British soldiers from temptation likely to lead to the contraction of venereal disease; but they express their strong conviction that without some fresh powers, no instructions or regulations can have any material effect in mitigating this scourge. The short service system does not appear to be responsible for any increased tendency to sexual indulgence, during the last few years (see paragraph 6 and Table III.). The hard fact remains that among a body of men, mostly very young, and nearly all obliged by the conditions of the service to remain unmarried, removed from home ties and restraints into a country where climate and environments conduce to sexual indulgence, comparatively few are able to control the strongest passion in human nature, with the disastrous consequences, under present conditions, which the preceding paragraphs have described.

The Committee desire to express their appreciation of the services rendered to them by Mr. F. W. Newmarch, the Secretary to the Committee who has bestowed much time and care on the preparation of the several tables of statistics, and chart, necessary to a proper appreciation of available statistics.

* Column V includes, down to 1885, all cases of Bubo and inflammation of the inguinal gland; (sometimes not shown separately in the returns), Phimosis, Warts and condyloma, Gonorrhoeal orchitis, Stricture of the urethra. From 1886 the nomenclature and classification was slightly different. From 1888, only those cases were included which were stated by the returning medical officers to be of venereal origin.

† The figures for 1870, except as regards Secondary syphilis and Gonorrhoea, hardly admit of comparison with those of other years. "Venereal sore" is separated from "Primary syphilis," and included under one heading with "Bubo," (in Column V). Gonorrhoeal and Non-gonorrhoeal orchitis are not distinguished, and accordingly all cases of Orchitis have been excluded from Column V. If they were included, the totals in Columns V and VI would be increased by 636 cases, and the ratios by 19 per 1,000.

APPENDICES.

APPENDIX No. I.

Military Despatch from the Government of India, to the Secretary of State for India, No. 184, dated Simla, 4th November 1896.

My Lord,

We have on several occasions addressed Your Lordship regarding the prevalence of venereal disease among the British troops in India, and we now forward the latest statistics relative to the effects of this scourge, as well as a brief historical statement showing the measures adopted since 1885 in connection with venereal disease.

2. It will be seen from the statistical tables which accompany this Despatch that whereas in the decennial period 1876—85, the rate of sick from this cause was only 258 per mille per annum, in the following decennial period it had risen to 443, while in 1895 the ratio had reached 522·3 per mille. In other words, the annual admissions into hospital on this account now exceed in number more than half the total strength of British troops in the country. We would add that the present ratio includes troops on field service who are less exposed to contagion than those in cantonments. The ratio of admissions of troops in cantonments in 1895 amounted to 536·8 per mille.

3. The growth of the disease and its dangerous effect on the strength and efficiency of the British Army in India is incontestible. The statement of measures attached shows that in 1885 a number of lock hospitals were closed, that in subsequent years all restrictive measures were gradually removed and an increase in sickness took place during the decade 1886—95. In 1884 the ratio was 293·9 per mille, by 1895 it had increased to 536·8 per mille, for troops in cantonments.

4. A point to which we would draw attention is that, while the ratio for British troops has more than doubled since 1881, among Native troops there has been no appreciable increase. The ratio for Native troops during the period 1877—85 was 33·2 per mille, and during the following decade it was 34·7. An inference which we think can be legitimately drawn from this fact is that venereal disease has not increased to any remarkable extent among the loose women of the country generally, but that among the class of women with whom the British soldier associates there has been an increase out of all proportion to their numbers. From this inference the further deduction may be drawn that the increase among the particular class of women concerned is due to the operation of causes which do not affect the general population and which may therefore be preventible. We should be glad to see an independent enquiry set on foot to establish, or controvert, the connection between the increase of venereal disease among the class of women referred to, and consequently among the soldiers who consort with them, and the abolition from time to time of the restrictive and protective measures which formerly existed.

5. We have been careful to adopt such means as lie in our power to protect British soldiers in India from temptation likely to lead to the contraction of venereal disease, the last of these being rules under the Cantonments Act for the prevention of loitering and importuning by loose women, or their male associates, in cantonments; but we desire to express our strong conviction that, without some fresh powers, no instructions or regulations can have any material effect in mitigating the scourge of venereal disease.

We have the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordships most obedient, humble Servants,

(Signed) ELGIN.

* It may be noted that in 1888 the compulsory examination of prostitutes in Italy was abandoned. In the year previous to this, the rate was only 42.5 which accords well with the ratios in other European Armies. In 1891 in consequence of the large increase in disease which had taken place, registration and examination were again resorted to.

ENCLOSURE No. 10.

Statement showing the measures taken and Orders issued consequent on the Resolution of the House of Commons of the 5th June, 1888.

1. Previous to 1885, at nearly all military stations of any importance, "Lock Hospitals" had been established for the treatment of women suffering from venereal diseases. Such women were dealt with under the provisions of the rules framed under the following Acts:—

Bengal Act XXII of 1864 (reproduced in Act III of 1880).

Bombay Act III of 1867.

Madras Act I of 1866.

Under these rules all prostitutes living in cantonments were registered and subject to medical examination. In many cases special quarters were allotted for them in regimental or cantonment bazaars, and women evading the rules were subject to ejection from cantonments.

1885. 2. Owing to the unsatisfactory reports on the working of the lock hospitals in military cantonments, the Government of India decided that a certain number of lock hospitals should be closed, in view to a comparison being made of the results at those stations and at protected stations. Orders were accordingly issued to close the lock hospitals at certain stations, with effect from 1st January 1885, viz., Chakrata, Murree, Kasauli, Meerut, Allahabad, Pindi, Peshawar, Mian Mir, Delhi, Cawnpore.
1887. 3. The results obtained by the experiment appeared at the time to point to the conclusion that there had been a marked and progressive increase of venereal disease among the soldiers at the stations where the lock hospitals had been closed, and that the percentage of disease compared most unfavourably with the percentage at the stations where these institutions had been maintained; the Governor General in Council accordingly directed the re-opening of the hospitals in question.
1888. 4. On the 5th June 1888, however, the following Resolution was passed in the House of Commons:—
 “Resolved, that in the opinion of this House, any mere suspension of measures for the compulsory examination of women, and for licensing and regulating prostitution in India, is insufficient, and the legislation which enjoins, authorises, or permits such measures ought to be repealed.”
 And in a Despatch, dated 14th June 1888, No. 136, (Military), the Secretary of State for India directed that it should receive at the hands of the Governor General in Council the careful consideration which a Resolution of the House of Commons deserved.
 In compliance with this Despatch, the Governor General in Council issued explicit orders, dated 26th July 1888, with a view to putting an end to any practices which involved the licensing or registration of prostitutes, or the compulsory examination of women in cantonments.
1889. 5. In 1889 the new Cantonments Act (XIII of 1889) was passed, by which the Governor General in Council was authorised to make rules to provide for “the prevention of the spread of infectious and contagious disorders within a cantonment, and the appointment and regulation of hospitals or other places within or without a cantonment for the reception and treatment of persons suffering from any disease.”
1890. The precise nature of these rules was the subject of discussion between the Secretary of State and the Government of India, and on the 4th July 1890 the Governor General in Council duly made and published certain rules under the Act, providing amongst other things for the creation of such general hospitals as might be necessary in cantonments for the reception and treatment of persons suffering from any diseases, including infectious or contagious diseases, within the cantonment. These hospitals were designated “Cantonment Hospitals,” and certain rules were laid down for their management, etc.
- 1891 to 1893. 6. Towards the end of 1891, Dr. Rice, then Surgeon-General with the Government of India, expressed his opinion that the cantonment hospitals were conducted too much on the lines of the old lock hospitals, and were unlikely to fulfil the purpose for which they were created. He proposed the establishment in every cantonment of a hospital for the treatment of sick natives of all classes residing within the limit of the cantonment who are not enlisted soldiers. The Government of India approved this proposal, and Dr. Rice was deputed to visit certain stations in the Bengal Presidency in connection with the establishment of these new “Cantonment General Hospitals,” as it was decided to call them. The result of his inspection was that Cantonment General Hospitals were established at Lucknow, Umballa, Rawal Pindi, Bareilly, Peshawar, Allahabad, Jubbulpore, Meeran Meer, Meerut, Agra, Quetta, Dinapore, Fyzabad, Sitapore, Cawnpore, Mooltan, Ferozepore, Nowshera, and Sialkot. Proposals were also received for the establishment of similar hospitals in the Madras and Bombay Presidencies, but owing to want of funds no action was taken thereon. From the foregoing it will be seen that there now were two classes of hospitals (a) the "Cantonment Hospitals" established under the orders of 1890, and (b) the new Cantonment General Hospitals started by Dr. Rice.

7. In March 1894 the Commander-in-Chief pointed out that the results obtained by the establishment of Cantonment and Cantonment General Hospitals had not been satisfactory, inasmuch as these institutions had failed to attract the classes for whose treatment they were primarily started. His Excellency therefore inquired whether the policy of the Government of India in regard to the maintenance of these hospitals was likely to be modified. The Government of India concurred generally in the Commander-in-Chief's views, and directed that no expansion should occur in the expenditure on these hospitals, pending further consideration of certain points in connection with their future maintenance. In the meantime sanction was given to close the following hospitals as not fulfilling the object for which they were established, viz., Dinapore, Fatehgarh, Malapuram, Thayetmyo, Pachmari, Darjeeling, Barrackpore, Saugor, Mhow, Neemuch and Nusserabad. 1894.

8. It may here be remarked that, notwithstanding the instructions which were issued from time to time in consonance with the orders of 1888, it was found that the practices which had been condemned by the Resolution of the House of Commons, and which had been prohibited by the orders of the Governor General in Council, had not been wholly discontinued in some cantonments, and in a Despatch dated 1st March 1894, No. 26, the Secretary of State for India intimated that the only effective method of preventing a recurrence of such practices was by means of legislation; accordingly an Act for this purpose was passed by the Governor General in Council on 7th February 1895, providing that no rule made under the Cantonments Act of "1889 shall contain any regulation enjoining or permitting any compulsory or "periodical examination of any woman by medical officers or others for the purpose "of ascertaining whether she is or is not suffering from any venereal disease, or is or "is not fit for prostitution." Similarly, it was provided "that no rule shall contain "any regulation for the licensing or special registration of prostitutes, or for giving "legal sanction to the practice of prostitution in any cantonment." This necessitated a revision of the 1890 cantonment rules, and a fresh set of rules were therefore drawn up and published for General information in G. G. Os. 1895.

Lastly, to avoid the possibility of any future misconception of orders, a resolution explaining the policy of the new Act and rules, and prohibiting all practices, as distinguished from rules and regulations, inconsistent with that policy, was issued by the Governor General in Council on the 25th April 1895.

9. In January 1895, the Quartermaster-General submitted revised proposals for the medical treatment of Government followers and the Native civil population of cantonments, the principles on which these proposals were based being:— 1895-96.

- (a) That where feasible the native population should resort as formerly to civil dispensaries, grants being made to those institutions by cantonment funds wherever necessary;
- (b) That hospitals for the in-door treatment of followers and others should only be provided in a few instances where absolutely necessary, but that in such cases the hospital should be designated a "station followers' hospital," the term "cantonment" or "cantonment general" hospital being open to objection having regard to past associations;
- (c) That where (a) is not feasible or (b) unnecessary, the present cantonment hospital should be converted into an out-door dispensary.

As, however, the question of transferring the direction of cantonment funds to Lieutenant-Generals Commanding was then under discussion, it was decided to take no action, for the time being, with regard to the above proposals. Shortly after Government sanctioned the closure of the hospitals at Cannanore, Solon, Wellington, Poona, Kirkee, Ahmednagar, Deesa, Ahmedabad, Aden, Karachi, Hyderabad, Kamptee, and Dharmasala.

10. The question of the future policy to be pursued with regard to these hospitals having been again re-opened by the Commander-in-Chief, it was decided, after much discussion, to accept the principles advocated by His Excellency in January 1895, and orders were issued accordingly, a report also being made to the Secretary of State. Agreeably to the policy which it had been decided to adopt, sanction was given for the closure of the hospitals at Benares, Cawnpore, Chakrata, Landour, Muttra, Naini Tal, Ranikhet, Roorkee, Dum Dum, Fyzabad, Ferozepore, Multan, Jhansi, Nowgong, Nowshera, Saugor, Shahjehanpore, Sitapur, Jullundur, Jutogh, Kasauli, Amritsar, Dalhousie, Dagshai, Subathu, Campbellpore, Cherat, Sialkot, Bangalore, Bellary, Belgaum, Mandalay, and Trimulgherry, and the establishment of out-door dispensaries at the following places:—

Multan, Dum Dum, Fyzabad, Jhansi, Saugor, Shahjehanpore, Sitapur, Dagshai, Subathu, Campbellpore, Cherat, Sialkot, and Trimulgherry.

11. This brings the history of these hospitals up to the present time, leaving only 13 "Station Followers' Hospitals" (the designation substituted for the old Cantonment and Cantonment General Hospitals) now in existence, viz., those at Agra, Allahabad, Calicut, Deolali, Jubbulpore, Lucknow, Meean Meer, Meerut, Peshawar, Rawal Pindi, Secunderabad, St. Thomas' Mount, and Umballa.

12. The advisability of taking stricter measures to prevent solicitation in cantonments, especially with a view to the suppression of loitering and importuning in the vicinity of barracks, having attracted the attention of the Governor General in Council, rules providing for the suppression of such practices have been published under the Cantonments Act (XIII of 1889), and will form a part of the Cantonment Code when this is introduced.

APPENDIX No. II.

Medical Report on Cases of Syphilis from India, by Surgeon-Major H. R. Whitehead, Army Medical Staff.

Royal Victoria Hospital, Netley,
21st August 1896."

Sir,

In accordance with your wishes, before relinquishing the charge of the Surgical Division of this Hospital, I have the honour to bring to your notice certain facts in connection with the great prevalence of syphilis among the foreign invalids admitted here, and the condition in which many of these patients arrive.

2. The disease appears to have become a more frequent cause of invaliding from India and the Colonies than formerly, and in many cases to have assumed a more malignant type, to such an extent that death has occurred in many instances from the severity of the disease itself.

3. No one can imagine a sadder sight than the reception here of a batch of poor fellows suffering from this disease, from one of the troopships, utterly broken down in health, hardly able to crawl, covered with scabs and sores, with the foul odour of the disease about them, objects of disgust and loathing to themselves and all around them, their condition is indeed pitiable and shocking.

Many of the cases under treatment lately in this Division have been of the most revolting character, accompanied by horrible disfigurement and destruction of tissues.

In some cases patients have been in this Hospital for two or three years, unfit to mix even with their fellows, and if they have ultimately left this Hospital alive, have done so completely crippled, and so permanently disfigured, as to render their lives a misery to themselves and their chance of earning a livelihood quite hopeless.

4. May I now direct your attention to some statistical facts taken from the period over which my actual observations extend. From 1st October 1891 to 30th September 1894 (a period of three years), 1,151 men were invalided from this Division for all causes as unfit for further service; of this number, 242 were cases of syphilis; or 20 per cent. of the total number.

5. From 1st October 1894 to 30th September 1895, out of 498 men invalided from all causes, 161 were cases of syphilis, or nearly 40 per cent.

6. During the same period, out of a grand total of 757 admitted to the Division, 324 were cases of syphilis. [The figures for this year will probably show the same, or even a larger percentage.] It thus appears that in 1894-95 half the cases under treatment in the Surgical Division were suffering from syphilis, and that the disease was so severe in 161 cases (half the number treated) as to necessitate their discharge from the Service, with their constitutions more or less shattered.

7. Even in many of the cases ultimately returned to duty, the men had been in hospital a protracted period (often 12 months or longer), and were exceedingly liable to relapse.

In such cases the State had not only paid the man for the time he was inefficient, and lost his services, but received back a doubtfully efficient soldier.

8. When we consider that we are dealing essentially with a preventible disease, the wanton waste of good material and the ultimate misery caused by it become most painfully apparent.

9. During the five years of my appointment as Assistant Professor of Military Surgery, I have had unrivalled opportunities of studying the question, and I have arrived at the following conclusions:—

- (1) That the disease is more prevalent at present than formerly among foreign invalids.
- (2) That the type is more malignant.
- (3) That the health and efficiency of the soldier are in many cases absolutely ruined by this disease, and even if they so far recover after a bad attack as to return to duty, there is a great probability of their again breaking down.

10. Taking these facts into consideration, and laying especial stress on the preventibility of the disease, I would most respectfully beg you to use your influence to urge on the authorities the extreme importance of taking some measures to protect the soldier from chances of infection and to put a stop to the present scandalous state of affairs.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your most obedient Servant,

(Signed) H. R. WHITEHEAD,

Surgeon-Major, A.M.S.,

In charge, Surgical Division, Netley.

The Principal Medical Officer, Netley.

APPENDIX No. III.

Abstract of a Return furnished by the Principal Medical Officer at Netley, relative to the Cases in the Hospital on 30th January 1897.

Of 363 cases in hospital, 100 had been pronounced unfit for service and their documents had been sent to Chelsea Hospital. No analysis of their cases can therefore be given. Twenty-one out of the 100, however, had been discharged for venereal disease.

between their present disability and syphilis or other venereal disease contracted at some time during their service :—

APPENDIX No. IV.

Letter from General Sir F. S. Roberts, Bart., V.C., G.C.B., G.C.I.E., to the Marquis of Lansdowne, dated Mashobra, 18th May 1890.

My dear Lord Lansdowne,

My main object in the establishment of regimental institutes was to improve the tone of the British soldier by teaching him to appreciate a more respectable mode of life, in the hope that he would gradually become a better behaved man, and also because it seemed to me that the educated men who now enlist ought to be treated with more consideration than their predecessors in the Army, most of whom probably did not come from such decent homes.

In 1888 institutes were only partially established, and it was some time before I could get all the commanding officers to believe that the habits of their men could be improved, or that a well-managed coffee shop would make up for the profits derived from a canteen. I did not, therefore, expect any great change that year; there was, however, a slight improvement in the conduct of the soldiers, as evidenced by a decrease in the number of courts-martial.

Last year, I am glad to say, the improvement was most marked, as your Excellency will see from the following statement :—

Bengal Army.

	1888.	1889.	Increase.	Decrease.
Total number of men punished	2'34 per cent.	2'01 per cent.		'33 per cent.
Number of cases of insubordination with violence	307	257		50
Number of cases of drunkenness tried by court-martial	149	98		51
Number of men sentenced to imprisonment with hard labour	957	781		176
Number of men discharged with ignominy	110	79		21

In the Madras and Bombay Armies the results are equally satisfactory. Put in the most appreciable form, the following figures give the convictions by court-martial, as compared with the preceding year :—

In Bengal the number of courts-martial decreased by 14'11 per cent.
,, Madras ,, ,, increased by 1'22 ,,

*Secy. to the Agent to the Govr.-Genl. and

The 2nd April, 1897.

No. 1102-S.—In accordance with Rule 9 of the rules prescribed in the Notification by the Government of India in the Department of Finance and Commerce, No. 2749, dated the 17th August, 1883, the Chief Commissioner of Ajmere-Merwara is pleased to publish the following application from the Municipal Committee of Ajmere for the grant of a loan of Rs. 30,000, under the provisions of the Local Authorities Loan Act, 1879.

D. JOSCELYNE, C.E.,

Secretary to the Chief Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara, in the P. W. D.

Application of the Municipal Committee of Ajmere for a Loan of Rs. 30,000 from the Government of India.

In accordance with the Resolution of the Resolution VIII, Municipal Committee of dated the 31st October, Ajmere noted on the margin (copy annexed), I beg to apply to Government under the Local Authorities Loan Act of 1879, for the grant of a Loan of Rs. 30,000, bearing interest at such rate (not exceeding 4½ per cent. per annum) as the Government of India may be pleased to fix to defray compensation for land acquired for the tank (Foy Sagar) which is estimated at about Rs. 30,000. The cost of construction of this tank was met from the Loan of Rs. 2,18,000 granted by the Government of India in telegram from the Foreign Department No. 147-I., dated the 12th January, 1892.

2. The amount which it is proposed to borrow for the aforesaid purpose is Rs. 30,000.

3. The fund on the security of which the amount is to be borrowed is that designated as the Ajmere Municipal Fund.

4. The Fund is levied, received and held under the provisions of the Ajmere Municipalities Regulation V. of 1886.

5 (i) The Loan is required for a period of 35 years.

(ii) It will be taken from time to time as necessity may arise during the year 1897-98.

(iii) It will be repaid by 70 half-yearly equal instalments, and the first instalment will fall due, after six months from the date on which the loan will have been fully drawn.

6. A statement showing the Receipts and Expenditure during the three years ending the 31st March, 1896, is annexed. It will be seen that, excluding the extraordinary items, the average income of the fund for the period in question was Rs. 1,52,566-11-6, and the average yearly expenditure was Rs. 1,31,309-4-6, giving a yearly surplus of Rs. 21,257-7-0. But this large surplus is due to the fact that—

(a) In the first of the three years for which the actuals are taken, viz., the year 1893-94, the normal expenditure only amounted to Rs. 1,15,213, as in that year only Rs. 9,959 were paid towards the present Government Loans instead of Rs. 23,143-0-10, which will be the unvarying figure until A. D. 1905, inclusive.

(b) In 1894-95 the Octroi receipts were exceptionally large.

7. These two years cannot, therefore, be regarded as normal years for the purpose of calculating the normal receipts and expenditure of future years. Apart from the above facts, considerable increases have been made with due sanction and authority under certain heads of expenditure. The estimated surplus in the future years may, therefore, be estimated at Rs. 4,357—vide Statement B attached. This estimated surplus of Rs. 4,357 will be available for defraying the annual instalments for the proposed loan.

8. The only prior charges on the fund above referred to are the balances on the 31st March, 1896, of the following loans advanced by the Government of India to the Ajmere Municipality:—

Sanctioned in	Amount of Loan sanctioned.	Balance on the 31st March, 1896.	R a. p.

TOTAL	3,43,000	2,87,845 12	4

The payment on account of these prior charges amounts to Rs. 23,143-0-10 per annum as shown in the annexed statement.

RESOLUTION VIII.

Read—

Resolution XI of Meeting No. XII, held on the 15th August, 1896, proposing that tenders be invited, on the terms stated, for the loan of Rs. 30,000 for meeting the compensation for the land acquired for the Foy Sagar.

Letter No. 2895-M., dated the 5th October, 1896, from the Commissioner, Ajmere-Merwara, received with the District Magistrate's memorandum No. 2889, dated the 9th October, 1896, suggesting that, before trying to raise the loan in open market, it would be better for the Committee to ascertain the rate at which a Government loan could be obtained.

RESOLVED UNANIMOUSLY.—That an application for the loan be submitted to the Government.

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the 1st Monday in June. The examination will be conducted either at the College or by an Examiner, Public Works Accounts (including Railway and Telegraph), in Bengal, Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements in regard to the place and hour of examination with the candidates.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Govern-

* This term includes employment under Local Boards and foreign bodies if such is pensionable by the British Government. ment-employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

2. The candidate should apply to an Examiner of Public Works Accounts not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates, and must be forwarded by him, not direct to the Principal, but through the Examiner.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned:—

- (1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)
- (2) Certificate of age (baptismal or of birth not required if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).
- (3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's handwriting.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application through his immediate official superior to an Examiner of Accounts qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Examiner of Accounts concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Examiner of Accounts to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination or whether his application should be rejected. The Examiner of Accounts will then forward to the Principals for registration the names of the accepted candidates. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Examiner of Accounts. Notice issued by the Board of Health, Constantinople, on the 10th February 1897 respecting sanitary measures to be taken to prevent the introduction of the plague into Turkey.

Par décision du Conseil Supérieur de Santé la quarantaine de dix jours imposée aux provenances des Indes est portée à quinze jours. La mesure prohibitive édictée contre les navires qui auraient présenté des cas de peste ou suspects de cette maladie à bord pendant la traversée est maintenue. Cependant dans le cas où la peste venait à se manifester, soit parmi les passagers, soit parmi l'équipage, après l'arrivée du navire au Lazaret de Bassorah, navire et passagers seront soumis à une quarantaine de vingt jours à partir du dernier cas constaté, avec désinfection très-rigoureuse des hardes, effets et bagages des passagers et de l'équipage. Le navire sera désinfecté et l'eau potable renouvelée. Les eaux des cales seront vidées après avoir été préalablement désinfectées. Toutefois les navires de cette catégorie auront la faculté de retourner en contumace, avec les passagers qu'ils y auraient amenés, dans leur pays d'origine.

La même quarantaine et les mêmes mesures de rigueur seront également appliquées aux navires provenant des ports du littoral du Bélouchistan jusqu'à la frontière de la Perse.

La mesure de prohibition portée contre les visiteurs Chiïtes et les cadavres provenant des Indes est maintenue, et elle est en outre étendue à ceux provenant du littoral du Bélouchistan.

L'entrée des cadavres en Turquie est également prohibée de tout le littoral Persan du Golfe Persique, ainsi que de toute la frontière Persane de terre allant de l'embouchure du Chat-el-Arab jusqu'à Bayazid inclusivement.

No. 396.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 25 of the Cantonments Act (XIII of 1889), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to extend to the Cantonment of Dum-Dum sections 287 to 294, both inclusive, section 296, and sections 298 to 307, both inclusive, of the Bengal Municipal Act, III of 1884, as amended by Bengal Acts IV of 1894 and II of 1896, in the modified form hereto annexed.

Sections 287-294, 296 and 298-307 of the Bengal Municipal Act 1884 (amended by Bengal Acts IV of 1894 and II of 1896) as adapted to the Cantonment of Dum-Dum.

287. The Cantonment Committee shall provide a supply of water within the limits of the Cantonment; and for this purpose it shall be lawful for them to cause such mains and pipes to be laid, and such tanks, reservoirs or other works to be made and constructed, as shall be necessary for the supply of water in the chief public streets; and they may also erect in all such streets sufficient and convenient stand-pipes or pumps for the use of the inhabitants of the Cantonment for domestic purposes.

288. A supply of water for domestic purposes shall not include a supply of water for animals or for washing carriages, where such animals or carriages are kept for sale or hire, or a supply for any trade, manufacture or business, or for watering gardens or roads, or for any ornamental or mechanical purpose.

289. The Cantonment Committee at a meeting shall determine what pressure of water shall be maintained in their service-pipes and mains, and during what hours such pressure shall be continued: and any rule made under this section shall be published in such manner as the Committee may direct, and shall not be altered except with the sanction of the Committee at a meeting.

290. Whenever the Cantonment Committee deem it practicable and consistent with the maintenance of an efficient water-supply, they may at a meeting and subject to such rules and condition as the Local Government may make and impose, allow the owners and occupiers paying the water-rate hereinbefore mentioned to lay down communication-pipes from the service-pipes of the Cantonment Committee, for the purpose of leading water to their premises for domestic purposes.

291. The communication-pipes and all fittings thereon leading water from the service-pipes of the Committee into any house or land, and the pipes, works and fittings inside the house or land, must in all cases be executed subject to the inspection and satisfaction of the Cantonment Committee.

Such communication-pipes, works and fittings may be made by the servants and workmen of the Committee upon such terms as may be agreed upon between the Committee and the person requiring the supply, or subject to such charges as may be fixed by the Committee; and the Committee may require the amount necessary for the execution of such works to be paid or deposited before such works are executed.

And such charges and expenses shall be recoverable in the same manner as the water-rate.

292. Any officer authorized in that behalf by the Committee may, between the hours of seven in the forenoon and five in the afternoon, enter into or on any house or land supplied with water as aforesaid in order to examine all pipes, works and fittings connected with the supply of water, and to ascertain whether there be any waste or misuse of such water.

And, if such officer at any such time be refused admittance into such house or land for the purposes aforesaid, or be prevented from making such examination, the Cantonment Committee may forthwith cut off the supply of water from such house or land:

Provided that nothing hereinbefore contained shall authorize an entry into any room appropriated for the zanana or residence of women which, by the custom of the country, is considered private, unless a notice in writing of not less than four hours be given.

293. In the event of any pipes, works or fittings connected with the supply of water to any house or land being at any time found, on examination by any officer of the Cantonment Committee authorized in that behalf, to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause waste of water, the Committee may cause the water to be turned off from such house or land, after giving notice in writing of not less than twenty-four hours, and may recover from the occupier of such house or land the expense incurred for turning off the water.

294. The Cantonment Committee may supply water for purposes other than domestic purposes, and may, subject to such charges and rates as may have been fixed by the Committee at a meeting, lay down, or allow to be laid down, the necessary pipes and works of such dimensions and character as may be approved by them.

295. It shall be at the option of the Committee to provide filtered or unfiltered water for all latrines and water-closets, and it shall be lawful for them to require that all latrines and water-closets supplied with water, filtered or unfiltered, shall be provided with a cistern of such size and description as the Committee shall direct, and all such cisterns shall be put up at the cost of the owner of the house or land, so supplied with water.

298. The occupier of any house or land in which water supplied by the Cantonment Committee is, from negligence or other circumstances under the control of the said occupier, wasted, or in whose house or land the pipes, works or fittings for the supply of water shall be found to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause waste of water, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees.

299. Any person otherwise causing waste of water supplied by the Cantonment Committee shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five rupees.

300. It shall be within the discretion of the Cantonment Committee to allow any person not residing within the limits of the Cantonment to take or be supplied with water for domestic use on such terms as the Committee in meeting may from time to time prescribe.

And any person taking or causing to be taken for use, outside the limits of the Cantonment, water supplied by the Cantonment Committee without the permission of the Committee shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

301. Before a connection for the supply of water from the service-pipes of the Cantonment Committee to any house or land is sanctioned, the Committee may cause all the works, pipes and fittings within the said house or land to be inspected by an officer appointed by them in that behalf.

And the cost of such inspection shall be payable in advance by the person applying for such connection at such rates as the Committee in meeting shall from time to time direct.

And, until such officer shall have certified to the Cantonment Committee that the works, pipes and fittings have been executed and put up in a satisfactory manner, a connection with the Committee's service-pipes shall not be permitted.

302. The connection with the service-pipes of the Cantonment Committee, as also the laying of supply-pipes under any public road or thoroughfare, shall be executed by an officer of the Committee authorized in that behalf and by no other person.

And the expense of making such connection shall be payable in advance by the person applying for the same, at such rates as the Committee in meeting shall from time to time direct.

303 Any person who shall unlawfully flush, draw off, divert or take water from any water-works belonging to, or under the control of, the Cantonment Committee, or from any water or streams by which such water-works are supplied, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees.

304 No works for introducing a supply of water to any house shall be commenced by the owner without sending a specification and estimate of the cost thereof to the occupier, nor by the occupier without sending such specification and estimate to the owner.

305. Except in the case of a special agreement to the contrary, the owner of any house or land shall bear the expense of keeping all works connected with the supply of water to such house or land in substantial repair:

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect the liabilities of parties under leases executed previous to the extension of these provisions to the cantonment in which the said house or land is situated.

306. All public tanks, reservoirs, cisterns, wells, aqueducts, conduits, tunnels, pipes, pumps and other water-works, whether made, laid or erected at the cost of the Cantonment Committee or otherwise, and all bridges, buildings, engines, works, materials and things connected therewith, or appertaining thereto, and also any adjacent land (not being private property) appertaining to any public tank shall become vested in the Committee.

307. The water-rate and all moneys collected, received or recovered for or in respect of the supply of water or the execution of works, and all fines connected therewith, or in any respect relating to the water-supply, shall be applied by the Cantonment Committee in defraying the expense of making, extending or maintaining the water-works in the payment of such a proportionate share of the cost of collection and of general supervision as the Committee in meeting may from time to time direct, in paying the interest of money borrowed for the water-works, and in the liquidation of debts incurred in connection therewith or for some other purpose connected with the supply of water.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Saturday, April 10th, 1897.

During the past week the barometer has changed considerably from day to day, and the pressure distribution has hence been unsteady, but on the whole the weather has been quiet and comparatively undisturbed. The principal change in the pressure distribution has taken place over North-Western India, that area having, at the commencement of the week, been the seat of a high pressure area with readings exceeding 30.05", and at the close the seat of a low pressure area with readings below 29.70". The most important changes in the weather have, however, been the establishment during the latter half of the week of the ordinary hot weather westerly winds down the Gangetic Plain, and the rise of temperature which has accompanied this change. Thus, in the Punjab on the 6th and 7th the mean temperature of the whole province was over 5° below the normal average, while on the 10th the mean was 3° above, and this rise was accompanying the westerly winds and extending quickly down the Gangetic Plain. The weather was generally dry during the week, and any rain which fell occurred during scattered and local thunderstorms.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, April 4th.—Pressure had increased almost everywhere and over the greater part of the country briskly to rapidly. High pressure areas were shown, one over North-West India and a second over South-West Bengal, while readings were low over the Central Provinces, the Deccan and the extreme south. The winds were northerly over North-West India and the west of the Peninsula, but elsewhere the directions were variable. Thunderstorms had given rain to Lower and Western Bengal, to the North-West Himalayas and to one or two places in the Central Provinces and the Peninsula. The mean temperature was low, except in Burma and Madras. The principal deficiency was within the rainfall area over South-West Bengal.

Monday, April 5th.—Pressure was still increasing over the Western desert and the south of the Peninsula, but elsewhere it had commenced to give way. Readings remained high in the north-west, but the high pressure area over Bengal had disappeared. Readings were low over the Gangetic Plain and the central parts of the country and Central Burma. Northerly winds prevailed over the western half and southerly winds over the greater part of the eastern half of India, but in Bengal the directions were variable. The mean temperature remained generally low, except in Burma and Madras. The abnormal deficiency was large in Lower Bengal, the east of the Central Provinces and the north-west of the Punjab. A few scattered thunderstorms giving light rain were reported.

Tuesday, April 6th.—The barometric changes had been irregular, the principal being a brisk rise over Rajputana and the neighbouring districts of Gujarat and the Central Provinces and a brisk fall in the west of the Punjab. Pressure was highest over Sind and low in North Bihar and Central Burma. The winds varied considerably, though they remained generally northerly in the north-west and west. The mean temperature was slightly above the normal over Burma, Bengal, the North Gangetic Plain and the Peninsula, and below elsewhere. The principal deficiency lay over Rajputana and the east of the Central Provinces. Scattered thundershowers were again reported, the largest rainfall amount being 1·74 inches at Calicut.

Wednesday, April 7th.—The barometer had risen slightly over the more central parts of the country and had fallen elsewhere. Readings were high in Rajputana, low in the Deccan, in Assam and in Central Burma. Westerly winds were appearing over the Gangetic Plain and in Bengal, southerly winds were blowing on the Madras Coast and northerly winds in most other places. The mean temperature remained in slight excess over Burma and Madras, but was everywhere else below the normal. The deficiency was large over North-West and North-East India. A few scattered thundershowers were reported—mainly from Assam, Bengal and the south of the Peninsula.

Thursday, April 8th.—Pressure had been steady over the central parts of the country, had risen over Assam and Lower Sind and had fallen elsewhere. The distribution was irregular. Readings were high in Sind and across the head of the Peninsula and were low over the Southern Punjab, along the foot of the Central Himalayas, over Central Burma and over the Bombay Deccan. The westerly winds down the Gangetic Plain continued and had become stronger, while elsewhere the wind directions were very variable. The mean temperature was excessive in Burma and Madras, but remained low in all other places. There was a large deficiency over the central parts of the country. There had been no rain of any importance.

Friday, April 9th.—Pressure had increased over parts of the Peninsula and of Burma and had decreased elsewhere. The depression over the Bombay Deccan had disappeared, but there was no other change of importance. South-easterly winds prevailed over the Peninsula and westerly winds down the Gangetic Plain, but in other parts of the country the directions were variable. An area of relatively high temperature had appeared in the north-west, but otherwise the temperature distribution relatively to the average was little altered. There had been a few unimportant showers over the Peninsula.

Saturday, April 10th.—Pressure had decreased briskly over Upper Sind and the south of the Punjab, but had changed little elsewhere. The low pressure area noticed in the north-west during the two preceding days had hence increased in intensity, but elsewhere there was no change of importance. The winds were feebly and irregularly cyclonic in the north-west, but were variable in direction generally. The high temperature area in the north-west was extending, and, except over the Central Provinces, Bihar, Assam and the Madras Deccan, the heat was excessive. A few showers were again reported from the Deccan.

Temperature.—The mean temperature has been low over the greater part of the country throughout nearly the whole week. In Burma and Madras there was an excess on most days, but in all other provinces there was a deficiency, until the 9th, when an area of excessive heat made its appearance in the north-west, and during that and the following day extended eastward over the country. The coolest day relatively to the normal average was the 7th, when the mean temperature was 5° lower than usual over a large part of India.

The following gives temperature data for the week :

The above shows that up to the 8th the maximum temperatures over India were recorded steadily either in Madras or in Burma, but that on the 9th, when the area of high temperature noticed above appeared in the north-west, the highest temperatures were suddenly transferred to that area.

Rainfall.—The rain returns for the week show that there has been widely scattered light rainfall over India. Unlike the two preceding weeks, the weather has been unaffected by any serious depression, but small local disturbances have developed thunderstorms, and these have been accompanied with scattered showers of rain. These showers have occurred in all parts of the Indian region, except two districts, viz., Burma and North Bombay, in both of which areas the weather has been fine throughout. The daily returns show that the rainfall was general throughout the week in the Assam Valley, that it occurred mainly during the first half of the week in Bengal and the Gangetic Plain and on the first day of the week in the Punjab. In the Peninsula, unlike Northern India, the rainfall was mainly confined to the latter half of the week, while in the central parts of the country the distribution of rain was similar to that in the north.

The returns for the week show that rain fell in no less than thirty-eight of the rainfall divisions, which was nearly as many as in the case of the two preceding weeks, but the amounts were lighter, no fewer than twenty-one, out of the thirty-eight divisions reporting rain, having received an average actual fall for the week of less than one-tenth of an inch. In the case of all the Burma divisions, East Bengal, the North-West Provinces (West and Submontane), the Punjab (South-East, Submontane and West), Coorg, the Konkan, Gujarat, Kathiawar, Sind, West Rajputana, the East Coast (North and Central) there was absolutely no rain throughout the week, while the heaviest average actual falls were—1·17 inches in the Central Provinces (East), 0·98 inch in Malabar, 0·57 inch in Madras (South) and 0·54 inch in Orissa.

The anticipated rainfall for the week under review is light, except in Assam, and hence, except in that province, where the abnormal deficiency is considerable to large, the variations between the average actual and average normal falls are generally slight, but in the east of the Central Provinces there has been a largish excess. There has also been an excess of more than one-quarter of an inch in Orissa, Chota Nagpur, Malabar, Hyderabad (South) and Madras (South), while the principal cases of deficiency outside Assam are about half an inch in Tenasserim, Deltaic Burma, East Bengal, the Bengal Hills, the North Punjab, Coorg and Baluchistan.

The rainfall of the week under review has not much changed the situation as regards the state of the seasonal rainfall. From the 28th of February to date the rain has been more or less excessive in Central Burma and Arakan, in most of the Bengal divisions, North Oudh, the East Submontane division of the North-West Provinces, the Punjab Hills, Malabar, Khandesh, the east of the Central Provinces, the East Coast (North and Central) and Central Madras, while elsewhere the fall has been more or less deficient.

The following are the principal totals recorded during the week. They are nowhere important and are much lighter than was the case in the two preceding weeks :

Assam . . .	Sibsagar . . .	1·17 inches.
Orissa . . .	Bhuddruck (Balasore) . . .	1·23 „
Malabar . . .	Cochin . . .	3·89 „

The grand total in receipt of relief on the last day of the week was therefore 1,003,600. Supplies are generally sufficient. Fodder is somewhat scarce in a few places. Prices are fluctuating and show a tendency to fall in many districts. The price of the staple grain on which the famine wage is based varied from $9\frac{3}{4}$ to $12\frac{1}{2}$ seers in the districts officially recognised as distressed.

Punjab.—For week ending 13th April.—Rain averaging about $\frac{1}{10}$ of an inch has fallen in Ferozepore, with slight hail in parts. There has also been a slight drizzle in Gujrat and Peshawar. Harvesting of spring crops, sowings of extra spring crops, and ploughings for autumn crops are in progress. Sugarcane and cotton are being sown. The condition of irrigated crops is generally reported fair or good; of inundated crops average; and of crops dependent on rain poor. The outturn of spring crops is said to be good on well lands, except in Gujranwala, where it is average; fair or average on canal lands and poor or below average on inundated and lands dependent on rain. Stocks of food-grain have been exhausted in Hissar, Delhi, and parts of Ferozepore, where requirements are met by importations; they have also been reduced in Jullundur and Gujranwala and are average in Peshawar. Crops have suffered from strong westerly winds in Karnal, Umballa, and Gujranwala. The wheat crop has also been damaged by smut in Gujranwala. Cattle are generally in poor condition from want of sufficient fodder and some deaths are reported in Rohtak from starvation. Fodder is scarce or insufficient in all districts except Peshawar. The average number of relief workers, dependants, etc., was as follows:—Relief workers—16,385 men, 25,112 women, 11,431 children; Dependants—757 men, 1,092 women, 11,095 children; Relieved in poor-houses—633 men, 702 women, 456 children; Otherwise relieved—3,062 men, 5,135 women, 3,944 children; Test workers—183 men, 55 women, 71 children. The total number of workers, dependants, etc., was 90,053 against 102,611 last week. The decrease is spread over all districts and is due to the demand for harvest labour. Prices are generally high; they are rising in Shahpur and Rawalpindi, the figures are unchanged in Rohtak, Mooltan, Lahore, Sialkot, and Peshawar, but there is a general tendency to fall in all southern districts, as the new grain has commenced coming into the market. Wheat is selling from $7\frac{1}{2}$ to $10\frac{1}{2}$, gram 10 to $11\frac{1}{2}$, great millet $9\frac{1}{2}$ to $10\frac{1}{2}$, barley 13, bulrush millet 9, maize 9 to 11, and rice 7 to $7\frac{1}{2}$ seers per rupee. Prices of staple food-grains on which the famine wage is reckoned are:—Rohtak, great millet 10 and barley 12 seers; Delhi, gram $9\frac{1}{2}$; Umballa, maize 10; Ferozepore, gram $9\frac{1}{2}$; Lahore, wheat 9 and indian-corn $9\frac{1}{2}$ to $10\frac{1}{2}$, and Gujrat, maize flour 9 seers per rupee.

Central Provinces.—For week ending 13th April.—The weather is cloudy and much warmer with occasional storms. Slight rain in six districts, but in Sambalpur 1 inch fell. Threshing and winnowing of spring crops continue. Fields are being prepared for summer sowings. Sugarcane is in good condition. Mahua (Bassia latifolia) is damaged in most districts by continued cloudy weather; reported outturn in annas—Jubbulpore 4 to 6, Seoni 8, Bhandara and Raipur 4 to 8, Nimar 12. The crop is fair in Chhindwara and abundant in Saugor and Betul. Fodder is insufficient in parts of nine districts and the water-supply is scarce in portions of six districts. Prices are steady in Chhattisgarh, but have risen about half a seer in the rupee in most other districts during the past fortnight. Total numbers on relief have fallen by 15,000 since last week, the decline in Saugor and Narsinghpur is due mainly to mahua picking; Damoh and Nagpur show the largest increases. Numbers on relief works:—Saugor 23,647, Damoh 25,091, Jubbulpore 63,839, Mandla 19,211, Seoni 9,867, Narsinghpur 30,504, Hoshangabad 34,583, Nimar 79, Betul 5,288, Chhindwara 7,943, Nagpur 8,058, Chanda 194, Bhandara 9,579, Balaghat 25,991, Raipur 51,028, Bilaspur 20,764, Sambalpur 436; total 336,102. * Not published.

of foods from Asia, that, on exceptional grounds, untanned skins and hides, which were only despatched subsequently to February 11th of this year, may be imported into this country until further notice, if, at the time the vessel sailed, the port of embarkation was free from plague, and on condition that the goods are prepared for transport in the harbour itself or in its immediate vicinity, and are compressed into bales, and, further, that the consignment arrives in a thoroughly air-tight condition. The proof that the preparation of the skins and hides for transport took place in the port of departure, and that the latter place was still free from plague at the time the vessel sailed, is to be obtained by means of declarations on oath provided by the German Consulate on the spot, or filled in by the foreign harbour officials at the port in question and countersigned by the German Consul.

Those consignments, which come from the plague-stricken ports of Bombay, Karachi, Hong Kong, Kanton, Swatau, Amoy, Macao, and the Island of Formosa, or appear to be specially dangerous on other grounds, are excluded from this favourable treatment. With respect to the admission of such products, the Imperial Chancellor reserves to himself the right of deciding according to the merits of each case.

Despatch from Her Majesty's Representative at Hamburg respecting quarantine in Germany, dated 13th March 1897.

I have the honour to report to your Lordship that, according to a notice published in the Hamburg Official Gazette (of which it is not at present possible to obtain a copy), the German Imperial Law of February 8th,* 1897, prohibiting, in order to guard against and prevent the introduction of the plague, the importation by sea to this and other ports of the Empire from Persia, the mainland of India, Formosa, Hong Kong, Macao, and from China (south of the thirtieth degree of latitude), of the following articles, viz. :

* Not published.

Linen and cotton wearing apparel, old and cast-off clothing, cast-off bedding, shreds and rags of all sorts, carpets, human hair, untanned skins and hides, unworked hair and bristles, wool, claws, and hoofs is now further extended; that is to say, the prohibition against the importation of the above named articles from the countries afore-mentioned is made applicable also in case these articles derived from the countries mentioned are imported (by sea) to Hamburg and to other ports of Germany from European countries.

Exemptions from this import prohibition shall (according to section 6 of the Imperial German Law of February 8th,† 1897, above referred to), only be granted with the special consent of the Imperial Chancellor.

† Not published.

The Hamburg authorities have accordingly been directed to keep a careful watch over all vessels arriving likewise from European ports at this port, and to see that the above import prohibition is in every case conformed with. Any contravention against such prohibition will, according to section 327 of the German Penal Code, be punished by imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 17th, 1897.

Very quiet weather has prevailed during the period under review. The rainfall has been generally light and scattered, and on most days has fallen during or after thunder or dust storms; but towards the close of the week a fresh southerly wind appeared over Ceylon and subsequently spread to both coasts of the Peninsula. This wind apparently brought up a good deal of moisture, as heavyish rain was reported from Colombo on Thursday the 15th, and moderate rain from most of the stations in Southern India on the two following days. One of the principal features of the weather was the appearance of a well-defined low pressure area over the submontane districts of the Gangetic Plain during the latter half of the week. This distribution of pressure is such as is invariably accompanied, at this season of the year, by strong, dry, hot day winds in the Gangetic Plain, and during Friday and Saturday hot winds, with a very low humidity, were reported from all stations in this area. A marked increase in the general temperature of India occurred during the week. The mean temperature of the whole country was 0.6° higher than usual on the 11th; 2.4° higher than usual on the 14th; and 4.4° higher than usual on the 17th. The principal increase took place over the north and centre of the country, where the hot winds noticed above were experienced. The air was very dry over the Gangetic Plain, at the Himalayan hill stations and at some central stations during the week.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, April 11th.—The barometer had risen almost everywhere. The distribution was irregular. Over the greater part of the country pressure was uniform, but slight low pressure areas were reported—one from Bengal and a second from North-West India—while relatively high readings were reported from the North Punjab, the north of Bombay and the Assam Valley. Northerly winds were blowing over the north-west of the Punjab and over the west of the Peninsula, but elsewhere the directions were variable. The mean temperature exceeded the normal average over North-West India and over Lower Burma, but was generally about normal or rather lower than usual elsewhere. A few local showers of rain had been received over North-West India and over parts of the Peninsula.

Monday, April 12th.—The barometer had changed only slightly, and the principal characteristic of the distribution of pressure was the general uniformity of the readings. The winds were unaltered. The mean temperature was generally excessive, except over parts of Madras, Burma, Bengal and the Indus Valley. The hottest area relatively to the normal was the Central Punjab. A few local showers had again been received in parts of North-West India and of the Peninsula.

Tuesday, April 13th.—The barometric changes were again slight, and the only important change in the general distribution of pressure was the appearance of a shallow area of low barometric readings over Bihar and the North Gangetic Plain. The wind was northerly over North-West India, south-westerly over Lower Bengal and variable elsewhere. The mean temperature was below the normal average over the Bay area and excessive almost everywhere else. The rainfall had been very light and very scattered.

Wednesday, April 14th.—The barometer had fallen briskly in parts of North-Western and Central India, but had continued to change only slightly elsewhere. Readings were relatively high in the north-west and north-east and relatively low over the Gangetic Plain and the Central Provinces. The winds showed only slight alterations. They were generally northerly over North-Western and Western India, southerly and south-westerly at the head of the Bay and variable elsewhere. The mean temperature remained excessive, except over the Bay area and in Upper Burma. The hottest area relatively to the normal was the Southern Punjab and Upper Sind. There had again been no rainfall of any importance. •

Thursday, April 15th.—The barometer had risen in most places. The changes had not modified the distribution of pressure to any important extent, the most important feature still being the low pressure area over the North Gangetic Plain. A southerly wind had appeared in Ceylon and South Madras, but elsewhere there had been no important alteration in the wind directions. The mean temperature remained low over the Bay area and excessive elsewhere. The abnormal excess was greatest over the west of the Central Provinces. Colombo reported a rainfall of 4·63 inches and Cochin of 2·79 inches, while several places in the south of the Peninsula had received light showers. Elsewhere there was no rain of any importance.

Friday, April 16th.—Pressure had increased over Southern and decreased over Northern and Central India. The fall had been brisk along the foot of the Himalayas. A well-marked low pressure area, with moderate surrounding gradients, had been developed over the submontane regions of the Gangetic Plain, while readings were relatively high in the south. Northerly winds prevailed over North-West India, strong westerly winds down the Gangetic Plain and southerly winds over the Peninsula and the Bay. The mean temperature was higher than usual, except in Madras. Fairly general rain had been received over the south of the Peninsula, but elsewhere there had been no fall of any importance.

Saturday, April 17th.—Pressure had again decreased over the greater part of the Indian region—most so over the Punjab and the Gangetic Plain. These changes had slightly intensified the low pressure area over the submontane districts of the Gangetic Plain. The winds were unaltered, and a strong westerly current continued to blow down the Gangetic Plain. The mean temperature remained high, except over the south of the Peninsula, where the heat was in slight local defect. The hottest areas relatively to the normal were the North Punjab and the North Gangetic Plain. Showers were again received in the south of the Peninsula, but there was no rain elsewhere, and in the Peninsula the amounts were less than on the preceding day.

Temperature.—At the close of last week an area of excessive temperature had appeared over North-West India. On the first day of the present week this area was strongly marked and was extending in all directions. The next few days saw its extension to all parts of the Indian region, except the Bay area, the stations around the Bay continuing to report temperatures somewhat below the normal average. These conditions lasted until Friday the 16th, when, with a fall of rain over the south of the Peninsula, an area of relative coolness was developed over that region. The mean temperature of the whole country for the week was $2\frac{1}{2}^{\circ}$ above the average, and the hottest day both absolutely and relatively to the normal was, as stated above, the 17th.

The following gives temperature data for the week :

The following are the highest temperatures recorded on each day :

April 11th	108°·4	at Jacobabad.
" 12th	108°·1	" Jhansi.
" 13th	109°·6	" Allahabad.
" 14th	110°·5	" Burdwan.
" 15th	110°·7	" Khandwa.
" 16th	111°·7	" Hyderabad (S.).
" 17th	115°·0	" Deesa.

The above shows that the region of greatest heat lay roughly along Lat. 24° N., and that the highest day temperatures were at one time recorded as far east as Burdwan and at another as far west as Hyderabad (S.).

Rain.—As mentioned above, there has, over the greater part of India, been during the week under review either no rainfall or only light scattered falls, which have accompanied or followed slight thunder or dust storms. The only exception is found in Southern India, where in several districts the rainfall has been moderate in amount and fairly general. This burst of showery weather accompanied the setting in of a wind from the southward. Up to Wednesday, April the 14th, the wind was northerly both on the Madras and on the Bombay Coasts, and the weather was fine in these regions; but on the 15th southerly breezes appeared on both coasts, and this change in the wind direction was followed by a fall of 4·63 inches of rain at Colombo, of 2·79 inches at Cochin, and by showers at Trincomalee, Trivandrum, Tinnevely, Madura, Negapatam and Trichinopoly. On the following day the rainfall, though less heavy than on the 15th, was more general, and about one inch and a half was received at Wellington, Cochin and Tinnevely, while on the 17th the rainfall in this area was both lighter and less extensive than on the two preceding days.

The rainfall table at the close of the summary shows that during the week effective rainfall, i.e., rainfall of one-tenth of an inch or over, was received only in twelve of the rainfall divisions, viz., the Assam Valley, the Bengal Hills, the North Punjab, Malabar, Madras (South-Central), Coorg, Mysore, the Bombay Deccan, the East Coast [North (a)], Hyderabad (South), the East Coast (South) and Madras (South). In all the remaining divisions there was either no rainfall during the week or only insignificant amounts. The heaviest average fall for the week was 1·68 inches in Malabar, followed by 1·34 inches in Madras (South), by 1·18 inches in Coorg and by 1·03 inches in Madras (South-Central).

In nearly all districts, except those in the south of the Peninsula and locally in the East Coast [North (a)], the rainfall has been below the normal average of the week. The amount of the deficiency has been small and unimportant, except in the extreme north-east and north-west. In the case of Assam, where there has been practically no rain, the deficiency varies between one and four inches; in the case of Burma, the north of Bengal and the north of the Punjab between one quarter and three-quarters of an inch.

The rainfall for the whole period from February 28th to date is in more or less excess in the following divisions: Arakan, North Bengal, Orissa, Chota Nagpur, Bihar, the North-West Provinces (East and Submontane), North Oudh, Malabar, Madras (South-Central), Khandesh, the Central Provinces (East), the East Coast (North and South) and Madras (South). In all the remaining divisions the seasonal rainfall is normal or in defect. Considerable to large deficiencies are reported from Lower Burma, the west and centre of the North-West Provinces, the south and south-east of the Punjab, the Konkan, the west of the Central Provinces and the north of Bombay.

The following are the principal totals recorded during the week :

Travancore	.	.	Quilon	6·55 inches.
Nilgiris	.	.	Coonoor	3·43 "
Mysore	.	.	Yedatore	1·70 "
Deccan	.	.	Kolhapur	1·90 "

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

DEPARTMENT OF REVENUE AND AGRICULTURE.

Weekly Report on the state of the Season and Prospects of the Crops.

Madras.—For week ending 17th April.—Rainfall one to two inches in ten Southern districts, elsewhere a few light showers. The water-supply for drinking purposes is generally insufficient in the Deccan and in affected parts of Ganjam and Vizagapatam; elsewhere it is generally sufficient, but is failing in parts; for irrigation it is generally insufficient. Agricultural operations are progressing in parts. Standing crops in the Deccan are poor, except under canals, channels, and wells, but are failing under them in parts; elsewhere generally fair to good, but have withered or are fading in parts. Harvests yield a poor outturn in the Deccan, elsewhere middling to fair. Pasture is practically nil in the Deccan, sufficient in south and Vizagapatam, but is failing elsewhere. Fodder is insufficient in the Deccan, elsewhere it is generally available. Condition of cattle is deteriorating in the Deccan; generally good elsewhere. Prices show a slight tendency to fall in the Deccan and the Carnatic, but have generally risen slightly elsewhere. The numbers on relief are:—relief workers—34,495 men, 67,107 women, 28,076 children; total 129,678 in the Deccan and Ganjam. Test-workers—1,504 men, 4,500 women, 2,090 children; total 8,094 in Vizagapatam, but figures for one work not furnished; also 596 of whom no details are given in Ganjam. Weavers—6,340 men, 4,860 women, 147 children; total 11,347 relieved at their own trade in the Deccan and Ganjam; total relief workers—149,715. Kitchen inmates in the Deccan and the Circars: (dependants)—137 men, 312 women, 7,374 children: (others)—404 men, 660 women, 1,484 children. If the samples are addressed to this Consulate, I shall be glad to place them in the hands of a merchant who will endeavour to realize their cost if they are of a size which can be useful to make up.

Samples of native Indian designs should also be sent.

RESIDENT IN MYSORE AND JUDICIAL COMMISSIONER OF COORG.

NOTIFICATION.

Bangalore, the 6th April, 1897.

No. 52-27.—The Resident in Mysore and Judicial Commissioner of Coorg has made and passed the following Rules to regulate the procedure to be observed in the printing of records or other documents for reference in appeals or other proceedings in his court:—

1. After a civil case has been admitted for final hearing the following papers will be printed:—

- (a) In a first appeal, the decree and judgment of the lower court and the memorandum of appeal.
- (b) In a second appeal, the decrees and judgments of the court of first instance and the lower appellate court, and the memorandum of second appeal; and where the judgment or decree of the court of first instance is in Canarese, the translation thereof in English.
- (c) In a miscellaneous appeal, the order appealed from and the memorandum of appeal; and where the order appealed against is the order of an appellate court, also the order of the court of first instance.
- (d) In a revision application, the decree and judgment or order of which revision is sought, and the application for revision; and where the order sought to be revised is the order of an appellate court, also the order of the court of first instance.

If in any of the foregoing classes of cases, a number of appeals or revision applications have been preferred or filed against decrees or orders based upon one leading judgment or order, the parties may apply to the Registrar to print only the leading judgment and decree or order.

- (e) Any other English papers and documents connected with the appeal or petition which the parties desire should be printed.

Exception.—Nothing herein contained shall be deemed to apply to cases in which the court specially orders for any reason it thinks fit that the records need not be printed.

2. (a) Notice of the admission of an appeal or petition will, on receipt of the records from the lower courts, be put up on the notice board of the Court-house on a Thursday. Within 15 days after the admission has been so notified, the appellant or petitioner shall give to the Registrar a list of such of the papers and documents referred to in Rule 1 (e) as he requires to be printed. The cost of printing such papers and the papers referred to in Rule 1 (a), (b), (c) and (d) shall then be estimated at the rate hereinafter mentioned, and the appellant or petitioner shall, within three days after such fifteenth day, deposit the sum so estimated (plus 10 per cent. to cover mistakes in the estimate).

- (b) Until the deposits aforesaid are made, notice of appeal or petition will not be issued to the opposite party, and after the lapse of the period aforesaid the case will be posted for the orders of the court.

3. If the respondent or counter-petitioner requires any of the papers or documents, other than those ordinarily printed and not included in the list given by the appellant or petitioner, to be printed, he shall, within 15 days after notice of appeal or petition has been served on him, give a list of such papers or documents to the Registrar, and, within three days after filing the list, shall deposit a sum equal to the estimated cost of printing them at the rate hereinafter mentioned (plus 10 per cent. to cover mistakes in the estimate).

4. (a) If the last day of the period allowed by Rules 2 and 3 for filing the list of papers or for making the deposit happens to be a Sunday or other authorized holiday, the list shall be filed, or the deposit made, as the case may be, on the first day on which the court re-opens after such Sunday or authorized holiday.

- (b) The time for delivering the list and depositing the printing charges, referred to in Rules 2 and 3, will be extended on application, if the court be satisfied that there is a reasonable ground for such application.

5. The charge for a page of printed matter will, for the present and until further notice, be one rupee, but special charges according to actual cost will be made when documents are required to be printed in any special form (e.g., tabular or type).

6. Each of the parties will be entitled to two copies of the printed book which however will not be issued until paid for by the appellant or petitioner for the papers referred to in Rules 1 (a), (b), (c), (d) and 2 (a) and by the respondent or counter-petitioner for the papers referred to in Rule 3, after deducting the amount of deposit made by each; and if more press copies are wanted, each additional copy shall be paid for at one-fourth the above rates.

7. The number of copies printed, unless special application is made before the book is printed, will not exceed ten.

8. Refunds will be granted of unexpended sums deposited for printing charges.

9. Charges paid for printing shall be included in the costs of the case.

10. In criminal cases, papers will not ordinarily be printed except when convenient and at the request of the parties and on payment of the printing charges, which are fixed, for the present and until further notice, at 1 rupee per page of printed matter for the first two copies, and at 4 annas per page of each additional copy supplied. If the court of its own motion order any of the papers in a criminal case to be printed, they will be supplied to parties applying for them at half a rupee per page, unless the court makes a special order that they shall be given free of charge.

DONALD ROBERTSON,

Resident in Mysore and Judicial Commissioner of Coorg.

Registrar.

AGENT TO THE GOVERNOR GENERAL AT BARODA.

NOTIFICATION.

Baroda Residency, the 7th April, 1897.

RULES UNDER ACT III OF 1897.

No. 5000.—Whereas on account of the entry into Baroda of persons suffering from a dangerous Epidemic disease, namely Bubonic Plague, the Baroda Cantonment is threatened by an outbreak of such epidemic disease amongst the inhabitants thereof; and whereas the Agent to the Governor-General at Baroda is of opinion that the ordinary provisions of the law for the time being in force are insufficient for the purpose of preventing the spread thereof, pursuant to the provisions of section 2, sub-sections 1 and 2 of the Epidemic Diseases Act, 1897, and in exercise of the powers in this behalf conferred by the Governor-General in Council under section 2, sub-section 3 of the same Act, the Agent to the Governor-General at Baroda is pleased to empower the Cantonment authorities for the Cantonment of Baroda to take measures hereinafter specified to prevent the spread of Bubonic Plague, and is further pleased to prescribe the temporary Regulations hereinafter set forth to be observed by the public and all persons concerned:—

1. No person suffering from Bubonic Plague shall enter or be conveyed or be caused to be conveyed into the Cantonment limits.

2. In the event of the plague making its appearance within the Cantonment of Baroda, the Cantonment Magistrate, subject to the general instructions of the Officer Commanding at Baroda, may appoint special officers, either by name or by virtue of office to carry out, under the Cantonment Magistrate's general directions, all measures necessary to prevent the spread of the plague.

The special officers appointed for the Cantonment of Baroda may be selected from the Native or European officers serving in the garrison at Baroda.

3. At any place specially appointed by the Cantonment Magistrate and situated on a road leading to the Cantonment, any officer on duty, or person specially authorised in this behalf by the Cantonment Magistrate, may detain for the purpose of Medical examination any person whom he reasonably believes to be suffering from the plague and shall, if he be not himself a Medical Officer give information of the detention to the Medical Officer of the Cantonment or the Hospital Assistant in charge of the Nanavati Dispensary.

4. In the Cantonment of Baroda to which these rules apply, an occupant of a house or building, or the principal surviving member of a family, shall give immediate information to the Kotwal or the Hospital Assistant in charge of the Nanavati Dispensary of any sickness or death due or likely to be due to plague in such house or building or among the members of such family.

5. The Kotwal and the Hospital Assistant aforesaid shall, in every case without delay, communicate the fact to the Cantonment Magistrate and Sanitary Officer respectively, and the latter officer shall be bound to come to the place indicated.

6. Immediately on receiving information under the above rule the Sanitary Officer shall go to the place indicated, and if the place be a house or dwelling place, and if the occupant or occupants thereof do not (on the demand of the Cantonment authorities) allow him to enter and give him reasonable facilities for ascertaining whether any of the inmates are suffering from the plague, the Cantonment authorities are hereby empowered to enter into such house or any part thereof by force and to detain for the purpose of Medical Examination any person found therein to be suffering or suspected to be suffering from the plague.

7. Every person having the control or charge of any building, or part of a building shall, on demand by the Cantonment Magistrate or Sanitary Officer, immediately cause such building or part of a building to be opened, and shall permit the Cantonment Magistrate or Sanitary Officer to cleanse or disinfect the same, and to cause the removal, for disinfection or destruction, of any bedding or clothing, or of any other goods or articles found therein.

For the purpose of enforcing and carrying into effect the said Regulation, the Cantonment Magistrate will, whenever he shall deem it necessary to do so, break open and forcibly enter any such building or part of a building, and without previous notice to the owner or occupier thereof, will cleanse or disinfect the same, and direct or cause the forcible removal and disinfection or destruction of any bedding, clothing, goods or articles as aforesaid.

8. If for any reason it shall appear to the Cantonment Magistrate personally, or be reported to him by the Sanitary Officer, that any building intended for or used as a dwelling, is unfit for human habitation, he may prohibit by a written order the further use of such building, as a dwelling and cause notice of such prohibition to be affixed to the door of, or on some conspicuous part of such building.

As a temporary Regulation it is hereby prescribed that, when any such prohibition has been made, no owner or occupier of such building shall use or suffer the same to be used for human habitation until the Cantonment Magistrate certifies in writing, after consulting the Sanitary Officer, that the causes rendering it unfit for human habitation have been removed to his satisfaction and that of the Sanitary Officer.

For the purpose of enforcing and carrying into effect the said Regulation, the Cantonment Magistrate may, if necessary, forcibly remove any such person from such building and may prevent the re-occupation thereof until such time as he shall have certified as aforesaid.

9. If it shall appear to the Cantonment Magistrate that any building used as a dwelling is so overcrowded as to endanger the health of the inmates thereof, he may, by written order, request the owner or occupier of the building, within a period to be fixed by him, to abate the overcrowding thereof by reducing the number of inmates thereof.

For the purpose of enforcing this Regulation the Cantonment Magistrate may, if necessary, at the expiration of the time prescribed in the written order, forcibly remove or cause to be removed such and so many of the inmates of the building as shall seem to him to be proper.

10. In the case of any building ordered to be vacated under Rule 9, and in the case of any other building or enclosure which may appear to him to be in a filthy or insanitary condition, the Cantonment Magistrate may require the owner or occupier to carry out or in his default may of his own motion carry out such measures as may seem necessary to him for the purpose of cleansing or disinfecting such building or premises, and for the purpose of such cleansing or disinfecting may, if necessary, forcibly break open and enter any such building or part of such building or premises, and may remove or disinfect or destroy any goods, clothes or other articles found therein. The Cantonment Magistrate is empowered to enter any building for the purpose of ascertaining whether it is in a filthy or insanitary condition. If the Cantonment Magistrate considers it necessary he may of his own motion, immediately and without previous notice, carry out such measures for cleansing and disinfecting as he considers necessary.

11. Any person suffering from Bubonic Plague, wheresoever found, shall, on a certificate signed by the Sanitary Officer or by any duly qualified Medical Officer or practitioner that such person is suffering from the said disease, be liable to be removed to such Hospital as shall be selected for the purpose by the Cantonment authorities for treatment, and retained there until cured.

For the purpose of enforcing and carrying into effect the said Regulation, the Cantonment Magistrate, or any Police officer empowered by the Cantonment Magistrate in this behalf, will, whenever he shall deem it necessary so to do, cause any person, in respect of whom such certificate as aforesaid has been made, to be removed to hospital.

Provided always that no person suffering from the said disease shall be so removed if, in the opinion of the Sanitary Officer, such person is provided with proper lodging or accommodation and is being properly cared for, and so situated as not to be a source of danger to the public.

12. Every building or part of building in which any case of the aforesaid disease exists has existed shall, for so long as the Cantonment Magistrate, on the strength of the Sanitary Officer's report, shall deem necessary, be isolated in accordance with such orders as the Cantonment Magistrate may in each case prescribe, and, for the purpose of enforcing and carrying into effect this provision, the Cantonment Magistrate, or any Police Officer empowered by the Cantonment Magistrate in this behalf, will forcibly prevent persons from entering such building or part of building.

13. The operation of cleansing or disinfecting a building within the meaning of this Notification shall be deemed to include not only the cleansing and lime-washing of such building, but also, if deemed necessary, the removal of the earth or soil of the ground floor thereof to a depth of 4 inches, the removal of the whole or any part of the roof thereof, the removal of floors, the burning of kerosine oil or any other substance thereon, or any other measure whatever.

The expense of carrying into effect any of the measures hereby authorized for cleansing or disinfecting a building shall, in the first instance, be defrayed by the Cantonment Magistrate out of the Cantonment Fund, but shall, at his discretion, be recoverable from the owner or occupier of such building under the ordinary provisions of the Cantonment Act XXII of 1864, in the same manner, in all respects, as if the work had been done after notice and after failure to comply with notice within the meaning of section 30, Chapter IV of the same Act.

14. The Cantonment Magistrate is empowered to make regulations, when he deems it necessary, for prescribing the route which shall be taken by a funeral procession from the place of death to the grave-yard, burning-ground or other place for final disposal of the corpse, and the places (if any) at which such procession may halt, on its way, for funeral prayers, ceremonies or other purposes, for enforcing burial in certain places or at a certain depth and for requiring that quick-lime be placed with the corpse, and may prohibit the burial or burning of corpses of persons reasonably supposed to have died of the plague in or upon ground other than that specially assigned by him for such purposes.

15. When a person dies of the plague elsewhere than within the limits of a Hospital, no one shall touch the corpse except those who undertake the necessary duties of preparing it for the funeral. Such persons shall disinfect themselves according to the orders of the Sanitary Officer.

16. Before the destruction of property of special value under rules 7 and 10, the value of it shall be assessed by a Panch of three persons, including the President, who shall be an officer appointed by the Officer Commanding by name or by virtue of office and by general or special order. The President shall appoint the two other members. Subject to the sanction of the Officer Commanding the award of the Panch shall be final and conclusive. The Cantonment Magistrate is empowered to decide whether an article, which it is proposed to destroy, is of sufficient value for a Panch to be called to assess its value. If he decides it is not of sufficient value, he may destroy it on the spot and may, in his discretion, pay compensation to the owner provided, however, that no person shall be entitled as of right to claim any compensation whatsoever. It is desired that liberality and promptness should be shown in the exercise of the power hereby conferred to award compensation, and that, for example, a very poor man should be promptly compensated for the loss of clothes, which, though of no special market value, may be of considerable value to him.

17. The Cantonment Magistrate may, with the previous sanction of the Agent to the Governor-General, prohibit either wholly, or, subject to such restrictions as he may impose, the holding of fairs, caste feasts, or other assemblages which are likely in his opinion to assist the spread of the plague.

18. All persons practising medicine, whether qualified or not, shall report, within twenty-four hours, to the Cantonment Magistrate and the Sanitary Officer any plague cases or cases of fever with glandular swelling which come to their notice.

19. The Cantonment Magistrate is empowered to direct the evacuation of houses in the neighbourhood of an infected house, or, of a block of houses, or a particular locality and to prohibit re-occupation of such houses, or locality without permission. Notice for such period, as the Cantonment Magistrate thinks suitable should be given and temporary accommodation should be provided.

20. The Cantonment Magistrate is to do his utmost, both personally and through orders, to make it generally understood throughout the Cantonment that these rules are necessary for the public safety, and to see that no needless inconvenience is caused to any one; that examination etc., are carried out with as much regard to sex and the customs of the country and that everything is done to meet the wishes of the patient so far as compatible with the public safety.

21. The provisions of this notification are not intended to, and shall not operate to limit in any way any power the Cantonment Magistrate may possess independently of the powers hereby conferred.

22. Any person committing a breach of any of the aforesaid Regulations shall be liable to be punished under section 188, Indian Penal Code, with imprisonment for six months or with fine which may extend to Rs. 1,000, or with both.

HOOGHLY MAGISTRACY;
The 15th April 1897.

THE YEARLY EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR 4th GRADE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

The yearly examination of candidates for 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department, will be held at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on Monday and Tuesday the 7th and 8th June, 1897, at 10-30 A. M. :—

SUBJECTS.	Full marks.	Minimum pass marks.
Writing (neatness, clearness, and rapidity).	100	50
Dictation (spelling, punctuation, etc.)	100	50
Arithmetic (the whole)	240	160
Mensuration (a) the whole.	60	30
Book-keeping (b) mercantile	100	50
TOTAL	600	400

Minimum required in all papers collectively.

- (a) Todhunter's Mensuration for Beginners.
(b) "Book-keeping" by Ball and Hamilton.
"Book-keeping" by double and single entry, by W. Inglis (Chambers' Educational Course).

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the 1st Monday in June. The examination will be conducted either at the College or by an Examiner, Public Works Accounts (including Railway and Telegraph), in Bengal, Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements in regard to the place and hour of examination with the candidates.

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Govern-

*This term includes employment under Local Boards and foreign bodies if such is pensionable by the British Government.
ment employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

2. The candidate should apply to an Examiner of Public Works Accounts not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates, and must be forwarded by him, not direct to the Principal, but through the Examiner.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by the accounts branch, but none will be returned :—

- (1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)

- (2) Certificate of age (baptismal or of birth not required if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).
(3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's handwriting.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application through his immediate official superior to an Examiner of Accounts qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Examiner of Accounts concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Examiner of Accounts to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination or whether his application should be rejected. The Examiner of Accounts will then forward to the Principals for registration the names of the accepted candidates. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Examiner of Accounts. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principals not later than 15 days after the dates fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, but direct to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment, and that in making appointments preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

N. B.—The attention of candidates is drawn to the alteration in rule 2 (3). In future no candidate is to apply direct to the Principal for permission to attend the examination, but must send his application through an Examiner of Public Works Accounts, who will decide whether the candidate is to be admitted.

The Principal will attend to no application received direct.

Principal, Civil Engineering College.

- (1) The F. A. examination of the Calcutta University, or a similar standard of any Indian University recognised by the Calcutta University. The candidate's age must be under 21 years.
- (2) The B. A. examination in the B. course in physics and chemistry. The candidate's age must be under 23 years. (These students are admitted direct into the 2nd-year class.)

The number to be admitted each year is limited to 40. The position in the University examinations and the age of the candidates will be taken into consideration when selection is made, and such selection will be made by the Principal.

Ten scholarships will be awarded to students entering the Engineer Department, not being already holders of junior or senior scholarships. Every applicant before admission to the College will be examined by the College Surgeon as to his physical strength, fitness for manual labour, and eye-sight.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT.

Memorandum by the Army Sanitary Commission, regarding the prevalence of Venereal Disease among the British Troops in India.

Published in continuation of the Report of the Departmental Committee which appeared in Part II of the Gazette of India of the 10th April 1897.)

Memorandum by the Army Sanitary Commission on the prevalence of Venereal Disease among the British Troops in India in the Years 1894 and 1895.

1. In Military letter No. 184 of 1896, from the Government of India, with enclosures, we have the latest record of facts relative to the prevalence of venereal disease among British troops in India.

2. In our memorandum on this question for the year 1892, we stated that we considered the prevalence of venereal disease among European soldiers in India to be a cause of inefficiency, "the grave character of which could hardly be exaggerated." During that year the ratio of admissions into hospital stood at 409·9 per 1,000 of strength. The further progress of this scourge during the subsequent years, from a ratio of 456·0 admissions in 1893 to 511·4 in 1894, and to 522·3 in 1895, induced the Army Sanitary Commission in their memorandum on the report of the Sanitary Commissioner with the Government of India for 1894 to observe :—

"The efforts to teach the soldier habits of self-control having so signally failed, those responsible for the maintenance of the efficiency of the army in India may well be excused if they look about for some effective means of arresting the progress of the disease and preserving their battalions fit for service."

3. The Army Sanitary Commission have to deal with the facts brought before them. The results of experience in India since 1885, when a number of lock-hospitals were closed, and in subsequent years when all restrictive measures were gradually removed, show that a progressive increase of venereal disease has taken place among the British troops serving in India, and there is unfortunately no assurance that this increase has reached its limits.

4. It may at once be granted that during the years when prostitution in cantonments was, to some extent, placed under restriction, the lessening of venereal disease amongst the troops did not come up to what had been expected. In fact we pronounced the efforts to protect the men by the measures introduced for this purpose to have been a "failure." In so far as the operation of such measures did not secure the protection of the soldier to the extent expected, they were unquestionably a failure. But the increase of disease since their complete abolition compels us to admit that, although they failed to bring about any marked reduction in the number of men infected, they nevertheless exercised a very sensible influence in checking increase. Besides this, it seems to be equally certain that they had the effect of preventing, by timely treatment, venereal disease from assuming that virulent and destructive character which the reports received from the Netley Hospital shew it to have now attained. From the Director-General of the Army Medical Department we have before us a communication addressed to the Adjutant General of the Army, describing the condition of a number of our soldiers, the great majority of them invalided from India on account of venereal disease. In many of the cases recovery is hopeless, and what to do with them has become a question of serious difficulty. It is impossible to send them to their homes; their friends refuse to receive them. Death alone can solve the difficulty, and release them from their sufferings.

5. Admitting that the measures adopted with the object of protecting our soldiers only partly attained their purpose, and that the re-introduction of those measures, as they were previously applied, would prove an inadequate remedy, what can be suggested to take their place? Control of prostitution in some form seems to be a reasonable method of dealing with the effects produced by prostitution. We have abundance of evidence to show that in France, Germany, and Russia, where prostitution is placed under restrictions, that in marked contrast with the foregoing figures relative to the British Army in India, the prevalence of venereal disease in the armies of those countries has been reduced to admission ratios as low as from 26·7 to 43·8 per 1,000 of strength. As to the mode in which restriction could be applied in India, the local military, medical, and civil authorities should best be able to offer suggestions and give advice.

6. The question appears to us to be beset with difficulties. We now have proof, however, that the measures heretofore adopted in India, imperfectly administered as they often were, nevertheless effected a sensible influence in checking increase in the number of British soldiers admitted into hospital from venereal disease, and in mitigating the severity of the disease itself.

7. To sensibly check the spread of venereal disease amongst our troops in India by opening voluntary hospitals to which diseased prostitutes may have recourse for treatment as has been proposed is, we fear, in face of recent experience in that country, hopeless. Moreover, experience on the continent of Europe, as in India, shows that such women will not voluntarily resort to these hospitals, however seriously diseased they may be, so long as they are capable of plying their trade. Such an attempt to deal with this problem has hitherto proved, and we fear will continue to prove, futile.

8. It occurs to us that an inquiry into the causes which led to the large increase shown by the returns for the year 1895 to have taken place in the number of admissions into hospital from venereal disease at some stations, and to their decrease at others, might be useful. When, for example, we find that the ratio of admissions into hospital from venereal disease in a garrison of 2,623 men at Lucknow decreased from 536·7 in 1894 to 489·0 in 1895 and that in the same years in the neighbouring station of Cawnpore, with a garrison of 902 men living under apparently the same conditions, this ratio increased from 689·6 to 967·6, it seems to suggest either that some influence adequate to account for so great a contrast was brought to bear upon the troops themselves, or that the contrast was due to differences affecting the native population in and around the two cantonments. In any case, such an inquiry as that suggested could not be useless.

9. Whether or not the absence of any appreciable increase of this disease amongst our Native troops affords sufficient grounds for inferring the absence of an increase of disease amongst the loose women of the country generally, it seems to be evident, judging from the facts before us, either that the women of the class with which the British soldier consorts have, as is probable, increased in number, or that, owing to the unrestricted practice of prostitution of late years, and the absence of effectual measure to ensure their medical treatment or expulsion from cantonments, they have become more generally diseased. Probably both of these inferences may be correct, and both, it appears to us, point to the need for the adoption of some measures calculated to restrict the practice of prostitution by women in this condition.

10. We desire in addition to re-state herein the opinion expressed in the 11th paragraph of our memorandum, dated the 25th of January 1894:—“(11) But we entirely concur in the suggestion contained in the Military Despatch from the Government of India that the authorities should have power, as in the case of other infectious diseases, to expel from cantonments women ‘when they are known to be ‘diseased, and refuse to submit to treatment in hospital.’ We would also strongly advocate that the power of commanding officers should be as much enlarged as practicable in the direction of diminishing the temptations to young soldiers, by preventing women, for example from coming about the lines after dusk, and also in putting places out of bounds where soldiers are believed to have contracted ‘disease.’”

11. We consider that the same but stronger reasons exist for applying similar methods of treatment in the case of this contagious disease to those that are adopted in other contagious diseases with the view of preventing or limiting their spread. The measures that are necessary to prevent women in a diseased condition from spreading contagion apply also to soldiers under the same circumstances. Officers commanding stations, regiments, or corps, on the recommendation of medical officers, should, in the opinion of the Army Sanitary Commission, be vested with discretionary powers to order the medical inspection of soldiers for the detection of venereal disease whenever deemed advisable, or where the disease is believed to be concealed or is unusually prevalent.

12. The Commission recommend that a soldier who has suffered from venereal disease should be subjected to inspection for a year after the date of his having contracted it.

13. As regards the examination and treatment of women for venereal disease, it is suggested whether female medical assistants could not be employed for the purpose under the supervision of the medical officer, or, if the number of these in India be insufficient, whether some native women might not be trained to do this. This would mitigate the objections which might be urged against the examination of women for these diseases by the opposite sex.

Except as provided in these Rules, no person shall intentionally or negligently cause or permit any diseased horse to stray or to be worked, let or driven in a public thoroughfare, road, street, or place.

4. Licenses for the removal of horses which have been with a diseased horse will be granted by an Inspector under section 11 of the Act, on the following conditions, vis. :—

- (1) That the horse to be removed shall be taken direct, under such precautions as the Inspector deems fit to prescribe, to a place to be prescribed by the Inspector where it can be conveniently isolated.
- (2) That whilst so isolated, the horse shall be inspected from time to time, at intervals of not more than a week, by the Inspector, provided he holds a certificate of veterinary proficiency from any Government Veterinary Officer or Institution entitled to grant such certificate, or if he does not hold such certificate, then by the Veterinary Surgeon.
- (3) That the horse shall continue at the appointed place in isolation for so long as the Inspector, provided he holds a certificate of veterinary proficiency from any Government Veterinary Officer or Institution entitled to grant such certificate, or if he does not hold such certificate, then the Veterinary Surgeon, deems it necessary to have it under treatment or observation.

5. The owner or person in charge of any building, enclosure or other premises, which have been occupied by any diseased horse, shall, within seven days, carry out such disinfection of such building, enclosure or other premises and destruction of dung litter, and waste food, gear, and other articles in or near to the premises, as may be prescribed by the Inspector, provided he holds a certificate of veterinary proficiency from any Government Veterinary Officer or Institution entitled to grant such certificate, or if he does not hold such certificate, then by the Veterinary Surgeon.

In all cases, dung, surplus food, and litter from the infected stable, also clothing and other gear which has been used by or been in contact with the diseased horse, shall be consumed or disinfected by fire; temporary building materials, such as thatch of grass or leaves, bamboo walls and matting, shall be burned, if the position admits of this being done with safety, and (after complete removal of all dung, temporary fittings and other articles for destruction by fire) the wood-work of the stable shall be thoroughly washed with boiling water, the walls, wood-work and ceiling shall be scraped and lime-washed with freshly-mixed quicklime and water, to which shall be added crude carbolic acid in the proportion of half a pint to a bucketful of lime-wash, and the flooring shall be removed to a depth of 2 feet and not renewed for the space of two weeks, the removed earth being burnt and replaced by fresh earth. The whole of the interior shall then be fumigated with burning sulphur, chlorine, carbolic vapour, or some other gaseous disinfectant.

6. On a certificate from a Veterinary Surgeon that a horse is diseased, it shall be destroyed humanely in the presence of the Inspector, and the carcass disposed of by burning under the supervision of the Police. Except with the sanction of the Police and for the purpose of burning it, no person shall remove the carcass or any portion of it.

7. In the event of the disinfection of premises and the destruction of gear, fittings, dung, and other articles condemned by the Inspector, not being carried out by the owner within the period of seven days, they shall be carried out by the Inspector under Police supervision, and the expenses shall be recovered from the owner of the premises in the manner prescribed by section 9.

HOOGLY MAGISTRACY;

The 15th April, 1897.

THE YEARLY EXAMINATION OF CANDIDATES FOR 4th GRADE OF ACCOUNTANTS.

The yearly examination of candidates for 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department, will be held at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on Monday and Tuesday, the 7th and 8th June, 1897, at 10-30 A. M. :—

SUBJECTS.	Full marks.	Minimum pass marks.

Dictation (spelling, punctuation, etc.)	100	50
Arithmetic (the whole)	240	160
Mensuration (a) the whole.	60	30
Book-keeping (b) mercantile	100	50
TOTAL	600	400

(b) "Book-keeping" by Ball and Hamilton.
"Book-keeping" by double and single entry, by W. Inglis (Chambers' Educational Course).

1. The examination is held annually at the Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, on the 1st Monday in June. The examination will be conducted either at the College or by an Examiner, Public Works Accounts (including Railway and Telegraph), in Bengal, Assam and Burma only. The examination will be ipso facto vitiated, if it be not held (begun and completed) on the dates fixed; but the officer who will conduct the examination may make his own arrangements in regard to the place and hour of examination with the candidates

Candidates will not be examined in any of the Calcutta offices.

A candidate already in permanent Govern-

* This term includes employment under Local Boards and foreign bodies if such is pensionable by the British Government.

ment employ* may be allowed to compete in the examination even if he is more than 25 years of age, and may be appointed to an accountantship if he passes it; but if he is not already in pensionable service, he will be eligible only for appointment to the non-pensionable establishment on State Railways.

2. The candidate should apply to an Examiner of Public Works Accounts not later than 30 days previous to the date fixed for the examination and obtain his consent to conduct the examination, if examination at the College is not convenient. The application must bear the address of the candidate, must be accompanied by a fee of Rs 10 and the following certificates, and must be forwarded by him, not direct to the Principal, but through the Examiner.

Certificates may be submitted in original, or true copies attested by an officer of the Engineer or Accounts Branch, but none will be returned :—

- (1) Certificate of good character signed by applicant's immediate official superior, or by the instructor under whom he has been educated, or by some other superior under whom he may have been brought up or employed, or to whom he may be well known. (This certificate must have special reference to the two years immediately preceding the application.)
- (2) Certificate of age (baptismal or of birth not required if the candidate is already in permanent Government employ).
- (3) Certificate that the application is in the candidate's handwriting.

NOTE.—A candidate already in Government service should, in like manner, submit his application through his immediate official superior to an Examiner of Accounts qualified to hold the particular examination, and should state whether he desires to be examined at the office of the Examiner of Accounts concerned or at the College.

It will rest with the Examiner of Accounts to whom the candidate submits his application, to decide, on a consideration of the certificates submitted, whether the candidate should be allowed to appear for the examination or whether his application should be rejected. The Examiner of Accounts will then forward to the Principals for registration the names of the accepted candidates. The names of these candidates should be entered in a statement showing their ages and their addresses, and also showing where each candidate is to be examined, whether at the College or at the office of the Examiner of Accounts. This statement, together with the fees, should be transmitted to the Principals not later than 15 days after the date fixed in paragraph 2 for the submission of applications of candidates.

3. Examination papers that are issued for examination need not be returned.

4. Each examination is complete in itself. A candidate who has failed in an examination and presents himself for examination on a subsequent occasion, must undergo the full examination and furnish fresh fee and certificates.

5. Passed candidates should apply, not to the Principal of the College, nor to the Accountant-General, Public Works Department, but direct to the Examiner of Public Works Accounts in the province or railway under whom they may desire to be employed.

6. It must be distinctly understood that the passing of this examination does not give any claim to an appointment, and that in making appointments preference will be given to qualified persons who are already employed in the Department.

7. The Civil Engineering College acts solely as an examining body in reference to admission to the 4th grade of Accountants, Public Works Department.

N. B.—The attention of candidates is drawn to the alteration in rule 2 (3). In future no candidate is to apply direct to the Principal for permission to attend the examination, but must send his application through an Examiner of Public Works Accounts, who will decide whether the candidate is to be admitted.

The Principal will attend to no application received direct.

A Dictionary of the Economic Products of India.

By DR. GEO. WATF, C.I.E.,

Reporter on Economic Products.

The first five volumes and Volume VI, Parts I, II, III, & IV of the Dictionary are ready at the Office of the Superintendent of Government Printing, No. 8, Hastings Street, Calcutta, and will be supplied to non-subscribers on receipt of the price for the complete set, which is R45 in India, and 3 guineas in England (exclusive of the index, for which a separate charge will be made): packing and postage, in India, 8 annas per volume; for England, 2 rupees 6 annas per volume. For copies bound in half calf or half morocco, R6 and 8 shillings, respectively, will be charged extra for the whole set.

The Dictionary is intended to deal with the products of India—animal, vegetable, and mineral; each product being treated after a uniform plan, the paragraphs of which give the scientific, vernacular, and European names; habitat or source; history; properties and uses (both chemical and industrial); trade statistics; markets, etc. The work is arranged alphabetically according to scientific nomenclature, but commercial and important vernacular names are also given as cross-references, so that little difficulty need be experienced in finding the account of a product even when its scientific name is unknown to the reader.

An important feature of the Dictionary consists in the fact that derived information is in every instance given under quotation marks, and with a reference to the original publication. Numerous contributors have, however, furnished the results of new discoveries, and confirmed the vernacular names, so that the Dictionary is not only a complete compilation of published information, but has been brought abreast of the most recent inventions and discoveries.

Volume I contains the letters A and B, and consists of 559 royal 8vo pages; Volume II embraces the letter C in 689 pages; Volume III contains the letters D, E, F, and half of G; Volume IV, latter half of G to middle of L; and Volume V contains the latter half of L to end of O; Vol. VI (which consists of four parts), Part I, contains letters P to R. The whole work completed in nine volumes (including Parts II to IV of Vol. VI), but a tenth volume may also be issued, consisting of an Index to all the vernacular and other names contained in the Dictionary. The Index will practically be a glossary of the vernacular and European names of the plants, animals, and minerals of India, and, as such, will be a work of reference, which, it is hoped, may prove of considerable value.

No. 120 I., dated Simla, the 22nd April, 1897.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read—

Revenue Report of Irrigation Works in Rajputana for the year 1895-96, forwarded with letter No. 370-S., dated the 6th February 1897, from the Secretary to the Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner, Rajputana, Public Works Department.

OBSERVATIONS.—The average rainfall of the Ajmere-Merwara District was 16·03 inches in 1895-96 as against 26·92 inches in 1894-95, and was below the normal annual rainfall of the ten years ending 1892-93, which is shown as 19·49 inches.

The tanks were not sufficiently filled as the rainfall was insufficient and the individual falls were light.

The average rainfall of eight stations in Ajmere was 17·06 inches, and the average of five stations in Merwara was 15·00 inches for the year under review.

2. The capital outlay during the year amounted to Rs. 24,625 (including indirect charges), and was incurred on tanks in the Ajmere and Todgarh Sub-Collectorates. There was no change in the classification of tanks during the year. There was no irrigation during the year under review from the Kair and Khanpura tanks, which were made over to the Revenue Department in 1894-95 for irrigation purposes. Some land was irrigated from the Barol and Tabiji tanks and the revenue derived therefrom amounted to Rs. 636. The total capital expenditure to the end of the year in the three sub-collectorates of Ajmere, Beawar and Todgarh amounted to Rs. 24,43,805.

The total area irrigated from, and protected by the tanks in the Ajmere-Merwara Districts during the year under review amounted to 31,129 acres; and the return of net revenue on the capital outlay to the end of the year was 3·83 per cent.

3. The actual financial results of the year under review, taken from the Revenue Accounts, are shown below :

Tanks in	Total capital outlay to the end of the year, including indirect charges.	GROSS REVENUE COLLECTED.			WORKING EXPENSES.			Net Revenue.	Percentage of net revenue on capital to end of year.
		Direct Revenue receipts.	Share of Land Revenue.	Total.	Direct.	Indirect.	Total.

The year's working resulted in a net profit of Rs. 93,664, or 3·83 per cent., on the total direct and indirect capital outlay, against 3·91 per cent. in the previous year. The decrease in the gross revenue, amounting to Rs. 2,148, is attributed to the short supply of water in the tanks.

The gross revenue collected was made up as follows:

	1895-96. Rs.	1894-95. Rs.
Water-rates directly paid ...	14,025	11,571
Share of enhanced land revenue	1,16,035	1,20,016
Miscellaneous receipts ...	2,561	3,182
	1,32,621	1,34,769

4. The areas irrigated and the irrigation assessments are shown in the following table:

Sub-Collectorate.	Irrigation revenue	AREA			Assessment per acre.
		Irrigated.	Protected.	Total.

Total for 1894-95	1,25,326	22,297	11,623	33,920	3·69

The irrigation revenue assessed includes assessments due on protected as well as on irrigated areas.

Of the irrigated areas, 11,337 acres were cultivated under Kharif and 8,787 acres under Rabi crop, against 11,801 and 10,469 acres, respectively, in the preceding year. The remission of water revenue during the year under review amounted to Rs. 108, and was due on account of the Rabi harvest of 1891-92.

5. The following table shows the distribution of the working expenses:

					1894-95.	1895-96.	Difference.
					Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Works	3,005	2,906	—99
Maintenance and Repairs	18,626	17,119	—1,507

Tools and Plant	—387	335	+722
Leave and Pension allowances	1,491	1,472	—19
Total	40,055	38,957	—1,098

The cost of working expenses per acre amounted to Rs. 1·25 as compared with Rs. 1·18 in the preceding year.

The establishment charges were made up of the following items :

					Rs.
Direction	2,003
Executive	7,387
Civil officers	7,735

6. As in the preceding year, experiments were made during the year under review to ascertain the outturn of the several crops irrigated, and the results have been tabulated.

The value of the crops raised during the year is estimated at Rs. 8,17,321 against Rs. 6,07,766 in the preceding year.

7. Measurements taken during the year to test the influence of the tanks on the spring level of wells show that, out of a total of 483 wells measured, 265 were benefited by the tanks, while the remainder were unaffected by them. Of the 265 wells which derived advantage, the spring levels of 31, registered in September 1895, had increased by the following April, while those of 215 had decreased. Of the remainder the level was unchanged or showed no substantial difference.

8. From statement I-E. attached to the report, in which information is given regarding the areas irrigated and the duty of water, it appears that there was no irrigation during the year from the Makrera new and old tanks in the Ajmere District, nor from the Jalia and Chitar tanks in the Merwara District.

9. The report was received on the 10th February 1897, and is accompanied by a map of the Ajmere and Merwara Districts showing the positions of the tanks.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this review be forwarded to the Agent to the Governor General and Chief Commissioner, Rajputana, for information.

Also that a copy of the review and of the report be forwarded to the Governments of Madras, Bombay, Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and the Punjab, in the Public Works Department, for information.

Also that the review be published in the Gazette of India.

Weather Review of India for the Week ending at 8 a.m. on Saturday, April 24th, 1897.

The past week has been one of unsettled weather, accompanying large changes of pressure and of temperature. The weather was fairly fine on the morning of the 18th, with a high temperature, and the only rainfall was a few scattered showers; but, on the morning of the 19th, pressure was giving way slightly at Quetta and rapidly in Kashmir, and southerly winds and rain were reported from Baluchistan. From this day onward conditions became unsettled over North-West India, and showers of rain fell daily on and near the North-West Himalayas, while snow was reported from parts of Kashmir on the 20th and 21st. This rainfall and snowfall was followed by a rapid reduction of temperature which subsequently extended over a very large part of the country. On the 20th, 21st and 22nd thunderstorms occurred over Bengal and Assam, giving moderate rainfall to several stations in that area, and occasioning in this region also a rapid fall of temperature. In the centre and south of India the weather was much quieter and more settled, and though scattered showers occasionally occurred in these regions, and though temperature participated in the large changes which occurred in regions further to the northward, the weather generally in the Peninsula and the Central Provinces was less disturbed than was the case in Northern India. The mean temperature for the whole country for the whole week was very nearly normal.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, April 18th.—The barometer was falling briskly in the north-west and rising briskly in parts of the north-east, but elsewhere the changes were small. Low pressures were reported from the Punjab and Rajputana and high pressures from the Bombay Coast. The winds were variable in the north-west, but were nearly normal elsewhere. The force was, however, rising considerably in the north-west. The mean temperature was excessive in nearly all parts of the country—most so over the Gangetic Plain. A few local duststorms and thunderstorms had given some rain, but the amounts were small and the showers widely scattered.

Monday, April 19th.—The barometer had risen briskly to rapidly in Burma and briskly over the North Gangetic Plain, but elsewhere the changes were generally slight, though at the higher stations in Kashmir a rapid fall had taken place. Readings were lowest over the Central Punjab and highest in Tenasserim. Easterly winds blew along the foot of the hills from Assam, westward to Roorkee. The temperature had fallen, except over the Central Provinces, but the heat was still generally excessive, though by smaller amounts than on the preceding day. Baluchistan had received moderate rain, and thunderstorms had given moderate local rainfall to parts of Burma and of East Bengal, while South-West India had received fairly general showers.

Tuesday, April 20th.—Pressure had decreased, except over part of North-West India, where there had been a slight to brisk rise. A shallow but well-marked depression lay over the West Punjab, and a largish shallow depression lay over West Bengal and the adjoining parts of the Central Provinces and of the North-West Provinces. The winds varied considerably in direction, but were irregularly cyclonic in the neighbourhoods of the two depressions. There had been a large fall of temperature. The heat still exceeded the normal average all over the more central parts of the country, but was less than usual over the Punjab, Rajputana and Sind, over the Deccan, over Lower Bengal and over part of Burma. Light showers had fallen at most stations in the Punjab, while light to moderate rain had been received over Bengal and Assam, and a few local showers in the Peninsula.

Wednesday, April 21st.—Pressure had changed irregularly, but by considerable amounts. The distribution was complicated. Shallow low pressure areas were shown over the Western desert, over the North Gangetic Plain, over Lower Bengal and over the Madras Deccan, while readings were high in Tenasserim. The winds were very variable. The mean temperature was lower than usual over the greater part of the country. At Peshawar the abnormal deficiency was over 16°, at Jeypore over 15° and at Berhampore over 5°. Thunder and dust storms had occasioned showers of rain at many stations in North-East and North-West India, while a few local showers were reported from the Peninsula and the central parts of the country.

Thursday, April 22nd.—Pressure had generally increased; the change in many places having been brisk. The principal feature in the distribution was the shallow low pressure area over the Western desert. To the north of this depression steep gradients existed. The winds were irregularly cyclonic in the north-west and the force was rising. Elsewhere the winds varied very considerably. The mean temperature was higher than usual in parts of the west and south of the Peninsula and in Assam and Burma, but was low everywhere else. The abnormal deficiency exceeding 12° at Ludhiana, 10° at Agra and 13° at Burdwan. Scattered rain showers had occurred over Burma, Assam, Bengal, the North Punjab and the Peninsula.

Friday, April 23rd.—Pressure had decreased again, but there had been no important change in the distribution. The shallow depression in the north-west had spread into the Punjab, but this was practically the only change of importance. The winds were northerly to westerly over the western half of India and southerly to easterly over the eastern half. The force was rising quickly on the North-West Himalayas. The temperature was rising, and though there was still an abnormal deficiency of heat over Northern India, the amount of this deficiency was less than on preceding days. Showers had occurred over the North-West Himalayas and the North Punjab as well as at one or two places in the Peninsula.

Saturday, April 24th.—Pressure had recovered very generally, and the depression in the north-west had almost disappeared. The winds were unchanged. The mean temperature remained low over North-West India, and in the north of the Punjab was between 10° and 12° lower than usual. Showers of rain, generally of small amount, had been received over Baluchistan, the North-West Himalayas, Rajputana and parts of the Peninsula.

Temperature.—A very large change in the temperature conditions has occurred during the week under review. The abnormally high temperatures which prevailed throughout the whole country at the close of last week continued during the first two days of the present week. Then, under the influence of the disturbed weather noticed above, a rapid reduction of temperature occurred and affected the greater part of the country. The coolest day relatively to the normal was the 22nd, after which a recovery commenced, and at the close of the week the area of deficient heat was confined to North-West India, a moderate to slight excess existing in other parts of the country.

The following table gives temperature data for the week :

PROVINCE.	APRIL 1897.							Mean variation of week.
	18th	19th	20th	21st	22nd	23rd	24th
	o	c	o	o	o	o	o	o

Mean for whole of India	+4.9	+3.9	+2.0	—3.2	—3.6	—1.6	+0.2	+0.3

The above figures show exceptionally large temperature changes during the week. For example, in the North-West Provinces, there was an abnormal excess of 8° on the 18th and an abnormal deficiency of 7° on the 22nd, in the Punjab an excess of $6^{\circ}\cdot 8$ on the 18th and a deficiency of 12° on the 21st, in Sind and Rajputana an excess of $6^{\circ}\cdot 7$ on the 18th and a deficiency of 10° on the 21st.

The following are the highest temperatures recorded on each day :

April 18th	$114^{\circ}\cdot 5$ at Deesa.
„ 19th	$113^{\circ}\cdot 5$ „ Akola.
„ 20th	$114^{\circ}\cdot 0$ „ „
„ 21st	$110^{\circ}\cdot 7$ „ Nagpur.
„ 22nd	$105^{\circ}\cdot 7$ „ Bellary.
„ 23rd	$108^{\circ}\cdot 6$ „ Akola.
„ 24th	$108^{\circ}\cdot 2$ „ Nagpur.

Rain.—The quiet hot weather, which prevailed over India during the week ending on April the 17th, disappeared on the second day of the period under review when disturbed weather entered the north-west, apparently from the westward, and subsequently spread to a large part of Northern India. The central and southern parts of the country were less affected than the more northern districts, but even here the weather in several places was more showery than usual. The wettest periods of the week in the different provinces were as follows : Burma, the first two days ; Bengal and Assam, the 20th and 21st ; the North-West Provinces and the greater part of the Punjab, the 20th and 21st ; the north of the Punjab, the whole week ; the Peninsula, scattered showers throughout the week ; and the central parts of the country, the 21st. The distribution of the rainfall relatively to the normal was such as ordinarily obtains at this season of the year, that is to say, the burst of rain in the north-west was accompanied with unusually heavy rain in the north-east also, while the intervening region, viz., the North-West Provinces and the Central Provinces had generally less rain than usual.

The rainfall table at the close shows that rain was received during the week under review in no less than fifty of the rainfall divisions. But of these, there were fifteen which had less than one-tenth of an inch as the average fall of the division for the week, so that it was only in thirty-five that effective rainfall was received. This number was, however, three times as large as the number which received effective rain last week. The area, over which the rainfall was actually or practically nil, included the following divisions : Upper Burma, Orissa, all the North-West Provinces divisions (except the west submontane and the hills), the south-east and centre of the Punjab, the Konkan, Khandesh, all the central divisions, Gujarat, Kathiawar and the south of the East Coast. In all other places effective rain fell, the amounts ranging from about $0\cdot 10$ inch to $0\cdot 15$ inch in Chota Nagpur, the west submontane division of the North-West Provinces, the east of the Central Provinces and Sind, to about $2\cdot 00$ inches in the North Punjab and to about $1\cdot 50$ inches in Assam (Surma and Hills), Central and North Bengal and the Punjab Hills. The third column of the table shows that the rainfall of the week exceeded the normal average in thirty-two of the rainfall divisions. The excess was reported principally from North-West and North-East India, though over a considerable part of the Peninsula the rainfall was slightly heavier than usual. The abnormal excess was about one inch in amount in Central Bengal, North Bihar, the Punjab (Hills; Submontane and North Divisions) and the Baluchistan Hills, and was greatest in the North Punjab, where the average normal rainfall for the period is $0\cdot 31$ inch, and the actual average rainfall was as much as $2\cdot 12$ inches. Assam did not share in the excessive rainfall which prevailed over the greater part of North-East India, as there was an average deficiency of about half an inch over that province.

The rainfall for the whole period, from February 28th to April 24th, has been somewhat irregularly distributed with respect to the normal. Thus there has been considerable deficiency over Tenasserim, Assam, the Gangetic Plain, the centre and east of the Punjab, the Konkan, North Bombay and generally over the central parts of the country, while, on the other hand, parts of Bengal, the east of the North-West Provinces and of the Central Provinces, the north of the Punjab and the south of the Peninsula have had more rain than usual.

The following are the principal totals recorded during the week :

Lower Burma	Pegu	1·81 inches.
Arakan	Minbya (Akyab)	1·90 „
East Bengal	Durgapur (Mymensingh)	3·95 „
Assam	Sunamgunj (Sylhet)	4·78 „
Bengal	Panchbibi (Bogra)	3·44 „
Bihar	Madhubain (Bhagalpur)	2·50 „
Punjab	Abbottabad	4·36 „
Malabar	Trichur	2·55 „
Mysore	Haliyar	4·49
Deccan	Norgund	4·32
East Coast	Gamiavarun (Kistna)	2·35

INDIAN FAMINE RELIEF FUND.

The following paper is published for general information :

1. Despatch from Her Majesty's Secretary of State, No. 46-Revenue, dated 18th March 1897, and enclosures.

No. 46-Revenue, dated India Office, London, the 18th March 1897.

From—Her Majesty's Secretary of State for India,

To—His Excellency the Right Honourable the Governor General of India in Council.

I forward, for your Excellency's information, copy of the papers noted in the margin, concerning steps taken to raise subscriptions to the Famine Relief Fund in Roumania.

Foreign Office letter, dated 3rd March 1897, with enclosure.
Letter to Foreign Office, dated 8th March 1897.

Dated Foreign Office, London, the 3rd March 1897.

From—SIR T. H. SANDERSON, K.C.M.G., Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs,

To—The Under Secretary of State for India.

I am directed by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs to transmit to you, to be laid before the Secretary of State for India, copy of a despatch as marked in the margin, relating to Indian Famine Relief.

Sir H. Wyndham's No. 15, dated 23rd February 1897.

No. 15, dated Bucharest, the 23rd February 1897.

From—SIR HUGH WYNDHAM, K.C.M.G., British Minister,

To—The MARQUESS of SALISBURY, K.G., etc., etc., etc.

I have the honour to report that His Majesty the King told me some days ago at a Court Ball that the Lord Mayor of London had telegraphed to the Mayor of Bucharest begging his assistance towards the Indian Famine Relief Fund. His Majesty at the same time expressed much sympathy with the sufferers in India.

Later on the same evening I had some conversation on the subject with the Mayor, who told me he was going to take steps at once to meet the wishes of the Lord Mayor. Monsieur Robesco, the Mayor of Bucharest, dined with me last night and informed me that His Majesty the King had subscribed 3,000 francs, and that the Municipal Council had voted 5,000 francs towards the Indian Famine Fund, that he had telegraphed to all town and Communal Councils in the Kingdom asking for their sympathy, and that as soon as he had received their replies he proposed handing the money collected to me for transmission to England.

I thanked Monsieur Robesco most cordially for what had been done in Roumania towards alleviating the great distress in India, and told him that I would gladly take charge of the money he intended to confide to me for transmission to London.

I propose forwarding it on its receipt to Your Lordship.

No. 805-R. & S., dated India Office, London, the 8th March 1897.

From—SIR A. GODLEY, K.C.B., Under Secretary of State for India,

To—The Under Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

With reference to Sir Thomas Sanderson's letter, dated the 3rd March 1897, I am directed to request that an expression of the thanks of Her Majesty's Government may be conveyed to His Majesty the King of Roumania, to the Mayor of Bucharest, and, through the Mayor, to the rest of the Roumanian subscribers, for the liberality and sympathy which they have shown towards Her Majesty's Indian subjects now suffering from famine.

A copy of Sir Hugh Wyndham's letter, reporting what is being done, will be forwarded to the Government of India for the information of the people in that country.

I have the honour to report to your Lordship that, according to a notice published in the Hamburg Official Gazette (of which it is not at present possible to obtain a copy), the German Imperial Law of February 8th,* 1897, prohibiting, in order to guard against and prevent the introduction of the plague, the importation by sea to this and other ports of the Empire from Persia, the mainland of India, Formosa, Hong Kong, Macao, and from China (south of the thirtieth degree of latitude), of the following articles, vis. :

POSTAL NOTICE.

The attention of the public is invited to the advantages of fully prepaying postage on packets of printed papers for the United Kingdom. It has been found that in a large number of cases these packets are posted with insufficient postage, which, although allowed by the rules, leads to delay in their delivery, and causes annoyance to the persons addressed. It has, therefore, been thought desirable to bring the matter to general notice.

H. E. PASSY, Major,

Pay Examiner, Bengal Command, and ex-officio Secretary, Military Orphan Schools

PAY EXAMINER'S OFFICE, BENGAL COMMAND,
Calcutta, the 1st April, 1897.

- attempt to crush or struggle forwards, there would have been great loss of life, as, owing to the angle of the heel (about 50°) of the vessel, it was impossible to walk on the deck without holding on to the rails or ropes, and any struggling or pushing would have inevitably resulted in many men being precipitated into the water and drowned.
25. There were numerous cases of great gallantry displayed by officers and men jumping off the rocks to save exhausted and drowning men. I have not yet got the necessary evidence to enable me to give the names, as there is great difficulty in getting them to come forward, but I hope to obtain the evidence necessary for some cases soon, and will deal with the subject in a separate letter.
 26. At 6 A.M., as the vessel had ceased heeling over and appeared to be held by the rocks, I gave permission to salve as much as possible. This work was carried on until 10 A.M., when the 1st Lieutenant reported to me that it was unsafe to remain any longer on board as the sea was rising rapidly, and that he had given orders to cease work and remove everyone from the wreck. Sentries were posted to prevent anyone going on board.
 27. Previous to this, at 8 A.M., I had proceeded to the village of Sainte Philippe and telegraphed to the British Consul at Saint Denis.
 28. During the day every thing possible was done for the men. Provisions, etc., were ordered, and all arrangements made for the next day. All necessary orders were issued to ensure the departure next morning from Sainte Philippe for Saint Pierre of all sick, women and children, Warren Hastings's crew, and about 600 men, these (except vessel's crew) having nearly all saved boots. The remaining men could not march as they had no boots.
 29. Lieutenant-Colonel Forestier-Walker and I left Sainte Philippe at 8-30 A.M. for Saint Pierre, arriving there at 2 A.M., 15th instant, as it was necessary we should go on ahead to make arrangements for receiving and forwarding on the troops at Saint Pierre. This we did, and sent everyone on to Pointe des Galèts Harbour, Le Port de Réunion, in three special trains after their arrival at Saint Pierre on the 15th and 16th instant.
 30. At 4 A.M. of the 17th instant all were embarked on board the S.S. Lalpoora, which vessel I had chartered from the 15th instant. We left Galèts Harbour, Réunion, the same evening, and arrived at Mauritius at 6 A.M. on the 18th instant, and being admitted to pratique at 0-15 P.M. the same day, came into the harbour and landed everyone.
 31. I left behind at Réunion Lieutenants St. John and Windham, and 11 men of the R.I.M. Troopship Warren Hastings to endeavour to salve as much baggage, etc., as possible.
 32. I have now to bring to Your Excellency's notice the great kindness and hospitality shown to us by the inhabitants of Réunion Island, whether Government officials or otherwise.
 33. All through the time of our stay in the island, everything that was humanly possible was done to make the lot of all as comfortable as it could be made under the circumstances. The people gave us of the best they had, and many refused to take payment of any kind, and from the officials we received every assistance, always kindly and cheerfully given.
 34. I have also to bring particularly to your notice the exceeding great kindness extended to us by Monsieur Coulon of Sainte Philippe. This gentleman kept open house while we stayed in the village. The ladies were lodged in his house and were cared for by his family in the kindest manner. It is difficult to express in words our gratitude for all that was done for them by this gentleman and his family.
 35. Also I wish to bring to your notice the great kindness and assistance we received from the following French officials:
 - M. le Maire de Sainte Philippe.
 - Monsieur le Capitaine Bertho, Capitaine de Port le Port.
 - Monsieur le Capitaine Jules Barre, Lieutenant de Port Saint Pierre.
 - Monsieur Alfred Chaton, sous-officier, Gendarmerie.
 36. I have asked Her Majesty's Consul at Réunion to convey to each of these our thanks for the kindness and assistance so cheerfully given to us.
 37. Mr. Bennett, Her Britannic Majesty's Consul at Réunion, was untiring in his efforts to do everything possible to facilitate the transporting of the men from Sainte Philippe to the Lalpoora, and it was mainly owing to his efforts that everything worked so smoothly with the people of the island. Not being able to get down to Sainte Philippe himself, he sent his secretary, Mr. Fiat. This officer stayed with me from first to last. His services were invaluable. He worked night and day, ready at all times to do anything required, and it would be gratifying if he received from the Government some mark of approval of his services.
 38. Your Excellency will, I feel sure, bring to the notice of our Government the great kindness and hospitality of the French people of Réunion, with a view to their receiving such acknowledgment as may be customary.
 39. The cause of the deplorable catastrophe is, I feel sure, the strong northerly current of 8½ miles in 11½ hours, in conjunction with the thick weather at the time.

40. At the time of the loss of the vessel there were on board, all told, 1,246.

From LIEUTENANT-COLONEL M. FORESTIER-WALKER, King's Royal Rifles, late Commanding Troops, R.I.M.S. Warren Hastings, to the Deputy Assistant Adjutant-General, Mauritius, dated 28th January 1896.

1. I have the honor to forward, for the information of the Major-General Commanding, the following report of the circumstances connected with the loss of the R.I.M.S. Warren Hastings, of the troops on board of which I was in command.
2. The ship left Cape Town on 6th instant with the head-quarters and four companies of 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, four companies, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, and one warrant officer and 24 men, Middlesex Regiment, en route to this island, where she was due at mid-day on 14th instant. The total number of troops on board was 22 officers, 4 warrant officers, 940 non-commissioned officers and men, 4 ladies, 13 women and 10 children.

At 2-20 A.M. on the night of the 13th and 14th instant, I was awakened by a shock, and realizing from the grating sound what had occurred, I dressed hurriedly and went up to the bridge to report myself for orders to the Captain of the Ship, Commander G. E. Holland, D.S.O., Royal Indian Marine. All this time drenching rain was falling in torrents and making a great noise, pouring on the awnings and decks, and the night was so intensely dark that it was impossible to distinguish anything more than a few feet away, and impossible to make out where the vessel was, or to see anything at all of the land, or the nature of the rocks on which she was lying, though it was believed that the vessel had struck on the coast of the Island of Réunion. The sea at the time was calm, though there was a moderate swell. The engines were then working at full speed ahead, and were kept so until stopped by the water.

4. I received orders from Commander Holland to have all the troops fallen in down below, the guard alone being on the upper deck, and these were ordered down almost immediately after, leaving only such sentries as were necessary.

On receiving a report that the rock against which the ship's bows were resting appeared to afford landing space, Commander Holland, at 3-25 A.M., sent Lieutenants Dobbin and Windham, Royal Indian Marine, down over the bows, with blue lights, to investigate and report, and informed me that, if practicable, he would commence landing the men, in a similar way, as soon as possible. In order to facilitate this, I gave directions that the men should be formed up by regiments, the King's Royal Rifles on the port side and the York and Lancaster and details on the starboard side of the ship, so that the two forward companions could be used simultaneously.

6. Up to this time, though the vessel was bumping heavily, she was lying on a fairly even keel, and Commander Holland therefore considered that the disembarkation of the ladies, women, and children could with safety be deferred till day-light, as it could then be carried out with so much more safety and convenience to them; and orders were therefore issued, on his learning from the officers sent that landing was feasible, for the disembarkation of the men to commence. I had previously given instructions that such of the men as were able should fetch their rifles and boots, and at 4 A.M. disembarkation commenced by rope ladders on either side of the bow.
7. At the same time, by Commander Holland's direction, I detailed two officers, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, the one Major Gore Browne, to land with the men and take command on shore, the other, Captain Prendergast, whose excellent knowledge of French was likely to be of good service, to proceed to the nearest village and try and make any arrangement possible for the reception of the ladies, women and children and men. Very soon after 4 A.M. the vessel gave a heavy bump, and a lurch to starboard, and as she appeared heeling over, everyone was ordered on the upper deck. The men came up by various companies and the regularity of the disembarkation was not interfered with. At 4-20 A.M., owing to the list increasing, Commander Holland deemed it necessary that the ladies, women and children, and such sick as required assistance, should be landed at once, and for this purpose suspended the disembarkation of the men till it was satisfactorily completed.
8. The sea was by this time beginning to wash over the upper deck on the starboard side, and I received instructions to get all the men as far as possible over to the port side of the ship, and as Commander Holland considered that she was now in imminent danger of heeling right over and probably sinking in deep water, it became necessary to expedite the disembarkation, and orders were therefore given to discard both rifles and boots; this order was the more necessary, as it was impossible to move along the deck without using both hands to support oneself. At about this time, 4-35 A.M., the electric light, which most fortunately had lasted so long, gave out, but happily it was almost day-light.

The list to starboard still continuing to increase, Commander Holland, about 4-55 A.M., gave permission to men who were good swimmers to drop off and swim ashore on the port side, a distance of some 30 yards, and the first man who did so, Private McNamara, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, was successful in carrying a line to the land, by aid of which some three or four ropes were carried and made fast, and were the means of assisting a considerable number of men to the shore. Though the swell at the time was only moderate, the waves were breaking on the rocks with considerable force and the backwash was sufficient to prevent anyone landing without assistance, and groups of men were all along the shore helping others as they came near. By this time, too, in addition to the ladders already mentioned, one or two ropes had been hung over the bows, by which men clambered down on the rocks.

10. The disembarkation of the troops was completed by 5-30 A.M., and I then, by Commander Holland's directions, left the bridge and went ashore. Here I learned that we were on the island of Réunion, and within about half a mile of the village of Sainte Philippe, and that Captain Prendergast was there making all the arrangements he could. A little later, as it seemed that the vessel had settled down and showed no immediate signs of any further heeling over, Commander Holland authorized attempts being made to save the light baggage and anything else possible, and for this purpose I ordered two parties of 50 men each to be detailed from the King's Royal Rifles and York and Lancaster Regiment to assist, and to form a chain over the rocks from the wreck to the mainland of the island, where the baggage could be collected—a distance of about 100 yards. The party of the former regiment was subsequently increased by about 25 or 30 more men, and the remainder of the troops I directed to be marched to the village. It was then found that, providentially, no lives among the troops had been lost.

11. About 9 A.M. the parties mentioned above were relieved by some 80 or 100 men of the York and Lancaster Regiment, and these continued to work until 10 A.M., when the 1st Lieutenant of the ship, Lieutenant St. John, who was in charge at the time, considering the wreck to be unsafe, directed everyone to leave, and the whole of the troops, with the exception of a small guard placed over the baggage saved, with sentries close to the ship to prevent any looting, were then collected in the village of Sainte Philippe. The baggage was subsequently brought up the village, and the sentries, being relieved by the local French police, were withdrawn. Commander Holland had previously proceeded to the village and placed himself in telegraphic communication with the British Consul at Saint Denis, and had also made every possible arrangement for the supply of rations to the troops, a considerable portion of which had to be brought from Saint Joseph, about 10½ miles distant, a sufficient quantity not being procurable at Sainte Philippe. This involved a certain amount of delay, but, fortunately, some preserved beef and biscuits had been saved from the wreck and were available for immediate issue.

12. During the day a reply was received from the Consul, stating that the B.I.S.S. Lalpoora was at Pointe-des-Galèts, and available to take on the troops, and I was informed she would probably be chartered for this purpose. Saint Pierre, the nearest place, with a harbour, where there would be any chance of embarking the men, is distant from Sainte Philippe about 21 miles, and it was absolutely necessary that everyone should be got on there as soon as possible, as the smaller towns and villages would be unable to find the requisite provisions for so large a force. Carriage for the ladies, women and children and sick was essential, and, in addition, there were some 350 men without boots who could not possibly march the distance. Commander Holland had, therefore, asked the aid of the local authorities at Saint Pierre and Saint Joseph to secure as many carriages and carts as could be got, and having arranged that the men capable of walking should march the following day, the 15th instant, to Saint Joseph, and that the ladies, women, children and sick and as many men as the carts procurable could carry should also start the following morning and go right through to Saint Pierre, he left for the latter place at 8 P.M., 14th instant, taking me with him, with a view to making all further arrangements necessary.

13. The command of the troops remaining at Sainte Philippe devolved on Major Kirkpatrick, York and Lancaster Regiment.

14. The people of the village had been most kind in providing the best accommodation at their disposal, the sick being put up in the Mairie and the women and children in the convent. The men were quartered in two empty enclosures, the best sleeping accommodation which was available being given them, and they were made as comfortable as could be expected under the circumstances. Commander Holland and I reached Saint Pierre about 2-15 A.M. on the 15th instant.

15. It had been his intention to have the B.I.S.S. Lalpoora brought round there, but she could not have entered the harbour, and the sea, on the morning of the 15th instant, was too high to admit of any boats passing in or out, so she was ordered to remain at Point-des-Galèts, and, as the railway begins at Saint Pierre, arrangements were made for a special train to convey everyone to the former place to embark. The old barracks at Saint Pierre were placed at our disposal, and afforded sufficient and excellent accommodation, especially as it was not intended that anyone should stop there more than a few hours.

16. I had directed Major Kirkpatrick to proceed in command of the party, about 600 strong, marching from Sainte Philippe to Saint Joseph, and left it to him to decide whether, after a rest and a meal there, the men were fit to complete the march to Saint Pierre the same day. About 12 o'clock I received a telegram from him, saying he intended to halt at Saint Joseph for the night. The ladies, women, children and sick arrived during the course of the day in carts and carriages, and at 8 P.M. a special train was got off, in which Commander Holland left, with the whole of them, nearly all the crew of the R.I.M.S. Warren Hastings, and as many of the men without boots as had arrived up to then, together with two officers—in all about 400.

With the kind assistance of the Mayor of Saint Pierre more carts had been placed at our disposal for the purpose of bringing up the remaining men from Sainte Philippe, and instructions were sent by Commander Holland to Lieutenant St. John, who, with Captain Prendergast, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, had remained in charge, telling him to bring everyone along, and to arrange to arrive at Saint Pierre by 3 P.M. on the 16th instant.

I also sent orders to Major Kirkpatrick to march so as to arrive not later than 11 A.M. that day, so as to enable the men to get the meal provided for them, and to be ready to entrain at 12-30 P.M. Going down to the barracks at 8 A.M. on the 16th I found that Major Kirkpatrick's party, about 600 strong, had arrived all right, and as Commander Holland, after inspecting the Lalpoora at Pointe-des-Galèts, returned to Saint Pierre by the forenoon train, I left myself with about 400 men by the 12-50 P.M. special train, and embarked with them on the Lalpoora, where I found the ladies, women and children and the whole of the men, who had gone on the preceding night already settled down. I had left Major Gore-Browne, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, in command of the men remaining at Saint Pierre, and this party being joined by those with Lieutenants St. John and Captain Prendergast from Sainte Philippe, left that night with Commander Holland, and reached Pointe-des-Galèts about 4 A.M. on the 17th instant, when the whole of those from the R.I.M.S. Warren Hastings (with the exception of Lieutenants St. John and Windham, Royal Indian Marine, and 10 lascars remaining behind for salvage purposes) were embarked on the Lalpoora, which sailed at 3 P.M. that afternoon and reached Port Louis, Mauritius, at 6 A.M., 18th instant.

17. It is impossible sufficiently to thank Mr. Bennett, the British Consul, for all he did for us. Not being able to leave himself at that particular time, he immediately on receipt of the news of the disaster sent his secretary, Mr. Piat, down to meet us, and he joined Commander Holland and myself, between Saint Joseph and Saint Pierre, on the night of the 14th instant, and was untiring in his efforts to assist us in every possible way from that time until we sailed.

18. I have already mentioned the kindness and hospitality of the inhabitants of Sainte Philippe when we landed there. All, from the Mayor downwards, showed the greatest anxiety to be of service to us, and the many isolated acts of kindness in the giving of coffee, food and clothing to individual men are much too numerous to mention. I would, however, draw special attention to what was done for us by Monsieur Coulon, who placed his house and everything he possessed at the disposal of the ladies, and had food available all the day for any of them, or of the officers who required it, and finally, when practically eaten out of house and home, was with the greatest difficulty prevailed upon to accept any recompense.

Monsieur Alfred Chaton, sous-officier of Gendarmerie, was also most obliging and unsparing in his efforts to save the men fatigue by taking on himself and his gendarmes nearly all the guard duty necessary at Sainte Philippe, which, after what everyone had gone through, was an inestimable boon.

Major Kirkpatrick reported to me that he had received very material assistance from the Mayor of Saint Joseph, and I can speak myself to the services cheerfully rendered to us by the Mayor of Saint Pierre in the collection of extra carts, without which it would have been impossible to get the men up from Sainte Philippe as soon as we did. I might mention numerous other instances, but I trust these will be enough to show the really kindly spirit in which these shipwrecked British troops were received by the officials and inhabitants of the Island of Réunion, and I would further respectfully express a hope that when this is represented to the Government, some steps may be taken to convey to the Governor and officials of this island our grateful thanks for all they did for us.

19. I enclose a report received from Major Kirkpatrick, York and Lancaster Regiment, giving his account of what took place, and I have to express my entire concurrence in his remarks.
20. During the time everyone was being got ashore from the wreck, I was an eyewitness from the bridge of numerous acts of devotion and gallantry in saving life, and several other cases were afterwards brought to my notice, which I did not see myself, but which I consider are thoroughly well authenticated, and I have therefore the honour to submit the following list, with the hope that the conduct of those named may be brought to the notice of the proper authorities. In this list I have, to avoid repetition, omitted any mention of names already brought forward by Major Kirkpatrick, in the report already alluded to, except in one case, where the details came more under my own personal observation :

- (1) No. 7679, Private N. McNamara 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, was the first man to attempt to swim to the shore on the port side, as has already been mentioned, carrying a light line, by means of which ropes were carried over and made fast, thus enabling many men to escape.
- (2) No. 6168, Private E. Carr, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, swam out some distance to the assistance of Mr. Gadsden, Royal Indian Marine, Chief Engineer of the ship, and brought him ashore.
- (3) No. 4421, Private G. Howes, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, at the time a patient in hospital, dived in and attempted to save a native cook, who was drowned. He had afterwards to be himself helped out of the water.
- (4) No. 7291, Lance-Corporal R. Newby, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, dived from the ship and assisted a man of the York and Lancaster Regiment (name unknown) to a rope, by which he was got ashore.
- (5) No. 5680, Private W. J. Grisley, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, swam out with a buoy to the assistance of Private J. Brown, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, by which he was saved.
- (6) No. 6131, Private M. Arrowsmith, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, was on the rocks near the bow of the ship, when a child of one of the York and Lancaster Regiment was being brought down the ladder, slipped and fell into the sea; Private Arrowsmith, although unable to swim, jumped in with a rope and was pulled out again with the child in his arms.
- (7) No. 6547, Private L. A. Wootton, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, swam out to the assistance of Private G. Taylor, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, and, after bringing him ashore, went in again with a buoy to Private Danner, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, who was getting exhausted. Private Danner missed the buoy and Private Wootton then supported him to the rocks.

- (8) Lieutenant Windham and Sub-Lieutenant Huddleston, Royal Indian Marine, were instrumental in saving several lives, but I have been unable to get particulars, except in the case of Lance-Corporal Robinson, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifle Corps, who could not possibly have got ashore, but for assistance, and who was saved by them both; and Private Diamond, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, whom Sub-Lieutenant Huddleston saved, being afterwards himself dashed insensible against the rocks, and picked out of the surf by Sergeant J. Allen, and No. 7030, Private C. Croft, both 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, at great risk to themselves.
- (9) Mr. Tyler, Bandmaster, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, was in the water, on the starboard side, and unable to make any headway against the backwash of the waves, or to get near the shore. Lieutenant Gosling, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, endeavoured to reach him, but after going some 20 yards was washed back, thrown on the rock and injured. Second-Lieutenant Forman, Royal Artillery, at once went in with a rope and a life-buoy, and swimming out to Mr. Tyler, gave him the buoy. When, however, the men on the shore began to haul on the rope, it parted. Second-Lieutenant Forman stayed with Mr. Tyler, and Lieutenant Gosling then made a second attempt to reach him, but failed and was brought ashore. Second-Lieutenant Bayley, York and Lancaster Regiment, then swam out with a rope, and the whole three were then brought close in to the shore, when Second-Lieutenants Forman and Bayley were hauled up on the rocks, over which the sea was then washing. In endeavouring to pull Mr. Tyler in, the buoy slipped, and the backwash carried him out at once. Just at the time one of the boats belonging to the ship, which had washed loose, was drifted sufficiently near the rocks to be got hold of, but was all the time being dashed against them, and actually, being broken up. It was caught and manned by Color-Sergeant Jones, who was at the time a hospital patient, Sergeants H. Howarth and R. Down, Corporals R. Hodgson and C. Young, and Privates Nos. 6206, W. Parkinson, 6040, G. Kaley, 6064, T. Jones, 5756, J. Connel, 7441, T. Steel, 8094, P. Pickersgill, all King's Royal Rifles, and attempted to be rowed out to where Mr. Tyler who was much exhausted, was.

Not being able to get the boat out, Sergeant Down dived from the stern and swam to him, supporting him till he could be got on board; but the sea afterwards swept him out of the boat and he was pulled in again by Corporal C. Young and No. 6231, Private C. B. Jones, and was eventually landed in safety, though insensible, together with the crew of the boat.

21. In conclusion, I would wish to bring to the notice of the Major-General Commanding the admirable behaviour of all the troops on board from the time the vessel struck.

The most perfect discipline was maintained; everyone fell in quietly when the order was given, and remained awaiting further orders, without noise or any sign whatever that anything more than usual was expected of them. When it is remembered that the great majority of the men were below decks at the time, and could not see, though they could not but be conscious of the danger in which they stood, of the extent of which, however, they had no chance of forming an opinion, the order maintained appears the more praiseworthy.

From my position on the bridge, where I could see distinctly, I was particularly struck by the way in which, when the disembarkation of the men was stopped to allow the ladies, women and children to get ashore, the former quietly stood on one side to permit them to pass, and then resumed their own disembarkation in perfect order, when, all the time, it appeared to be a question of moments when the vessel would heel over.

From MAJOR W. J. KIRKPATRICK, late Commanding Detachment, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, to the Officer Commanding 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment,—dated Curepipe, Mauritius, 20th January 1897.

With reference to the loss by shipwreck of the R.I.M.S. Warren Hastings, on the morning of the 14th instant, off the Isle of Réunion, I have the honour to report the following circumstances which came either under my own cognizance, or that of the officers of the detachment lately under my command:

1. At 2-15 A.M., on the 14th instant, I was asleep in my cabin, and was awakened by the grating noise made by the vessel striking the rocks; I went at once on the upper deck, where I found it was raining in torrents and pitch dark; the vessel did not seem to be moving. I heard the Officer Commanding troops being called for, and seeing the 1st-Lieutenant, Mr. St. John, near me, I asked if Captain Holland, D.S.O., would like me to go on the bridge, he said "Yes," and I went up, when Captain Holland told me "He wished the troops to fall in on the main troop deck." I then went below, and on the way I met the Officer Commanding Troops, and told him the order I had received, and that I was going to see it complied with, also that the Captain wished him to go on the bridge.

I then gave the order for the men to fall in, which they did in the most calm and orderly manner; this was about 2-25 A.M. I afterwards received and issued two orders—(1) "That the troops, who were at first mixed, having fallen in as they stood, should be separated, the 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, falling in on the port side, and the 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, on the starboard side; and (2) "That the troops were to be arranged by companies." Both of these orders were carried out; the companies being arranged in alphabetical order from bow to stern.

3. The next order received by me and given out was to the effect "That the men were to get their boots, kits and rifles"; but this, owing to the water having now got in to the starboard side on account of the list of the vessel, could not be carried out as regards the 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, only a few men being able to get their boots; the water-tight doors were also closed, and this prevented the men from getting at their kits, etc.
4. My next order, just about daybreak (4-15 A.M.) was, "That the ladies, women and children were to pass along to the bow and be landed from there." This was done with difficulty, as the vessel was now lying down well on the starboard side, but they were helped along from one to another, and so all got safely to shore.
5. The men were now disembarked, the vessel meanwhile listing more and more over to starboard; I followed in rear, and ascertained, as I went along, that no soldiers were left behind on the vessel; this I reported, as I passed, to the Officer Commanding Troops and Captain Holland, who then came down from the bridge, and we three were the last to disembark; a good many men towards the end, by the Captain's permission, jumped into the water and swam ashore.
6. I think the discipline was perfect, the men being as calm and cool as on parade, even when the electric light failed for a short time and candles had to be lit;

this was, however, only for about five or ten minutes.

7. On arrival on the rocks I endeavoured to muster my detachment, and, after some little time, was able to report all accounted for, when I was ordered to furnish a fatigue party of 45 men to assist in trying to save light cabin baggage; the remainder of my detachment I sent off, under Captain Byass, to the village of Sainte Philippe, about $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the scene of the wreck. I afterwards sent down a second fatigue party to relieve some of the 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, who had been at work all the morning.
8. All the troops bivouacked in this village (Sainte Philippe) for the day and night of the 14th instant, and next morning, 15th instant, about 7 A.M., I started with all the men who had boots, viz., 424, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, and 193, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, to march to Saint Pierre, which I was told was about 22 miles distant. The Officer Commanding Troops and Captain Holland, D.S.O., had gone on the evening previous, 14th instant, to make the necessary arrangements.
9. On arrival, about 11 A.M., 15th instant, at Saint Joseph, about half way between Sainte Philippe and Saint Pierre, i.e., about $11\frac{1}{2}$ miles from the former, I found the men were so done up they could not finish the march on that day, so arranged with the Mayor of Saint Joseph for food and accommodation for that day and night, and telegraphed to this effect to Officer Commanding Troops at Saint Pierre.
10. The ladies, women and children, sick and the small amount of baggage saved were passed in carts from Sainte Philippe to Saint Pierre on this day, 15th instant, also about 100 men, without boots, in the remaining available carts. The remainder of the men, without boots, following in carts next day, 16th instant.
11. I should like here to mention the very great kindness and sympathy received from the French inhabitants, both at Sainte Philippe and Saint Joseph, the latter place especially, and also in particular to mention Monsieur Coulon, of Sainte Philippe, and Monsieur the Doctor Courdain, and Monsieur the Mayor of Saint Joseph, as having been of the greatest assistance to us on our march. I am sure none of us will ever forget the great kindness of these gentlemen.
12. On the morning of the 16th instant we finished our march, leaving Saint Joseph at 4-30 A.M., and arriving at Saint Pierre about 8-30 A.M.; from this place we were taken by special train to Point de Galle, and embarked there on board B.I.S.S. Lalpoora.
13. With the exception of a very few articles saved from the cabins on the port side of the vessel, all the baggage, including all detachment and company documents, account books, pay lists, etc., have been lost, also about half the regimental plate which had been lent to my detachment officers' mess at Cape Town, all the officers' mess pictures, etc. The officers have individually lost all their property, silver plate, etc.

14. I should wish to bring to your notice the following incidents at the time of the wreck, which have been authenticated by eye-witnesses:

- (1) The Bandmaster (Mr. Tyler) of the 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, was being almost drowned, when Lieutenant Gosling, 1st Battalion, King's Royal Rifles, attempted to go to his rescue, but was unable to do so, as he was dashed back on the rocks; 2nd-Lieutenant Forman, Royal Artillery, however, succeeded in swimming out with a rope round him and reached Mr. Tyler and assisted him to a life-buoy, when the rope broke and 2nd-Lieutenant Forman was in imminent danger of being drowned, when 2nd-Lieutenant Bayley, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, got a rope tied round him and swam out to their assistance, he succeeded in reaching them and holding on to them, and eventually all three were dragged safely on shore, though in an exhausted condition.
- (2) 2nd-Lieutenant Selous, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, jumped overboard on the starboard side and assisted a man to shore who at the time was sinking, and would most certainly have been drowned if not so assisted by 2nd-Lieutenant Selous; this officer also saved another man on the port side, who was sinking, by jumping into the sea, catching hold of him and holding him up till a rope was thrown to them, by means of which they were both pulled on shore.
- (3) Private Roe, A Company, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, who was on guard at the time of the wreck as a sentry on the lower deck, stood to his post till the water was up over his knees, and would not leave till ordered to do so by 2nd-Lieutenant Bayley, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, after he had reported that everyone had left that part of the ship. As regards my late detachment, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, only, I would strongly recommend that the conduct of 2nd-Lieutenant Selous and 2nd-Lieutenant Bayley may be brought to the notice of the Royal Humane Society.

- (4) Private Flannery, A Company, 2nd Battalion, York and Lancaster Regiment, who was on guard and on sentry over the fresh-water tanks, also remained at his post till the water was over his knees.

15. The conduct of the men of all corps was admirable; and, in my opinion, it is almost entirely due to the entire absence of anything like panic, and to the perfect discipline, obedience, good order and coolness which prevailed amongst the men, that we were so fortunate as not to lose a single European life.

5. The receipts from Major Works were somewhat less than during the previous year, but were above the average of the preceding nine years. The working expenses were lower than at any period during the preceding nine years. The percentage of net revenue on Capital outlay was 0·19 as against 0·09 in the previous year.

The percentage of net revenue on Capital outlay on the Minor Works for which Capital and Revenue Accounts are kept, was 0·41 as against 0·25 in the previous year.

6. The following table gives details for the three Major Irrigation Works of the unrealized balances of demands at the beginning and at the end of the year :

CANALS.			Balance unrealized at beginning of year.	Demands of year.	TOTAL.	Less collection and remissions.	Balance unrealized at close of year.
			Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.

The improvement in administration noticed in the two previous years' reviews still continues. The balance uncollected at the end of the year was Rs. 67,461 as compared with Rs. 94,132 at its commencement.

In para. 6 of the Resolution by the Local Government the unrealized balance at the beginning of the year is given as Rs. 77,498, while in Statistical Table IIIC the opening balance is given as Rs. 94,132. The difference occurs in the Sone Canal figures, and, as explained in paras. 75 and 88 of the Chief Engineer's note, is due to the inclusion in the opening balance of Statement IIIC of water-rates which, though assessed in 1894-95, were not due till 1895-96. Such rates are not part of the unrealized balance of the year in which they are assessed and will be excluded in future returns.

7. The areas irrigated and the assessed water-rates on the three Major Irrigation Works are shown in the following table :

(a) Includes 18,394 acres on account of hot weather irrigation.

The increase in the area irrigated was on the Sone Canals, where, it is stated, the rainfall was generally deficient, and in the rabi season abnormally small.

8. The areas irrigated in the kharif and rabi seasons were as follows :

CANALS.						Kharif.	Rabi.

* Exclusive of 18,394 acres of hot weather irrigation.

The area irrigated by lift was 6,233 acres, or 1·1 per cent. of the whole.

9. The areas of the principal crops irrigated were—

	Acres.
Rice	464,149
Wheat	31,752
Barley	11,032
Sugarcane	55,484

The estimated value of the irrigated crops was 205½ lakhs of rupees.

On the Orissa Canals, the expenditure on Extensions and Improvements was Rs. 4,768 and on Repairs Rs. 1,95,059 against Rs. 6,547 and Rs. 2,28,252, respectively, during the previous year.

On the Midnapore Canal, the expenditure on Extensions and Improvements was Rs. 5,785 against Rs. 11,093 in the previous year. The expenditure on Repairs, Rs. 1,35,047, was considerably in excess of that of the last three years, and the increase is attributed generally to thorough repairs to canals and distributaries having been undertaken during the year.

On the Sone Canals, the expenditure on Extensions and Improvements was Rs. 20,428 as against Rs. 10,972 in the previous year. The expenditure on Repairs was Rs. 1,32,057 against Rs. 2,20,227 in the previous year. Compared with the average expenditure of the five years ending March 1894, the saving on Maintenance and Repairs during 1895-96 amounts to about 1½ lakhs of rupees. It is explained that this reduction has not been confined to silt clearance and dredging only, but is also due to economies effected by the careful supervision of Executive Engineers. The Local Government acknowledges the good work done by the Superintending Engineer and his executive officers in their successful efforts to reduce the maintenance charges.

11. The charge for establishment in the table in para. 10 is made up as follows :

				Revenue management.	Maintenance.	TOTAL.	Percentage.

GRAND TOTAL				5,88,548	2,47,769	8,36,317	100.00

The total cost of maintaining the Major Irrigation Works amounted to 91.5 per cent. of the gross revenue realized from them, the charge for revenue management being 34.5 per cent. of the total cost of maintenance.

12. The following table gives particulars of the disposal of objections to assessments during the year :

The increase in the number of complaints filed on the Sone Canals is attributed to the increased area irrigated in the rabi season.

13. The Navigation receipts and expenditure are shown below :

There was an increase in the receipts on all systems with the exception of the Nadia Rivers on which, during the last four years, the decline of traffic has been very marked. It is said that the decrease has been generally ascribed to the deterioration of the Jalangi and Bhagirathi rivers, and also to railway competition. The Local Government is directing particular attention to this important matter. The expenditure on navigation during the year was Rs. 6,60,410 as against Rs. 6,65,033 in the previous year. An important addition was made to the Eastern Canals by the opening out of the bheel route for steamers and flats, during the rainy season, between the Kumar and Madhumati rivers. Rs. 13,009 were spent on this work against an estimate of Rs. 23,118.

14. The Navigation receipts were made up as follows :

				Rs.

" " Government boats	7,531

Transport service	35,652
Fines and sundries	12,344
TOTAL				10,81,691

The aggregate tonnage carried per mile amounted to 44 $\frac{1}{2}$ millions, the estimated value of cargoes to 1,161 $\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of rupees and the number of passengers was 658,427.

15. The divergence between the results of the crop experiments obtained in the Sone and Orissa Circles has not yet been satisfactorily accounted for. Rules were being drawn up which will be applied to the experiments of 1896-97, and the result will be noted in the Revenue Report for that year.

16. The following table shows the duty of water on the Sone and Orissa Canals :

17. The Government of India notice with satisfaction the approval bestowed by the Lieutenant-Governor on the officers mentioned in paragraph 35 of the Resolution by the Local Government reviewing the revenue report.

Saturday, May 1st, 1897.

The feebly unsettled and showery weather, which prevailed over a considerable part of India last week, continued during most of the week under review. During the early part of this week pressure was low over Bihar and part of the Gangetic Plain, while it was high over the Punjab and relatively high over Assam. As a consequence of this distribution cool northerly winds prevailed over North-Western and Western India and southerly winds over Eastern and North-Eastern India. The northerly wind was accompanied with very showery weather over the North-West Himalayas and the Punjab, while the southerly wind gave scattered thunderstorms to parts of Assam and Bengal. On Thursday this distribution gave way. Pressure fell over North-Western India, the northerly winds took off and temperature rose rapidly in the Punjab. This change was accompanied with increased showeryness in North-East India and the Central Provinces, where at some places severe thunderstorms and duststorms were experienced. These storms were followed by a rapid reduction of temperature. This summary shows that as in the previous week both pressure and temperature were very unsteady throughout India, and underwent large changes from day to day.

Daily Summary.—Sunday, April 25th.—Pressure had increased slightly to briskly over North-West India and decreased slightly to briskly in most other places. Readings were high in the Punjab and low over Bihar and parts of Bengal. The winds were northerly over North-Western and Western India and southerly to easterly over Eastern and North-Eastern India. The mean temperature was low over North-West India as well as over Orissa and the east of the Central Provinces, but was high elsewhere—most so in Burma and Central Bengal. Showers of hail and rain had fallen over the North-West Himalayas and Baluchistan, and a few widely scattered showers had been received over the Central Provinces and the Peninsula.

Monday, April 26th.—Pressure had given way, except in North-East India. The fall had been rapid over the Western desert, and a shallow depression had appeared there with its centre near Bickaneer. Readings were now high over the Punjab and Assam and relatively low over the whole intervening region. The winds were slightly affected by the low pressure area in the north-west, but in general the directions were little changed. The directions were very variable over the Gangetic Plain. The mean temperature remained lower than usual over North-West India and higher than usual elsewhere. The abnormal excess was greatest over Central Burma. There had been showers over the Assam Valley, Baluchistan, Kashmir and the West Punjab, and a few local thunder-showers in other parts of the country.

Tuesday, April 27th.—The barometer had fallen in the North Punjab and Kashmir and had generally risen elsewhere. The rise had been rapid over the Western desert, and the depression noticed there had disappeared. With this exception the general distribution was similar to that on the 26th. The wind remained generally northerly and north-westerly over North-Western and Western India, southerly to easterly in the east and very variable over the Gangetic

Plain and the central parts of the country. The force was much lighter than usual at the head of the Bay. The mean temperature was low over the Assam Valley, over the South Carnatic Coast and over the whole of North-West India. The abnormal deficiency was as much as 16° at Peshawar and Rawalpindi. Thundershowers had occurred over Baluchistan, the North-West Himalayas and the whole of the Punjab, except Lahore and Delhi. Local showers had also been received in parts of Chota Nagpur, of Assam, of Upper Burma and of the south of the Peninsula. In the Punjab, Kashmir, etc., the amounts had been exceptionally heavy.

Wednesday, April 28th.—The barometer had risen, except in Burma. The rise in the north-west had been brisk to rapid. Readings were high in the north-west and north-east and east of the Indian region and low in the intervening area. The northerly winds in the north-west had increased and extended to the Gangetic Plain and the Central Provinces. The mean temperature was still low in the north-west of India and in the South Carnatic, but in all other places it was excessive. The abnormal excess was as much as 9° in parts of Burma and 8° in parts of Bengal, while the abnormal deficiency was 15° at Sialkot. Rain had again been received over the North-West Himalayas and the North Punjab as well as a few scattered showers in other places.

Thursday, April 29th.—Pressure had given way, except in the north-east. The change had been brisk to rapid in the north-west, and the high pressure area previously existing there had disappeared. Readings were now highest in the Assam Valley. The northerly winds had largely disappeared from the Punjab, but they still held over the Gangetic Plain and the Central Provinces. The force was low both over the Bay and along the West Coast. The temperature had risen fast over the Punjab, but there was still a deficiency compared with the normal all over North-West India. Elsewhere the excess held, and over Central Burma was as much as 10° . Rain had ceased in the north-west, but duststorms and nor'westers had given a good deal of rain to North-East India, and a few showers had also fallen over the south of the Peninsula.

Friday, April 30th.—Pressure still decreased almost everywhere. The fall had been brisk to rapid in the north, and shallow low pressure areas were shown over the north of the Central Provinces and over the Punjab. The winds were very variable, and the usual hot winds were absent from the Gangetic Plain. Temperature had fallen over Burma, Bengal and the Central Provinces. Lower temperatures than usual were still reported from the north-west, and the area of deficient temperature had extended to West Bengal and the east of the Peninsula. The heat was considerably greater than usual in Burma and the Bombay Deccan. Burma and a few stations in Bengal, the Central Provinces and the Peninsula reported showers.

Saturday, May 1st.—The barometric changes had been irregular and generally slight. Readings were low in the north-west and high in the north-east, but the pressure differences were small. The winds were again very irregular, and the westerly current down the Gangetic Plain was altogether absent. The temperature had fallen fast over the Central Provinces. The mean temperature was higher than usual over the North Punjab, Sind, the west and south of the Peninsula, Lower Bengal and Lower Burma, while there was a large abnormal deficiency over the Central Provinces. Showers had occurred over parts of Assam, Chota Nagpur, Central Burma, the Central Provinces and the Peninsula, but in most places the amounts were small.

Temperature.—The unsettled weather over the plains and hills of North-West India during last and the first-half of the present week resulted in the establishment of very cool weather over North-West India. This effect reached its maximum on the 28th, when the mean temperature of the Punjab was $11^{\circ}9$ lower than usual. After the 28th a recovery set in and temperature rose fast, but the abnormal deficiency never wholly disappeared from this region during the week. In the central parts of the country and Bengal the changes of temperature were to a great extent the reverse of this, the mean having in these regions been generally exceeded in the early part of the week, while at the close a sudden fall took place, and the heat went below the average. In Burma and Bombay there was a steady large excess of temperature throughout the week.

The following table gives temperature data for the week :

Mean for whole of India . . .	+0'2	+1'4	+0'9	+0'7	—0'2	—0'3	—0'6	+0'3

The above shows that while the variations of temperature from the normal were very large in different parts of India, the general temperature conditions of the whole country on each day differed very little from the average, the mean temperature of the whole country for the whole week being very nearly normal.

The following are the highest temperatures recorded on each day :

April 25th	110°2 at Nagpur.
„ 26th	110°1 „ Akola.
„ 27th	111°2 „ Jhansi.
„ 28th	113°1 „ Allahabad.
„ 29th	110°7 „ Chanda.
„ 30th	111°6 „ Akola.
May 1st	110°7 „ Hyderabad (S.).

The above figures show that up to the end of April the area of highest day temperatures lay over the central-parts of the country, but that on the last day of the week the hottest area was transferred north-westward into Sind.

Rainfall.—As was mentioned above, the week under review has been one of unsettled conditions and of fairly general rainfall. As is usual at this season of the year and as was the case last week, the principal areas of unsettled weather are North-East and North-West India and to a less extent the south of the Peninsula, most of the more central parts of the country reporting only a few scattered showers. The rainfall in North-West India at this season of the year depends on the large changes of temperature which ordinarily occur. The sudden heating up of the plains of North-West India is followed by the development of a slight barometric depression. This depression increases slowly in intensity is followed by cyclonic winds and subsequently by duststorms and showers which lower the temperature, and the depression disappears to be succeeded in a few days by a fresh increase of heat and a new depression. In North-East India the occurrence of thundershowers and of nor'westers appears to be largely connected with the strength of the wind at the Sandheads, a strong southerly wind, which pours much moisture into Bengal, being followed by a considerable increase in the number and extent of the storms.

The rainfall table at the close shows that rain in effective amounts, i.e., of one-tenth of an inch or more fell during the week in thirty-two of the rainfall divisions. This number is very nearly the same as that reported last week. The area of effective rainfall included the following divisions: Tenasserim, Central and Upper Burma, all the Bengal divisions, except North Bihar, the hills of the North-West Provinces, the Punjab divisions, except the South-East, South and Submontane, Malabar, Mysore, the Bombay Deccan, Berar, all the Central Provinces divisions, Sind, Baluchistan, the East Coast (North and Central divisions) and Madras (Central and South). In all the other divisions of the Indian region the rainfall of the week was either altogether nil or so small as to be of very little importance. The rainfall was heaviest in Assam, where, in the three divisions of that province, the average actual rainfall was 1'60 inches, 3'02 inches and 2'43 inches respectively. It likewise exceeded one inch in Tenasserim, the North Punjab and Madras (South). In the other divisions which received effective rain the amount varied between about 0'10 inch and 0'70 inch.

The third column of the table shows that the rainfall of the week was heavier than usual in Tenasserim, the Assam Valley, Chota Nagpur, the central, hill, north and west divisions of the Punjab, all the Central Provinces divisions, Sind, Baluchistan, the East Coast (North and Central) and Madras (South). In all the remaining divisions the rainfall was either normal or in defect. The deficiency was as much as one inch in the case of East Bengal, Assam (Surma) and the Bengal Hills.

The seasonal rainfall, i.e., the rainfall from the 28th of February to date has been considerably above the normal average over West and South-West Bengal and the east of the North-West Provinces, over the north of the Punjab, over the east of the Central Provinces and over a considerable part of the east of the Peninsula. In other places the fall for the period has been about normal or deficient, but, except in parts of the North-West Provinces and of the Bombay Presidency, the deficiency has not been very considerable.
